JOHNSON OPENS SPEAKING TOUR WITH ROUSING DEFENSE OF NRA, AND ATTACK ON ITS CRITICS

MISSOURI FARM GROUP FAVORS PRICE-FIXING BUT NO STRIKE

'NOT IMPRESSED BY REASONS GIVEN'

Declares Against Strike Because Market Blockade Is Almost Impossible and for Fear of Bloodshed.

By the Associated Press.

MACON, Mo., Nov. 6.—Although voicing opposition to the farm strike, the Executive Committee of the Missouri Farmers' Association today adopted a resolution protesting against the administration's action in rejecting the price-fixing plan offered by five Mid-Western Governors.

The resolution was unanimously adopted at a meeting presided over by William Hirth, president.

The resolution follows: "In common with other farmers, we definitely resent the manner in which the earnest request of the corn-belt Governors for fair farm prices in our home markets was rejected by the administration in Washington last week, and we are not at all impressed by the reasons given for this action.

"If it is still true that the nation cannot return to the good times without the restored buying power of the farmer, then the present farm plans must be scrapped, for they are hardly a respectable gesture in this direction.

"It is a premise in which the administration will make a serious mistake at the peril of the whole nation and of itself.

"Meanwhile, we do not believe that a so-called farm strike offers a sound solution, first, because an effective blockade of the great central market is almost impossible of achievement, and second, such an effort is practically certain to lead to serious bloodshed between farmers who favor the strike and other farmers who believe they have the right to market their own commodities when and where they please.

"That the powers that be in Washington will come to their senses ere it is too late is the chief hope of th efarmers of the nation."

FARM PICKET KILLED BY AUTO

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 6. — A farmer was killed near Dakota City, Neb., last night, when a speeding automobile crashed into a group of farm strike pickets clustered around a parked truck. Five men were injured.

Burning of a railway bridge at James today was attributed by authorities to farm pickets who sought to halt a freight train shortly before the fire. The engineer of the train refused to stop and a rifle bullet crashed through the caboose.

James is six miles north of Sioux City in Plymouth County, where farm unrest last spring necessitated calling out National Guard troops.

Sheriff Rippey had guards posted around the Plymouth County courthouse at Le Mars today, following an anonymous threat by telephone last night that pickets would attempt to recover flares which the Sheriff had taken from them, and to "take care of the courthouse" at the same time.

One hundred pickets were on the highways near James, and only six trucks reached the Sioux City produce markets this morning.

Eight carloads of livestock were halted by pickets near Lawton, Ia., and the stock turned loose, after a train had been halted by a huge pile of railroad ties on the tracks.

Forty thousand pounds of milk were dumped in Wisconsin and telephone wires were cut.

Pickets and anti-picketing forces massed at the Plattsmouth (Neb.) bridge over the Missouri River, gateway to the Omaha market. Gov. Herring of Iowa announced the State was ready to intervene if county peace officers were unable to handle the situation.

The death of Frank Fletcher of Homer, Neb., increased to two the fatalities since the farm embargo was declared, more than two weeks ago. The other fatality occurred recently in Wisconsin.

Fletcher died before emergency treatment could be administered. The injured included three pickets,

No Quick Cure for World Troubles, Says Baldwin, America "Practically Under Dictatorship"

"It Will Be Interesting to See What the Backwash Will Be in United States or Germany 12 Months Hence," He Declares in London Speech.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council said today: "The ordinary Constitution has certainly broken down in the United States and they are practically under a dictatorship."

He made this statement at a political luncheon attended by National Government leaders, at which Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, said that "even in the United States the Americans are putting their faith in their time of trouble in a man and not in an institution."

Baldwin, declaring the British democracy the most educated in the world, said:

"When you get deep enthusiasm with many temperaments it is not wholly removed from hysteria. I have seen manifestations of that in countries which shall be nameless. It is generated by the thought that if all pull together they can put things right in five minutes.

"The causes of the world's troubles are too deep-seated for that. Many people here believed instinctively two years ago the financial position would be put straight and employment found for all in six, 12 or 18 months.

"You have always to look out for the backwash of that line of talk. It will be interesting to see what the backwash in America or Germany will be 12 or 18 months hence.

"Thank God we are no. a hysterical nation. Long may we be preserved from it! We are now faced here with those on the extreme Right and some on the extreme Left who have given up all hope of democracy. There are people who trust to get rich quick or want a dictatorship. I believe that such a form of Government would be absolutely alien to the character of our people."

Sir John Simon said that Great Britain "is one of the few ancient countries in the world in which parliamentary institutions are active operating with success."

"In Germany," he continued "parliamentary institutions survive after a fashion, but only on the principle nobody should vote for anyone except the Government candidate.

"The threat to parliamentary institutions by whatever name we disguise it is the threat of dictatorship, and that is the danger from which the national combination of parties has to save Britain.

DUNLAP GETS TWO YEARS FOR AYERS BANK FRAUD

Court, However, Dismisses Other Indictments Against Him and Andrew Russel.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 6.—Federal indictments charging misapplication of funds and conspiracy against Millard F. Dunlap and Andrew Russel, in connection with the failure of the Ayers National Bank of Jacksonville, were dismissed today by United States District Judge Charles G. Briggle. The Judge sustained demurrers to the indictments.

Russel, a Republican, was formerly State Treasurer and Auditor. Dunlap, who was president of the Ayers National, and William G. Goebel, cashier, were convicted a month ago in Federal Court of making false entries. Judge Briggle denied probation for Dunlap and sentenced him to two years in prison, in addition to a fine of $5000.

A decision on Goebel's application for probation was withheld and sentence was not imposed.

U. S. INCREASES GOLD PRICE 17 CENTS OVER SATURDAY

R. F. C. Purchases Set at $32.84 an Ounce, With Advance in London to $32.46.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. — The price of $32.84 an ounce was announced today for R. F. C. purchase of domestic newly mined gold, 17 cents higher than on Saturday.

The figure was 38 cents above the quotation for gold in London translated into dollars at an exchange rate of 4.92½, a record low point reached at 2 p. m., London time, today.

Although the British price for gold actually declined 6½ pence, the weakness of the dollar resulted in an advance in the dollar price of gold at London from $32.08 Saturday to $32.46 today.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said that substantial amounts of gold had been bought in the world markets but he declined to state the actual amount. It was disclosed that $2,800,000 had been paid out in purchases of the domestic metal.

HALF OF EMPLOYES AT FORD'S RIVER ROUGE PLANT LAID OFF

Action Is in Accordance With Declared Purpose of Holding Hours to 35 a Week.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Nov. 6.—Half the men employed at the Ford Motor Co.'s River Rouge plant were laid off today, in accordance with a recent announcement that the company would bring average working hours within the NRA automobile code of 35 a week.

The company, while declaring that "half the men are being laid off," did not give the exact figures as to total employment in the plant. In their announcement of the layoff plan last week they said that 9,000 men would be laid off, probably for seven days. The last official figure given by the company for total employment at the plant some weeks ago, was 45,000.

It was stated that when the working hours of the men laid off today have been brought within the regulations of the code, the rest of the employes will get a similar layoff.

CHICAGO INDEPENDENT DAIRIES SELL MILK BELOW NRA PRICE

Say Large Dealers Did Not Need to Raise in Order to Give Farmer the Extra Cent.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Independent dairies in Chicago continued to sell milk Saturday on a cash and carry basis at eight cents a quart despite the NRA price of 11 cents put into effect Friday by large dealers who co-operate with the Pure Milk Association.

The hiking of the price from 10 cents to 11 cents at the order of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace was designed to aid dairy farmers, the added one cent going direct to them.

Independents, instead of raising their charge to consumers, absorbed the one cent themselves, according to Arthur Kahlert, president of one of the largest independent companies. Kahlert charged the organized dairies could have paid the higher price to farmers without hiking the retail price.

WOMAN OWNER OF SALOON SHOT DEAD IN QUARREL

Mrs. Ruby Osborne Galbreath Killed by Customer at East St. Louis Bar — Assailant Escapes.

VICTIM'S HUSBAND TELLS OF SLAYING

Names Man Who Fired Pistol Twice Then Fled — Says He Doesn't Know Cause of Dispute.

Mrs. Ruby Osborne Galbreath, associate of gangsters, was shot and killed at 3 a. m. today in her Green Lantern Cafe, a saloon at 922 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, by a customer with whom she had had a quarrel at the bar.

Andrew Galbreath, her husband, named a St. Louis man as the slayer. He said the slayer, after shooting her twice in the head, fled while Galbreath, Mrs. Lee Meier, her sister, and co-proprietor of the place, and a customer, were caring for the dying woman.

Galbreath, who resides at 3007 Easton avenue, told policemen he went to the saloon shortly after last midnight. He was accompanied by Harry Guy and the man who later shot Mrs. Galbreath, he said.

After an hour, he continued, Mrs. Meier, who was in the place with her sister, retired to their living quarters in the rear of the saloon, leaving Mrs. Galbreath in charge.

"Shortly before 3 o'clock," Galbreath continued, "Ruby started to fix some chicken for us to eat. Guy and I were sitting at a table drinking. This other fellow went up to the bar and got into an argument with Ruby. I don't know what it was all about.

"Finally he pulled out a revolver, walked around the bar and shot her. She fell, bleeding from the head. As we ran to pick her up, he ran out the door. I tried to get a doctor, but couldn't reach one. Mrs. Meier came out to help us and we took Ruby to St. Mary's Hospital in a taxicab. She was dead when we got there."

Mrs. Galbreath was 32 years old. Her husband is 26. Members of the family said they had not been living together in recent months.

Mrs. Galbreath was the second woman in her famly to die after being shot. Her sister, Mamie, was shot and seriously wounded at the St. Clair Hotel at 320 Missouri avenue in 1925, in a brawl in which Lester Tons, also known as Robert Stanton, was killed by Earl Toole, former resident of Williamson County. She died six weeks later, but her physician said death was due to a brain ailment, not to effects of the shooting.

It was an insult to Ruby Osborne that led to the killing of Charles E. Gordon Jr. on Feb. 28, 1925, by Art Newman, who subsequently became a lieutenant of Charlie Birger, Southern Illinois gangster. Newman, now a lifeterm convict, shot and killed Gordon during a free-for-all in the Shelton brothers' saloon at 1900 Market street, which witnesses said was precipitated when Ruby Osborne's brother, Charles, struck her in the face. Newman subsequently was acquitted of murder on a plea of self-defense.

All of the elaborate ritual accompanying an old-fashioned Chinese marriage was observed and the bride received congratulations of friends.

$557,000 TAX LEVY ON FRANZ ESTATE UPHELD

United States Supreme Court Decision Gives Missouri Right to Collect on $2,400,000 Share.

CIRCUIT COURT OF APPEALS REVERSED

Dismissal of Injunction on Suit of Heirs by Federal Judge Faris Is Held Correct.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. — The State of Missouri will collect a $557,000 tax on an inheritance of $2,400,000, representing part of the estate of Ehrhardt D. Franz, St. Louis grocer, who died in 1898, under a decision today by the Supreme Court of the United tSates.

The decision sets aside one rendered last Nov. 26 by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and upholds a finding by Federal Judge Faris of St. Louis. Judge Faris had sustained a motion by the State to dismiss an injunction suit by the heirs, who sought to keep the State from applying the inheritance tax law. The heirs successfully appealed from Judge Faris' decision, while the State, through Circuit Attorney Miller of St. Louis, obtained the review by the Supreme Court.

Ten Direct Heirs.

Two-thirds of the Franz estate is involved in the litigation. Franz's widow, Mrs. Sophie Franz, who died in 1930, inherited a life interest in his estate. At her death, under his will, the estate went in equal parts to the 10 direct heirs. Three and one-third of the 10 shares were held, in Federal Court decisions, to have been shares of "remaindermen," and to have come directly from the Ehrhardt Franz estate.

As Franz died before the Missouri inheritance tax law was on the books, no inheritance tax was claimed by the estate on the remainder—men's shares. The law was effective when Mrs. Franz died, and the State has held that the six and two-thirds shares were derived from her and were taxable as inheritances. Holders of these shares sought the injunction against the State. A question of Federal or State jurisdiction was involved, as the Court of Appeals held that the State, in this case, encroached on Federal jurisdiction.

Judge Faris held that the eleventh amendment to the Federal Constitution, limiting the right of individuals to sue a State, applied to the heirs.

Once Worth $27,000,000.

Final distribution of the estate to the heirs was ordered by Judge Faris in April, 1932. The fortune was founded on the investment by Franz of $21,000 in stock of the American Arithmometer Co. in 1896. This concern became the Burroughs Adding Machine Co., which declared a number of stock dividends before the depression. The six and two-thirds shares of the Franz estate include 188,133 shares of Burroughs stock, worth at today's market more than $2,500,000. At one time Franz estate reached a stock market maximum value of $27,000,000. At the last estimate, last spring, it was calculated at $3,500,000 to $4,000,000.

NEW YORK STOCKS FALL IN INDIFFERENT MARKET

Most Listless Session for Weeks; Commodities Decline in Sympathy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Stocks drifted lower in one of the most listless sessions in weeks today. Trading proceeded slowly throughout the session.

The easiness in the list was due more to a lack of interest rather than to any aggressive selling. The commodity markets took their cue from stocks. Wheat fell and cotton declined nearly $1 a bale.

Railroad shares, leaders in Saturday's upturn, were apathetic today with losses ranging from fractions to about 1 point.

National Distillers and the other liquor shares declined along with the rest of the list.

American Dancer Who Was Mysteriously Murdered in Jerusalem

SLAIN AMERICAN GIRL BURIED IN JERUSALEM

No Further Developments in Killing of Dancer With Indian.

By the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, Nov. 6. — Joan Winters, American dancer who was found slain here Friday at the foot of the Mount of Olives, near the Garden of Gethsemane, was buried with simple rites in the American mission's cemetery yesterday.

An American clergyman, the Rev. Mr. Shap, officiated at the services, which were attended by the United States Consul and the Vice-Consul. Police authorities said today that their investigations have revealed no further developments in the mysterious murder of the girl and an Indian, believed to be Hyder Abadi, whose body was found beside hers.

The police are working on the theory that the couple was killed by Arab rioters while the man and woman were taking a stroll in the moonlight.

JOBLESS MAN FOUND DEAD BY HIS CHILDREN

Discovered in Vacant House Near an Open Gas Connection.

Milton Hoag, 36 years old, unemployed chauffeur, was found dead of gas poisoning in a vacant house at 4547 Davison avenue yesterday by his children. A Coroner's verdict of suicide was returned today.

He left his home, 4905 Emerson avenue, Saturday afternoon and went to the Davison avenue address to receive a kitchen cabinet preparatory to moving in there today. He failed to return home. Yesterday morning Mrs. Hoag sent their sons, Albert and William, to search for their father. They found his body in the kitchen near an open gas connection. Police report the gas had been turned on at the meter.

Hoag, an overseas veteran, had not worked for two years, according to his wife, and his family has lived on disability compensation he drew for war time injuries. This amounted to $44 a month until last July, when, under Government's economy program Hoag's allowance was reduced to $33 a month. The compensation ceases with his death. Hoag had been despondent over his inability to find work and his suffering from a bone disease, his wife said.

HOOVER LANDS HIS SECOND SWORD FISH; HYDE GETS ONE

(Copyright, 1933.)

ABOARD YACHT SAMONA II, GULF OF LOWER CALIFORNIA, Nov. 6.—Fisherman Herbert Hoover's luck has turned for the better. The former President has not only achieved his ambition to land a Marlin sword fish, one of the mightiest and gamest of all game fish, but today had taken two on his cruise with Wiilittts J. Hole and a party of friends into Mexican waters.

William L. Honnold, mining engineer and one-time associate of Hoover in Belgian relief, was running his friend an even race for fishing honors with two swordfish, while Arthur M. Hyde, former Secretary of Agriculture, and Harvey S. Mudd, an engineer, other members of the party aboard the 148-horse power Diesel-powered yacht, each have caught one.

Fine weather and excellent fishing have contributed to the enjoyment of the fishing party and all were in excellent spirits as the cruise neared the end of its second week off Cape San Luas. So far the cruise has extended into the Gulf of Lower California as far as Muertos Bay.

SAYS PRESIDENT HAS PULLED US FOURTH WAY OUT OF DEPRESSION

'How Did He Do It? I Am Enough of a Jesuit Not to Care,' Administrator Tells Illinois Manufacturers in Chicago.

"LET THE HEATHEN RAGE" HE ADVISES

Has No Intention of Trying to License Newspapers Because He Deems That Section of Law Contrary to Constitution.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—"No matter how he did it," President Roosevelt has pulled America a quarter of the way out of the depression, declared Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA Administrator, speaking here today before the Illinois Manufacturers' Association.

Defending the NRA and attacking its critics, Johnson added:

"His gospel was that the Government could contribute something and on that theory this is what he has done—one-fourth out in six months.

"How did he do it? I am enough of a Jesuit not to care. The fact is that he did it and—let the heathen rage."

So intense was the interest in Johnson's address at the Stevens Hotel that, despite the invitations to only 2500 persons, there were more than 4000 on hand, making it necessary to open a hall adjacent to the grand ballroom.

No Time for Calamity Howling.

Johnson declared this was no time "for calamity howling."

"It is time to get ready to take care of increased business and to carry on the excellent program thus far gained," he said.

Raging of critics against the NRA "takes the form of dead cats and hobgoblins," he went on. These "dead cats" are that NRA interferes with the freedom of the press, that it is unconstitutional, that it coerces industry and that it interferes with individual initiative, he said.

"Now we really do not mind honest and substantial dead cats and I have some justly coming to me. My only complaints is that most of these dead cats are synthetic. The biggest imitation dead cat is the one about the freedom of the press.

"I am as devoted as any of these critics to the constitutional principal of a free press. Nothing will ever be done in or by NRA to impair it. When I undertook this job I said it was going to be done in a gold fish bowl. I am aware of no complaint that any part of it has been done otherwise, although under the law it might have been. Every hearing on every point has been wide open. Opposition and criticism has not been resented—it has been invited on every decision and action."

"Every facility has been set up to receive complaints and every constructive suggestion has been adopted. Even in the formation of policies, responsible representatives of the press have been taken into confidence."

No Authority to License Press.

Johnson declared that in his official opinion there was no authority in NRA to license newspapers.

"I think the licensing power sections of the statute must be read with the free press clause of the Constitution," he said. "I think that, together, they preclude the idea of any intent of Congress to create a right in NRA to license the press. Until that statement is overturned by the courts, that administrative interpretation is the law. Since we shall not license, the question cannot go to the courts. Licensing has not been done. It will not be done because it cannot be done."

Johnson charged that the press had never been given more absolute freedom than in and about the NRA and declared that licensing of

10,000 STRIKERS BACK AT WORK IN 'CAPTIVE' MINES

Among the Last of 75,000 in Western Pennsylvania to Return After Walkout in August.

HAD FOUGHT FOR UNION RECOGNITION

Agreement Provides for Election of Collective Bargaining Representatives Within 10 Days.

By the Associated Press.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 6.—Western Pennsylvania's striking soft coal miners today went back to the pits they deserted in a demand for union recognition. Ending a deadlock which the Washington administration had viewed as a threat to the entire National Recovery program, some 10,000 men returned to work.

They are among the last—and the most recalcitrant—of some 75,000 workers who left the mines early in August, went back for a few weeks in September, and then struck again because they contended their demands were not met.

Eleven mines of the H. C. Frick Coke Co., in the heart of the Fayette County fields about which the strike centered, reopened, putting between 5000 and 6000 men back to work. The company announced that its other collieries would resume operations "as soon as conditions warrant."

The "captive" (non-commercial) mines of several other steel-controlled companies also reopened, and as the men, dinner pails in hand, walked to work from the company "patches" many of them were accompanied by their wives.

Martin F. Ryan, insurgent union chief and moving spirit in the prolonging of the strike, was the first to enter the mine at Grindstone, where he is a checkweighman.

William Hynes, president of District No. 4 of the United Mine Workers of America, who, with Ryan and six miners went to Washington Friday to negotiate the final return-to-the-mines agreement with the President, also was on hand to witness the resumption of work.

Under the agreement, the miners will meet within the next 10 days to elect collective bargaining representatives. National Labor Board agents will supervise the elections.

The men resume work under the wage and working conditions provisions of the NRA code for the commercial bituminous mines. Day workers will get $4.60, daily an increase of about a dollar, while the actual coal diggers will receive 40 cents a ton as against the old rate of 50 cents a car of 2½ tons.

Commercial mine workers have been back in the pits for several weeks, the operators having met their demands for union recognition. Many of them had struck in sympathy with the captive miners.

Anthracite Coal Strike Follows Clash of Unions.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Nov. 6.—A general strike affecting approximately 70,000 anthracite miners in Lackawanna and Luzerne Counties, Pennsylvania's "upper" hard-coal region, starts today, but John D. Moore of New York, technical adviser of the National Labor Board, thinks it will be short-lived.

After many Sunday conferences with leaders of two opposing unions, Moore expressed optimism of an amicable settlement of the trouble.

"I think progress has been made and that progress will be continued," he said. "I hope that out of my investigation something may come which will send the miners back to work, even before grievances are taken up for adjustment."

Thomas Maloney, district president of the newly organized United Anthracite Miners of Pennsylvania, asserted, however, that the miners could not be prevented from answering his organization's strike call today.

WOOLWORTH HEIRESS AND HER PRINCE IN NEW YORK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Prince Alexis Mdivani, youngest of the much-married Russian brothers, arrived on the Bremen today with his Princess, the former Barbara Woolworth Hutton, heiress to the Woolworth five-and-ten fortune. She said she was very happy.

Prince Alexis and his bride were married in Paris on June 21. They expect to stay here two or three months, then return to Paris to live.

The Prince is a brother of Prince Serge Mdivani who married Mary McCormic, and Prince David Mdivani who married Mae Murray. He was divorced from his first wife, the former Louise Van Alen, more than a year ago.

Princess Barbara said she and the Prince would spend their time "seeing friends, seeing shows and having a good time." They will stay with her father.

The Prince said he was secretary of the Georgian Legation in Paris and that he traveled on a diplomatic passport.

MISSOURI FARMERS AGAINST STRIKE BUT FAVOR PRICE-FIXING

William Wingett, 58 years old, of Winnebago, Neb., John Pallas, 42, Thurston, Neb., and Jerry Fillip, 22, Walthill, Neb. Harry Jackson, Emerson, who, police said, was the driver of the car, was held after the crash, together with a companion, Henry Mertens. Both were slightly injured.

Sheep and cattle wandered the streets of Lawton after 200 pickets broke into a Chicago & Northwestern livestock train. The pickets had followed the train, bound for a Sioux City market, from Pierson, Ia., finally halting it at the Lawton station with a blockade.

County and city authorities at Sioux City today requested the aid of National Guard troops and said they were assured by Gov. Herring that immediate action would be taken.

Says Strike Is Only Course.

Milo Reno, president of the striking National Farmers' Holiday Association, today said "betrayal of the farmers by both the President and Secretary Wallace" left the farmers "but one course, to strike with all the power that they possess."

The five Governors who presented the farm holiday demands to the President last week "only asked Justice for the farmer," Reno said.

Langer Assails Wallace.

Gov. William Langer of North Dakota declared in an address at Omaha that the Governors' conference with administration leaders in Washington, seeking solutions to the farm problem, was an "absolute failure."

"When Secretary Wallace called in his assistants," he said, "we found we were surrounded by professors. One Governor was prompted to ask: 'Haven't you even one dirt farmer down here in this department?'

"Secretary Wallace finally found one, and after he had asserted our program was feasible, he was excused from the meeting."

Receiving Shed of Cheese Plant in Wisconsin Dynamited.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON, Wis., Nov. 6. — A receiving shed of the Green Valley cheese plant, three miles north of Ixonia, was damaged yesterday by a dynamite explosion while the manager, his wife and two children slept upstairs.

Due to some peculiarity in the construction of the building, the Sheriff said, the sound did not penetrate to the rooms above the factory occupied by the family. It was the seventh dynamiting of a cheese factory or creamery in Wisconsin since the farm strike started.

DODGE TRUSTEES LOSE CLAIM FOR $2,900,000 TAX REFUND

Supreme Court Denies Review of Dispute Over Amount of Taxable Income.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The Supreme Court today denied the petition of the Detroit Trust Co. and Anna Dodge Dillman, as trustees under the will of Horace E. Dodge, for a review of a ruling by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals declining to return to them approximately $2,900,000 in Federal taxes paid in 1925.

Horace E. Dodge died Dec. 10, 1920, leaving a will placing a large part of his estate in trust, including 50,000 shares of stock in Dodge Brothers. Later through a stock dividend this was increased to 250,000 shares. In May, 1925, Dodge Brothers sold all its assets and paid to trustees $62,500,000 on account of stock they held.

In making out their Federal income tax return the trustees asserted that at the time the stock was delivered to them in 1924 it had a value of $57,500,000, thus making the income subject to tax $5,000,000. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue held the taxable income had to be figured on the value of the stock at the time of Dodge's death, which he placed at $29,343,350, making a taxable income of $33,156,650, asserting an alleged deficiency in income taxes for one year of $4,145,635.

The Board of Tax Appeals sustained the Commissioner holding the taxable income was the difference between the amount received and the value of the stock at the time of Dodge's death. The Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals also took that view.

SEVEN ARE KILLED WHEN AIRPLANE SMASHES HOUSE

National Guard Machine, Leaving Shrewsbury, N. J., Goes Through Rear Wall of Building.

By the Associated Press.

SHREWSBURY, N. J., Nov. 6.—Two National Guard aviators and five persons in a house were killed yesterday when an airplane crashed into a bungalow.

The crash was followed by an explosion. The plane went through the building to the basement. The house was burned. The dead:

Sergt. Alfred Poole, 36.
June King, 5.
Mrs. Margaret King, 28.
Patricia King, 2.
Edward Wilson, 38.
Cora Ragland, 35.

The last five were Negroes. They were trapped as flames, resulting from a gasoline explosion, destroyed their home.

Taking off from Red Bank airport for a photographic flight, the plane got out of control. It plunged through the rear wall of the bungalow, the roof and wall collapsed, then the gasoline tank of the plane exploded.

Another plane, carrying newsmen to the scene from New York, ripped off a wing when it hit an apple tree in landing. The three occupants were slightly shaken.

Johnson, who was co-pilot of the Shippee Johnson expedition to Peru, was president of the Aerial Exploration Co. of New York. Poole was married and the father of an 11-year-old daughter.

By the Associated Press.

FRESNO, Cal., Nov. 6. — Six hours after she crashed while piloting an airplane over an abandoned airfield, Flo Ann Ross, 20 years old, student flyer of Los Angeles, died here last night from injuries. The plane went into a tailspin about 800 feet above the ground.

INDEFINITE DELAY LIKELY ON COUNTY SUPERHIGHWAY

Due to Trouble in Obtaining Right of Way and Uncertain Revenue.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 6.—Construction of the proposed St. Louis County superhighway as a traffic relief route for United States Highways Nos. 40 and 61 may be deferred for an indefinite period, Chief State Highway Engineer Cutler said today, because of delays in obtaining right of way and uncertain future of the road revenues. Building of the road has been delayed for several years, due to controversies over the route.

The superhighway would traverse St. Louis and St. Charles County, connecting the city of St. Louis with highways Nos. 40 and 61 at Wentzville, by a more direct route than at present.

Cutler said the Highway Department so far had obtained about 75 per cent of the right of way through St. Charles County and about 29 per cent through St. Lous County. It has not been the policy of the department to buy right of way, but to have it provided locally.

"The department probably will not let any contracts until it is assured of the right of way," Cutler said. "If all of the right of way through St. Charles County is obtained, a contract might be let for that part of the route from Wentzville to the Missouri River. Construction of this section, together with the proposed new bridge across the Missouri River at Weldon Springs, would give a connection with the Olive Street road in St. Louis County, even if the St. Louis County section were postponed for some time, or not built."

ROW OVER CREDIT REVEALS BIG GOLD FIND IN COLORADO

Prospector Pulls Out Nuggets on Storekeeper; Tells of Successful Search.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 6.—Charlie Starr became angry when he was refused 75 cents credit at a Mancos (Colo.) store. He dug into a pocket of his overalls. "See that?" he shouted and thrust a handful of almost pure gold nuggets across the counter. The tradesman gazed in astonishment. "Where did you get those?" he asked.

Starr told him it was none of his business. He went to another store to make his purchases on credit.

Thus the news of the biggest recent gold strike in Southwestern Colorado got out at the old mining camp where the rich May day vein was discovered and then lost years ago.

Starr, who came with his family to Colorado seven years ago from Kittaning, Pa., and a partner, G. W. Gilmore, struck the "pay dirt" on their own property.

The prospectors followed the age old method of seeking "mother lodes." They panned the Mancos River until they found some small nuggets. Then they combed the hillsides. Starr picked up a red stone Indian arrowhead near the river one day. "It's pointing this way," he said. "Let's have a look."

The "look" extended into a three-weeks' search. Then a piece of "float" was found. A float is a small piece of gold bearing ore, chipped off from the main vein and washed away. After another careful search, they found a small vein of free gold. One chunk contained nearly a quarter pound of gold. The men went to a point below the find and began tunneling into the mountainside. Since then they have taken about $100,000 from the mine.

DOLLAR DROPS TO NEW LOW ON THE LONDON EXCHANGE

It Touches $4.92¾ to the Pound; Rumor Links Market Movement With Gold Buying.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The American dollar fell to new low levels today under pressure thought to be prompted largely by nervousness over its future at one time the quotation went to an extreme rate of $4.92¾ to the pound. Relaxation toward the end of the session resulted in a closing quotation of $4.90¾, compared to the opening at $4.86½. The final rate was still a record low since Great Britain and America went off the gold standard.

French francs also were being converted into sterling in some volume, largely the result of budget uncertainties, but at the same time all gold currencies were weaker on sterling.

The opinion was expressed in some quarters that the exchange movements might be linked with the sale of £300,000 in bar gold today to undisclosed ultimate buyers. There seemed to be a strong feeling the buying might be on American account.

Low Bid on Kansas City Job.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 6.—A combination bid of $4,575,000, submitted by the Boaz-Kiel Construction Co., St. Louis, and the Boyle-Prior Construction Co., Kansas City, was the lowest submitted for construction of Kansas City's new municipal auditorium. Inasmuch as the low bid was approximately a quarter million dollars more than had been estimated, no action of letting a contract was expected today, city officials said. They hope to get the project under way by Thanksgiving.

Johnson Defends NRA And Attacks Its Critics

the press was generally repugnant to him.

"Even as a soldier in the war I did not believe in any suppression of news except as such as helped the enemy—news of projected military movements or conditions of supply and transport," he declared. "I do not believe in any restrictions whatever on the press today."

He said his official interpretation regarding NRA licensing newspapers should "level this silly bugaboo forever."

Says Some Papers Incite Jitters.

Johnson charged that certain sections of the press were inciting jitters by headlines and he appealed to these to "give us a chance, not lend themselves to this primitive witch-doctor dancing."

"We have no protest against criticism," he declared. "Nobody likes criticism, but any public institution is a peril if it is shielded from just criticism. Why, there are some things in a great experimental program like this which are necessarily based on conjecture as to their effect and the only possible way to gauge that effect is to watch its results in public reaction. Only if Government remains fluid and flexible, and invites and acts instantly on criticism, is it possible to carry forward such a plan as the recovery program. This Government needs it, asks for it, could not get along without it.

"A free and unrestricted press is an absolute necessity; it is a powerful, if independent, part of the machinery of Government."

Johnson then added it was the responsibility of the press to be fair and he asked if it were fair for the press to attempt to disturb the public's reliance by "telling it that it ought to fear NRA because it threatens a dictator or impairs the freedom of the press when facts are as I have stated them?"

"Is it fair to say of every act of government which is misunderstood or proves unpopular—oh, that is NRA?" he asked.

"The newspapers know that NRA has nothing whatever to do with farm relief, public works, or monetary policy, or home or farm loans. It has only to do with industrial self-government and fair trade practices," he said.

Johnson denied that an industry or group had been threatened under the NRA.

"There is no aspect of compulsion save in support of the agreement of the bulk of any industry against the chiseling few," he declared. "Who criticises that? Who argues that a selfish minority in any group ought to be permitted to frustrate the action of the rest and to destroy the forward movement of a great nation. Certainly they should not be permitted to do it by the selfish misuse of any such sacred symbols as 'individualism,' 'liberty,' 'the Constitution,' 'the flag,' or 'freedom of the press.' These words belong to the average man as well as to the chiseling minority. It is the co-operation of the average man that is doing more to make these words mean more today than was ever done by all the chiselers great and small since the adoption of the Constitution of the United States."

"Dictatorship of People."

Johnson declared that the fundamental principle of the NRA was working and that nothing could stop it. He said the benefits of the public works program were beginning to be felt, that the Agricultural Adjustment Act had brought a new day in the South and that home and farm loan acts were moving along with plans to liquidize frozen bank assets—all these forces centering soon to bring increased purchasing power to 4,000,000 re-employed.

Johnson denied that the NRA was unconstitutional and said under it a dictator had not been set up.

"If there is a dictatorship in this country, it is a dictatorship of Congress which is to say a dictatorship of the people of the United States," Johnson said.

SILVER AT HIGHEST PRICE RECORDED FOR THREE YEARS

Reaches 41½c an Ounce in Contrast With Record low of 24½c Last December.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Government's new gold-buying policy has caused a rise in the price of silver to the highest level in three years, touching 41½ cents an ounce today, in contrast to the record low of 24½ cents last December. The present price for silver is still considered low, on the basis of average prices over many years.

The new upturn has been accompanied by rumors that Washington might do something for silver, although the only specific news is a proposal to issue $11,000,000 in silver certificates against the metal tendered by Great Britain as a payment on war debts last June.

The Thomas amendment to the farm relief act authorizes the President to accept up to $200,000,000 in silver, valuing it at 50 cents an ounce, against war debt payments. The amendment further permits the President to order free coinage of silver at whatever ratio to gold he may see fit.

WHITE LINE LAUNDRY SIGNS AGREEMENT WITH UNION

The White Line Laundry, 4150 Chippewa street, employing 300 workers, today signed an agreement with the Laundry Workers' Union.

The White Line Co. was one of 29 laundries which previously met the demands of union drivers. Nine laundries have now signed with the inside workers, according to Alfred Schwoerer, union president.

Fifty-eight companies shut down Oct. 17 rather than make a closed shop agreement, and have declared they intend to remain closed until the union demands are withdrawn.

RELATIVES TO SEARCH FOR JOHN M. HOFFMAN'S FORTUNE

Mystery Story Writer Believed to Have Hidden Money in Home.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Relatives took legal steps today toward searching for a reported hidden hoard of gold and currency in a rambling old mansion in suburban River Forest where John M. Hoffman, famous writer of dime novel thrillers, died in 1928 at the age of 82 years.

Dr. Elmer Hoffman of Sharon, Wis., brother of the author, petitioned the Probate Court for authority to conduct the fortune hunt. Author Hoffman was known, the petition said, to carry as much as $40,000 in his pockets.

For 15 years before his death, Hoffman lived quietly but luxuriously in the old home. His eccentric wanderings about the place of nights once gave rise to reports that the house was haunted.

The petition cited that Hoffman apparently derived a handsome income from royalties on his books, among them "Slashaway the Fearless," "The Mad Avenger" and "Gunpowder Jim," and that he disliked banks and therefore hid his money around the house.

His wife died several years before Hoffman, according to the law firm of Beverly & Klaskin, and a fortune in jewels that she possessed was not accounted for. Only about $35 was found in a perfunctory search of the house shortly after Hoffman's death.

GERMAN PRESS DUBS F.D.R. 'PECK'S BAD BOY'

Comment on Gold Policy Describes Him as "Enfant Terrible of World Economy."

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 6. — President Roosevelt was called the Peck's Bad Boy of world economy by German newspapers yesterday, and at the same time they asked the German nation to be thankful that Chancellor Hitler refuses to experiment with this country's currency.

Giving details, in technical accounts of the American gold purchasing operations and explaining the reasons for such purchases, the newspapers anticipate the outcome of the American "experiment" in various ways.

The Diplomatisch Politisch Korrespondenz, however, supports Roosevelt, saying: "The union is at the moment the showplace of an experiment in state-directed commerce, which experiment must be regarded as one of the greatest efforts ever made by liberal capitalism to stem their obstacles." The Korrespondenz remarked, in continuation, on the energy of President Roosevelt in tackling the problems of both capital and labor "in such measure that a student of American economics must have believed impossible."

The Deutsche Zeitung, after characterizing the United States President as "the enfant terrible of world economy," said seldom had so responsible a statesman made so many experiments, most of which must be regarded as all the more remarkable in view of the Wall Street attitude.

LOW WATER AT NIAGARA FALLS

Wind Backing Water Up in Lake Reduces River to Mere Creek.

By the Associated Press.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Nov. 6. —A strong east wind, backing water up in Lake Erie, has reduced the flow over Niagara Falls to a mere trickle in comparison with the normal volume.

The cataract has a strange appearance with many unfamiliar rocks exposed to view. The water level in the gorge below the falls is 20 feet lower than it was last week and the Niagara River is hardly more than a creek.

MAJ. C. A. SHEPARD GETS NEW TRIAL IN WIFE'S DEATH

Supreme Court Says Woman's Statement She Was Poisoned Was Improperly Admitted.

REVERSES RULING OF TWO TRIBUNALS

Decision by Justice Cardozo With No Dissent—Army Surgeon Had Received Life Sentence.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—The Supreme Court today set aside the conviction of Maj. Charles A. Shepard, Army surgeon, for the murder of his wife, Zenana, on the Fort Riley (Kan.) military reservation. His sentence had been fixed at life imprisonment. The decision of the tribunal will have the effect of giving Dr. Shepard a new trial.

The court said the evidence offered that Mrs. Shepard had stated her husband had poisoned her had been improperly admitted.

Maj. Shepard contended his wife had committed suicide, and challenged the admission of evidence quoting her as charging him with poisoning her.

He also attacked the action of the trial court on other grounds.

Mrs. Shepard's Statements.

During the trial, Clara Brown, a nurse who attended Mrs. Shepard, was permitted to testify that Mrs. Shepard had stated "I am being poisoned" and that "Dr. Shepard has poisoned me."

Dr. Shepard contended the alleged conversation occurred 25 days before her death, and that the judge should have warned the jury the statements were not dying declarations.

He also insisted his wife was suffering many hallucinations, that she did not recognize people, and that the jury had attached undue importance to the statements quoted having been made by her.

The decision was handed down by Justice Cardozo, who reported no dissent. It carefully reviewed the question of the admission of certain evidence which the Justice said was the only issue.

The decision took issue with the trial court and the Circuit Court of Appeals in admitting the quoted inable evidence, which related to statements alleged to have been made by Mrs. Shepard.

"Murder" Used in Charge.

Doctor Shepard also declared the trial Judge had wrongly disqualified seven summoned for jury service because they admitted having read an article published in the Kansas City Star a few days before the trial. He insisted the trial judge should have quashed the panel. He also declared he had been deprived of constitutional rights by the instructions given the jury and declared the Judge had stated it was "murder," in his opening charge to the jury, removing from the jurors' mind the defense of suicide.

The tenth Circuit Court of Appeals sustained the action of the trial court against all complaints raised by Dr. Shepard and found that some of the grounds of complaint could not be raised because of the failure of his counsel to ask certain instructions.

"There is circumstantial evidence sufficient to sustain a finding by the jury that to win himself freedom he turned to poison and murder," said the opinion of Justice Cardozo. "Even so, guilt was contested and conflicting inferences are possible. If the defendant asks us to hold that the acceptance of incompetent evidence the scales were weighted by his prejudice and in the end to his undoing.

Talks With Nurse.

"The evidence complained of was offered by the Government in rebuttal when the trial was nearly over. On May, 1929, there was conversation in the absence of the defendant between Mrs. Shepard, then ill in bed, and Clara Brown, a nurse. The patient asked the nurse to go to the closet in the defendant's room and bring a bottle of whisky that would be found on a shelf.

"When the bottle was produced she said that this was the liquor she had taken just before collapsing. She asked whether enough was left to make a test for the presence of poison, insisting that the smell and taste were strange, and then she added the words 'Dr. Shepard has poisoned me.'

"The conversation was provoked. After the first proof of the Government was asked to strike it out, being doubtful of its competence, and this request was granted.

"A little later, however, the topic was renewed, the nurse having testified to statements of Mrs. Shepard as to the prospect of recovery. 'She said she was not going to get well; she was going to die.' With the aid of this rejected evidence, the conversation already summarized was proved a second time. There was a timely challenge to the ruling.

"She said, 'Dr. Shepard has poisoned me.' The admission of the declaration, if erroneous, was no more than unsubstantial error.

The voice of the dead wife was heard in accusation of her husband, and the accusation was accepted as evidence of guilt. If the evidence was incompetent, the verdict may not stand."

"Upon the hearing in this court the Government finds its main prop in the position that what was said by Mrs. Shepard was admissable as a dying declaration," the opinion continued. "This is manifestly a theory upon which it was offered and received. The prop, however, is a broken reed.

"An Indispensible Condition."

"To make out a dying declaration the declarant must have spoken without hope of recovery and in the shadow of impending death. The record furnishes no proof of that indispensible condition. . . .

"She may have thought she was going to die, and have said so to her nurse, but this was consistent with hope, which could not have been put aside without much more to quench it.

"Indeed, a fortnight later, she said to one of her physicians, though her condition was then grave, 'You will get me well, won't you?'

"Fear or even belief that illness will end in death will not avail of itself to make a dying declaration. There must be 'a settled hopeless expectation' that death is near at hand and what is said must have been spoken in the hush of its impending presence.

"Despair of recovery may indeed be gathered from the circumstances if the facts support the inference. There is no unyielding ritual of words to be spoken by the dying.

"Despair may even be gathered though the period of survival outruns the bounds of expectation. What is decisive is the state of mind.

"Even so, the state of mind must be exhibited in the evidence, and not left to conjecture. The patient must have spoken with the consciousness of a swift and certain doom.

"What was said by this patient was not spoken in that mood. There was no warning to her in the circumstances that her words would be repeated and accepted as those of a dying wife, charging murder to her husband, and charging it deliberately and solemnly as a fact within her knowledge.

"To the focus of that responsibility her mind was never brought. She spoke as one ill, giving voice to the beliefs and perhaps the conjectures of the moment."

"Great News," Says Maj. Shepard; to Seek Venue Change.

DENVER, Nov. 6.—"That's great news," Maj. Charles A. Shepard said when he was informed at Fitzsimons Hospital of the decision of the United States Supreme Court in setting aside his conviction. "A change of venue will be asked and I am confident I will be acquitted if the case is tried before another Judge."

ENTERTAINER DEAD

TEXAS GUINAN.

TEXAS GUINAN, BROADWAY NIGHT CLUB STAR, DIES

Succumbs in Hospital at Vancouver, B. C., After Operation — Funeral to Be Held in New York.

By the Associated Press.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 6.—Texas Guinan, night club entertainer, died in a hospital here yesterday, after an operation necessitated by an intestinal illness with which she was stricken a month ago.

Her real name was Mary Louise Cecilia Guinan. She was born in Waco, Tex., about 50 years ago.

She had been making a theatrical tour with her troupe of 40 girls and entered a hospital here last Monday.

Funeral services will be held in New York City at St. Malachi's Church of which she was a member, friends said here today. The body of Miss Guinan will be taken to New York tomorrow by George Guinan of Portland, Ore., a brother.

"I would rather have a square inch of New York than all the rest of the world," she told her manager, Eddie Baker, when she requested she be buried there. She added she wanted the public "who made me" to have an opportunity of seeing her. The body will therefore lie in state in Chicago and New York.

A member of her troupe disclosed that one of her last wisecracks after she was stricken was: "No, I'm not dead. Like the Blue Eagle, I am on my way to recovery."

Studied Music, Made 100 Movies in Early Days of Screen.

Texas Guinan was educated in a convent. After her father moved from his Texas ranch to Denver, she won a scholarship at the Chicago Conservatory of Music. She was cast in more than 100 motion pictures in the early days of the screen, and earned the sobriquet of "The Female William S. Hart."

Soon after 1920 her name became known on Broadway. For financial support she had Larry Fay, slain taxicab and labor promoter.

By 1925 her Three Hundred Club in West Forty-Eighth sereet, New York, was in its heyday. Rotund visitors from the hinterlands were "big butter and egg men." Out-of-town buyers became spendthrifts and merriment reigned after midnight.

Beneath the spotlight, in the center of the crowded clubroom floor, she brought forth her performers, with a special spiel for each. When she wasn't greeting customers with a "Hello, sucker," she was rapping loudly with a noise-making contraption for silence, followed by the inevitable, "Give the little girl a great big hand."

The night clubs Texas ran or presided over were raided 10 times in five years by police and the men she called "Uncle Sammy's dripping dry boys," but Texas herself only spent a few hours in prison before her lawyer got her out on bail.

Tried in Liquor Case.

The climax of this phase came in April, 1929, when she was acquitted in Federal Court in New York of a charge of maintaining a nuisance at the Salon Royale, where she was hostess and the Government charged liquor was sold.

The trial was a sensation. One prohibition agent related that he took his wife a dozen times to the night club, paid $20 a quart for liquor, $25 for champagne and saw waiters slipping bottles wrapped in napkins into the laps of customers, some of whom had to be helped to the street.

None of the agents, however, linked Miss Guinan directly to any liquor selling and from the witness stand she told the Court she never drank liquor or sold it. The jury retired briefly.

Before becoming a night club hostess, she was a cow girl, a singer and a dancer. In her scores of Western movie thrillers she did not use a double; she did all the stunts herself. After her movie career she became a vaudeville trouper, then a night club entertainer.

She was married and divorced three times. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Guinan; the brother, and a sister, Mrs. George Smith of Huntington Park, Cal.

Defendant in Hussey Estate Suit

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

MRS. TENNIE HUSSEY.

THIS snapshot was taken in court today at the hearing over the $1,000,000 trust estate. The suit for accounting was filed by her daughter, Mrs. James Bailey.

FINAL WITNESS HEARD IN HUSSEY ESTATE CASE

Mrs. James Bailey Testifies in Her Action for Accounting of Trust.

Mrs. James Bailey was the final witness today in the trial of the principal issues in her suit for an accounting of the $1,000,000 trust estate created by her father, the late Dennis B. Hussey, who was president of the Hussey Tie Co.

The trust estate consists of stock in that company, which has withdrawn from the railroad tie business and is engaged in investing its funds, but Mrs. Bailey testified she had been under the impression that the trust estate and the tie company were separate.

Mrs. Bailey said she had assumed that the estate in trust consisted of more or less permanent investments made by her father, and she had not associated the dividends she received from the trust with loans made by it.

Her suit, which is against her mother, Mrs. Tennie Hussey, and her brothers, Robert and Nolen, as trustees, objects particularly to loans totaling more than $400,000 to a company organized by Robert and loans of $25,000 to Nolen.

The contract under which funds were lent to Robert's company was made in February, 1928, and among the objections Mrs. Bailey raised was that at that time she was under 21. Her baptismal certificate, introduced today, showed that she was born in April, 1906. Mrs. Bailey said she had always thought she was born in 1907 and her mother had given that date when testifying in a deposition before the trial.

With the conclusion of testimony in the principal case, the defendants submitted a demurrer to a cross-bill filed by Mrs. Tamara Hussey, widow of J. Edward Hussey, another son of the founder of the trust. She is seeking to have consolidated with it another trust fund which has been administered separately. Circuit Judge Calhoun reserved his decision.

TELLS OF SHOOTING 6 MILES INTO AIR IN GERMAN ROCKET

Brother of Inventor Quoted as Saying First Explosion Knocked Him Unconscious.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The first successful passenger rocket flight was achieved Oct. 29 on the Island of Rugen in the Baltic Sea, according to a special dispatch from Rugen.

The flight was made in secrecy under auspices of the German Air Ministry, which has purchased the plane, it was stated.

Otto Fischer, brother of Bruno Fischer, inventor of the rocket, was shot up 32,000 feet—more than six miles—into the air in the 24-foot steel projectile.

Fischer, at the peak of the rocket's trajectory, pulled the ring of a parachute attached to it, it was said, and floated down to safety, shaken but uninjured. The ascent lasted 10 minutes, 26 seconds.

Doubtful of returning alive, the dispatch adds, Otto entered the rocket and Bruno threw the switch. There was a blinding flash and the rocket shot out of its steel frame so fast it could not be seen.

It reappeared, a speck floating earthward, its pilot manipulating the fins so as to land on the island. Otto was quoted as stating:

"I left the ground in a deafening roar. An unbearable weight crushed me to the floor and I lost consciousness for a moment. When I came to my senses, the altimeter was flickering at 32,000 feet. It began to drop rapidly.

"The asbestos floor was tremendously hot. The rocket was propelled only 200 yards by the initial explosion. It was driven farther by the remainder of the rockets in the tail. They were released automatically at timed intervals."

Safe Feeding for Your Baby

In a leading medical journal it is noted that, "The feeding of an infant by routine feeding formulas and instructions distributed by food manufacturers or according to directions, printed materials, or advice of any person others than the attending physician who can personally observe the condition of the baby during the first year, is of fundamental importance to its health."

The point emphasized is that "circumstances alter cases" and that no set of directions for feeding baby can be correct under any or all conditions.

The safest plan—whether for feeding baby or for getting attention for an ill affecting any member of the family—is to call the doctor and follow his advice implicity.

PRISONER LEAPS 50 FEET TO DEATH

Veterinary Surgeon Serving Life Term Had Asked to Be Hanged.

By the Associated Press.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 6. — Dr. Harold N. Guilfoyle, Hartford veterinary surgeon serving a life sentence for second-degree murder in connection with the shooting of Mrs. Clare Kavanaugh Gaudet here in January, 1928, committed suicide today in the presence of guards by leaping 50 feet from the top tier of the main cell block at the State prison at Wethersfield. He landed on his head on a flagstone floor and was dead when guards reached him.

The spectacular act immediately recalled Dr. Guilfoyle's petition of June, 1932, that his conviction of second-degree murder be changed to first-degree and that he be sentenced to death by hanging.

Dr. Guilfoyle, who steadfastly denied he killed Mrs. Gaudet, had made several attempts to obtain his freedom prior to his request last year that he be hanged as a "humanitarian and merciful act."

He contended that since the indictment charged him with first-degree murder, the three Judges presiding at his trial could not convict him of second degree murder.

In his plea he said: "There is nothing in my petition for a writ of habeas corpus that can be interpreted as an admission of guilt."

Mrs. Gaudet was shot as she was leaving Dr. Guilfoyle's apartment in Hartford. The veterinarian shot himself in the right temple at the same time. During his trial, the State charged he and Mrs. Gaudet had veen involved in a love affair.

The organization announced it would submit a liquor control bill to the Legislature providing for sale of liquors by the drink in licensed saloons, hotel dining rooms and restaurants. Another meeting will be held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the German House.

PETER ARNO KNOCKED OUT IN FIGHT IN CLUB

Sally O'Neill Said to Have Wielded Chair on Cartoonist's Opponent.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 6. — Peter Arno, New York cartoonist, was knocked out in an exchange of fisticuffs in the fashionable Embassy Club early today. The dispute allegedly was with Drexel Biddle Steel, actor and member of a prominent Philadelphia family, but Steel said the knockout blow was struck by his business manager, Gordon Butler.

Sally O'Neill, movie actress who accompanied Arno to the club and was reported to be the unwitting cause of the fight, was said by some witnesses to have ended the altercation by rapping Steel over the head with a chair. Miss O'Neill, however, denied she had any part in the fight.

Steel said Arno apparently had taken exception to his speaking to Miss O'Neill as he passed Arno's table. Later, Steel said, Arno came over to his table and made "a pass at me."

"My astonishment about the whole affair was increased because of the fact that I have known Mr. Arno for all of 10 years," said the actor. "The only provocation that I gave him whatsoever was to call him by his own name of Curtis, for his name is Curtis Arno Peters, and I can't imagine that as the reason. I can't believe that he objected to my speaking to Miss O'Neill since that was only common courtesy."

Miss O'Neill said:

"What happened was this: Mr. Arno and I were in the Embassy, and when he left the table for a moment I noticed that he was engaged in conversation with another man, and that there seemed to be a little argument between them. Mr. Arno was irritated. I prevailed on him to sit down at the table and distracted his attention from the trouble, whatever it was. I then suggested that he play a piece on the piano, and this he did with the orchestra, and while he was doing this, Mr. Steel, or whatever his name is, for I scarcely know him, passed by my table and said something about it being very nice of me to act the way I did about the little spat.

"Mr. Arno observed the man at my table, and asked me what he had said. He then went over to Steel's table and Mr. Arno struck at him suddenly."

BODY TWICE REPLEVINED IN DISPUTE OF RELATIVES

Court to Decide Which Is to Arrange Burial of Woman Killed by Automobile.

The body of Mrs. Mary Green, Negro, of East St. Louis, who was killed by an automobile there Friday, is held by an undertaker under a replevin order, pending a court hearing to settle a controversy between relatives over priority of claim to the body. Mrs. Green had a small insurance policy.

R. M. C. Green, Negro undertaker whose ambulance wase first called to the scene of the accident, was instructed by a niece of the dead woman, Mrs. Nellie Vaught, to proceed with funeral arrangements. However, Mrs. Anna Jenkins, an aunt by marriage, insisted that Undertaker William Officer should conduct the funeral. When Green refused to surrender the body, she got a replevin order and Constable Dan Foley forced Green to turn it over to Officer.

Mrs. Vaught then countered with a second replevin and, just as Officer was about to embalm the body, Constable Jenkins ordered him to turn it back to Green, who proceeded with the embalming. A hearing will be held Friday to determine whether Mrs. Jenkins or Mrs. Vaught is the nearest relative.

HEIRESS SAYS SHE WILL MARRY COUNT

Mrs, Pickering Plans to Join Man Who Sailed to Avoid Deportation.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Mrs. Merry Fahrney Pickering, 22-year-old heiress to the millions of the late Dr. Peter Fahrney, came home here today prepared to persuade her parents to let her marry Giorgio di Giorgio, said to be an Italian Count.

She is sure that all her troubles will soon be ironed out and that she and Di Giorgio of Rome and Chile will be able soon to get married, possibly in Chile.

"I've come home to get a passport and some money, and then I'll go to him," she said.

While she is striving to win the consent of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Fahrney, the Count is on the seas, bound for Chile aboard the fruit steamer Platona, at the request of detectives of the Bureau of Alien Investigation in New York.

"Everything the newspapers have printed about me and the Count is a pack of lies," said Mrs. Pickering, who was divorced only a short time ago from Hugh Pickering, son of a Chicago seamstress.

"They were given out by my mother and father and Weymouth Kirkland, the family attorney, who was sent to New York after me and who came home with me."

The young woman met the Count through her husband, when the Pickerings were living here at the Drake Hotel in 1931. Mrs. Pickering was aboard the ship until the Count sailed.

$6,000,000 LENT BY LAND BANK IN THIS DISTRICT

1869 Farmers Provided for in First Six Months of Mortgage Refinancing Program.

Loans totaling $6,000,000 to 1869 farms in Missouri, Illinois and Arkansas have been made by the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis during the first six months of the Federal farm mortgage refinancing program, according to a report made today by Wood Netherland, general agent in St. Louis of the Farm Credit Administration.

Operations of the bank have been speeded and nearly half of the loans were made in October, the last month of the period, when 856 farmers received $2,426,000.

Since May 1, when the refinancing program began under the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act, the bank has received 26,400 applications for loans totaling $100,000,000. That record, for six months, exceeds the record for the six years prior to 1933 when 16,400 applications were made for $86,000,000.

Two types of loans are made by the bank. The regular Federal Land Bank loan is a first mortgage which may be for as much as 50 per cent of the value of the land and 20 per cent of the value of buildings. Such loans, made through local associations, bear interest at 5 per cent and run usually for 36 years.

An emergency loan, authorized by legislation this year, may be a first mortgage up to 75 per cent of the value of farm and chattels, or a second mortgage which would not increase the indebtedness on the farm beyond the 75 per cent limit. These loans are at 5 per cent for 13 years and during the first three years no principal payments are required.

Trucks Force Railroad to Quit.

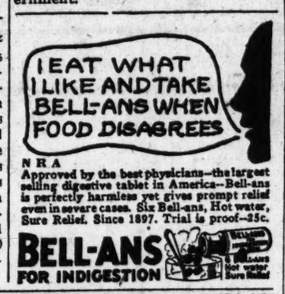

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Abandonment by the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Co. of 25 miles of its line in Kansas was authorized today by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The line, which runs from Colony, Kan., to Yates Center, was completed in 1887 and has been operated as a branch line since 1901. The authorization was made over protest of communities along the line but the commission found that there was ample railroad service in the territory and that trucks were handling from 50 to 60 per cent of the less than carload traffic.

ASSESSMENT ON CITY BRIDGE IS INCREASED $1,000,000

St. Louis Planning to Test Action of St. Clair Board If Protest Fails.

The tax assessment on the Illinois end of the Municipal Bridge has been increased from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000 by the St. Clair County Board of Review, Comptroller Nolte was notified today. The board said the increase was due to the construction of two additional rail approaches to the bridge on the East Side which, however, are not in use.

Nolte declared the assessment was "entirely unjustified." He will protest to the board, although previous objections by the city have been unavailing. The city probably will take the increase to court. It has litigation pending over the 1931 and 1932 assessment of $2,000,000, which Nolte called excessive. Only half of the tax bills for those two years has been paid by the city. The full bill for last year was $115,506. The estimated bill for this year, at the new valuation, would be $174,000.

If excessive taxation is kept up, the vehicle toll on the bridge will have to be retained after application of the toll funds to retirement of $4,600,000 poor relief bonds is ended, Nolte declared. In 1920 St. Clair County assessed the Illinois end of the bridge at $300,000, raising the figure to $450,000 the next year, $475,000 in 1923 and $1,000,000 in 1927. Since 1920 the city has paid $594,739 in Illinois taxes on the bridge, including the half payments for the last two years.

SOVIET GOLD RESERVE INCREASES $48,000,000

Amtorg Trading Corporation Reports Gain for Year Ending Oct. 1

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Amtorg Trading Corporation has issued a survey of Russian financial and trade conditions showing an increase of $48,000,000 in the gold reserve of the note issue department of the State Bank of Soviet Russia for the year.

The total for Oct. 1, 1932, was 808,482,380 rubles ($416,368,000 at par); a year ago, 714,515,410 rubles ($367,975,000 at par).

For the first eight months of this year, the Soviet Union had a favorable balance of trade of 81,090,000 rubles ($41,760,000 at par), contrasted with an unfavorable balance in 1932 of 212,486,000 rubles ($109,400,000 at par). Amtorg, the Soviet trading agency in the United States, said its outstanding obligations have been reduced from $66,000,000 two years ago to $22,000,000.

The survey of conditions further sets forth:

"In the first nine months of 1933, the coal output totaled 51,718,000 metric tons, 14.6 per cent above that of last year.

"Pig iron output for the period (nine months) totaled 5,136,000 tons and steel 4,857,000 tons—13.4 and 10.3 per cent, respectively, above that recorded during the first three-quarters of 1932.

"The number of locomotives produced during the period was 694 as compared with 599 last year.

"The production of tractors for the nine months totaled 54,624, which was 4000 more than were produced during the entire year of 1932."

Latest reports on the handling of the bumper grain crop, the report said, showed that on Oct. 12, 72.8 per cent of the harvested grain had been threshed. The threshing covered an area of 149,610 acres as compared with 107,196,000 acres on the same date a year ago.

Daily freight car loadings throughout the Soviet Union in September averaged 54,135 cars—3.3 per cent above September, 1932.

SPEAKERS URGE BOND ISSUE TO BE VOTED ON NOV. 21

Ex-Congressman Dyer and Dr. Kane Address Mass Meeting in Support of It.

Former Congressman L. C. Dyer and Dr. R. Emmet Kane, Mayor Dickmann's adviser in medical affairs, addressed a mass meeting at the Pine Street Y. M. C. A. yesterday in the interest of the special bond issue election to be held Nov. 21.

Approval of the bond issue proposal, Dyer said, will provide $700,000 needed to complete the new City Hospital for Negroes and $1,300,000 for other hospital purposes, assuming a $500,000 grant of Federal public works funds will be obtained. The proposition is to divert $1,500,000 provided in the 1923 bond issue for an approach to the Municipal Bridge, no longer needed, to hospital purposes.

It would make possible, Dyer said, besides completion of the hospital for Negroes, the construction of two ward buildings at Koch Hospital; two dormitories and an industrial building at St. Louis Training School for the Feeble-Minded; two solariums at City Sanitarium; the addition of one story to the ward buildings of City Hospital No. 1 and lesser improvements at other city institutions.

DISCUSSES HOPE OF LEONID METEOR DISPLAY NOV. 14-18

Society Officer in Community Forum Radio Period Tells History of Astronomical Bodies.

The Leonid meteors, which made their last appearance in great profusion in 1867, may give a brilliant display Nov. 14-18, when the main swarm is scheduled for its 33-year appearance, J. Wesley Simpson, regional director of the American Meteor Society, said yesterday in the Community Forum radio period.

Although the Leonids appear annually in November, they were observed in vast numbers in 1833 and 1867. In 1900 they failed to appear as expected, Simpson said, astronomers advancing an explanation that one of the planets had switched the main swarm from its track.

Astronomers were disappointed last November at the meager display of Leonids, but are hopeful that the main swarm may yet appear this year.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you 90 per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Nov. 6.—Simon Scott, 27 years old, his wife, Ella, 25 and their son, Earl, 3, were shot to death at Mingo, near here yesterday in what Coroner Charles Wells said was "double murder and suicide motivated by marital discord."

The family resided in a railroad camp car. Officers said Scott was shot twice in the neck and head, Mrs. Scott was shot twice in the face and the child wounded in the back. A shotgun lay beside Scott. Authorities said he had been drinking. Scott filed a suit for divorce three months ago, but later became reconciled with his wife.

ROCK ISLAND ROUTE AS COUNTY BOULEVARD

Use of Right-of-Way If Railroad Abandons Tracks West of De Baliviere Discussed.

Referring to the possibility of converting the Rock Island right-of-way into a boulevard between De Baliviere avenue and a point in St. Louis County, the Traffic Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce announced today that the railroad might seek to abandon the right-of-way if it obtained permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to quit using the Wabash tracks east of De Baliviere.

The bureau said that examination of documents filed by the road with the Interstate Commerce Commission disclosed that the directors had authorized an application to abandon the unnecessary section of track west of De Baliviere when it authorized the application to quit using the Wabash tracks.

The disclosure, the bureau said, was significant also in view of the city's effort to seek elimination of the grade crossing at De Baliviere avenue. The possibility of making a boulevard of the Rock Island right-of-way has been discussed by the City Plan Commission and the County Plan Association.

The bureau said it had been informed by the Rock Island's law department that no definite plan concerning the tracks west of De Baliviere had been adopted, although permission might be sought to abandon any part of the tracks which might prove unnecessary.

At present the Rock Island brings its passenger trains to De Baliviere on its own tracks, then to Grand boulevard over the Wabash tracks and into Union Station on Terminal Railroad tracks. If the road obtains authority to quit using the Wabash tracks it would probably bring the passenger trains into Union Station through North St. Louis.

GENERAL AMERICAN LIFE CO. SUED ON $339 POLICY LOAN

Dr. Leon A. Feinstein Alleges There Was "Collusion" Before Transfer of Missouri Life Assets.

Suit for $339 against the General American Life Insurance Co. and State Superintendent of Insurance O'Malley was filed in Circuit Court today by Dr. Leon A. Feinstein, 5567 Waterman avenue.

The amount sought represents an original loan value on an insurance policy taken out by Dr. Feinstein in the Missouri State life Insurance Co. in 1928. The General American Life Insurance Co. recently purchased the assets of the Missouri State Life.

Dr. Feinstein alleges that when he sought a $339 loan last July, he was "stalled, tricked and pushed around" by officers of the Missouri State Life, who, he charges, were "in collusion and conspiracy" at the time to transfer the assets to the General American Co. He objects to the 50 per cent lien placed on policies under terms of the purchase contract, which has been approved by court. He asks attorney's fees and 10 per cent of the principal amount as damages for the delay.

POLICEMAN HIT, KILLED BY AUTO. AT CRASH SCENE

Joseph Theobald Jr. Struck by Another Car as He Signals Approaching Tow Truck.

A Coroner's verdict of criminal carelessness was returned today against Dennis Barnett, a decorator, in the death of Patrolman Joseph Theobald Jr., 36 years old, who was killed by Barnett's second-hand automobile in front of Triangle Park, 4100 South Broadway, early yesterday.

Theobald was hit and carried about 60 feet when he stepped into the street to halt a garage truck, which other officers had called to haul away an automobile figuring in an earlier accident. Ralph Finnegan, driver of the tow truck, testified he was slowing down in response to the officer's flashlight signal and Theobald had turned and was signaling to Barnett to halt when he was hit. Finnegan said the other machine appeared to be traveling in excess of the 30-mile speed limit. His account was corroborated by another eyewitness.

Barnett, who lives at 6233 Famous avenue, did not testify on advice of counsel. Two women and a man riding with him said they did not clearly see what happened. The party had several drinks of beer during the evening and had gone for a ride in Barnett's car, which he bought Saturday for $50, the witnesses stated. Barnett will be released on bond pending presentation of the case to the grand jury.

Police were called to Triangle Park at 3:40 a. m. Sunday, when the driver of an Essex coach departed on foot after striking a parked machine. Theobald was assigned to watch the abandoned machine until the towing truck arrived. He was struck shortly after 4 o'clock and died on the way to Alexian Brothers' Hospital.

Several hours after the accident a man identifying himself as Anthony Bosler, a tile setter, 2859 McNair avenue, reported to police that he was the driver of the Essex, which he said belongs to his brother.

Theobald had been a policeman since February, 1930, and was attached to Wyoming Street Station. He resided at 6027 Leona avenue with his wife, Lillian, and two young children. Funeral services will be Wednesday morning from St. Stephen's Catholic Church, with burial in SS. Peter and Paul's Cemetery.

Man Killed in Collision of Autos in East St. Louis.

George Sauers, 21-year-old packing-house employe, was killed last night when his automobile struck another and crashed into a telephone pole at Twenty-first street and St. Clair avenue, in East St. Louis.

J. C. Fischer, chairman of the East St. Louis Community Fund, told police he was driving west in St. Clair avenue and Sauers was going east. Sauers' car swerved to the left side of the street, caromed off Fischer's automobile and hit the pole, Fischer said.

Sauers was pronounced dead of a fractured skull at St. Mary's Hospital. He lived at 1506 North Thirteenth street, East St. Louis.

Woman, 65, Seriously Injured When Struck by Auto.

Mrs. Annie Wiley, 65-year-old widow, 4976 Rosalie avenue, suffered injuries of the spine and skull when struck by an automobile at Union boulevard and Easton avenue yesterday afternoon. The driver, William Sutherland, 3929 Lincoln avenue, said an automatic traffic signal at the corner was in his favor and Mrs. Wiley stepped from a safety zone in the street into the path of his car.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Morath, 7350 Cornell avenue, University City, were hurt when an automobile driven by Mrs. Morath hit a street light standard in front of 3813 Washington boulevard early yesterday. He suffered a skull injury. She was cut on the legs.

Fire Department Capt. Thomas Murphy, Hook and Ladder Company No. 13, suffered fractured ribs and a skull injury when hit by an automobile while attempting to cross the street in front of 3828 South Broadway, Saturday night.

Four persons were hurt in a headon collision of two automobiles in front of 5855 Lindell drive last night. James De Vaney, 5823 Julian avenue, driver of one machine, was picked up unconscious by police and taken to St. Luke's Hospital, where he was pronounced suffering from a skull injury. The others hurt, occupants of the second machine, were: Miss Mary Bunting, a stenographer, 5047 Waterman avenue, fractured arm; Miss Violet Kane, 3947 Russell boulevard, lacerations; Walter Ingamellis of Kirkwood, the driver, cuts of the face and scalp.

The Rev. Louis J. Sieck, pastor, presented an engraved gold memorial plate to Mr. and Mrs. Damschroeder in behalf of the Sunday school.

SAYS "OLD GUARD" LEARNED NOTHING FROM 1932 DEFEAT

Head of Progressive Republican National Committee Asserts Conservatives Back Big Business.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—The "old guard" Republicans of Illinois are preparing for a fight following a bitter attack by the progressive wing of the party.

Newton Jenkins, head of the Progressive Republican National Committee, declared:

"Apparently they learned nothing from the defeat (of Hoover in 1932). They now propose to an astonished electorate, in order to return to power, a renewal of their previous alliance between 'big business' and various other reactionary elements.

"'Big business' has had its day. The people are hopefully searching for principle, and candidates who are willing to meet the issues of today."

Twelve Checks

of unusual value

Of all the services that we are privileged to render, we can most heartily commend our One-Year Monthly Income plan.

After the death of the insured we deliver twelve checks, one every month for a year. A favorite amount is $100 monthly.

These ready dollars in that trying first year are beyond valuation. They furnish comfort and assurance; a chance to collect thoughts, revive courage and lay new plans.

The premium, paid once, twice or four times a year, runs about a nickel a day at age twenty, a dime in the early forties or a few cents more if you start later in life.

Larger amounts or longer periods can be arranged. A choice of policy forms is available. Premium referred to above is for "Endowment at Age 85."

Set up this safeguard for your home circle and they will never be caught unprepared. It will make an ideal supplement to your lump-sum insurance.

COLDS Go Thru 3 Stages

—and They're Far Easier Relieved in the First than in the Second or Third!

A cold ordinarily goes through 3 stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is the time to "nail" a cold.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment for colds. It is expressly a cold remedy and not a preparation good for half a dozen other things as well. It is direct and internal which is what a cold, an internal infection, requires. It is also complete—it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is inviting trouble. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and refuse a substitute.

Almost Instant Relief From Neuralgia

For Quick Relief Say BAYER Aspirin When You Buy

Here is quicker relief from pain—the fastest safe relief, it is said, ever known. This is due to a scientific discovery by which BAYER Aspirin starts "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

The illustration of the glass here tells the story. A Bayer tablet starts to disintegrate or dissolve—go to work—almost instantly. This means quick relief from pain—fewer lost hours from headache and pains of neuritis, rheumatism. And safe relief. For genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

When you buy, see that you get the genuine Bayer Aspirin. The best way is never to ask for aspirin by the name "aspirin" alone. But if you want Bayer Aspirin's quick relief always to say "BAYER Aspirin."

WHY BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop a Bayer Tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches bottom, it has started to disintegrate.

What it does in this glass it does in your stomach. Hence its fast action.

$846,591 OF FEDERAL LOANS ARE PASSED ON

St. Louis Projects Included in Those Sent to Washington for Final Action.

Applications for Federal loans and grants aggregating $846,591, for municipal improvements estimated to cost $1,232,743, were passed on last week by the State Advisory Board of the Public Works Administration. They have been sent to Washington for final action, without announcement of the board's recommendation.

Among the requests on which the board passed was that of St. Louis for a grant of $118,200 to aid in the development of parks and playgrounds, to cost $487,600. The balance will be met from 1923 bond funds. This work, it is estimated, will employ 265 men for seven months. Other applications acted on, and total costs in each instance are:

Concordia, electric plant, $70,000; Belton, electric plant, $60,000; Macon, electric plant extension, $178,000; California, electric plant, $135,000; Concordia, telephone system, $16,500; Vandalia, water system improvement, $106,466; Steelville, water system, $41,541; Neosho, sewage treatment plant, $40,000; Steelville, sewer system, $41,104; Weston, sewer system, $42,500; Smithville, school improvement, $14,032.

Of 73 applications for loans and grants filed with the board so far, 55 have been acted on by the board and Washington has made 13 allowances to date. The only cases pending before the board are seven requests filed in the last week and applications of Springfield, O'Fallon and Willow Springs for water systems, of Monroe City and New London for electric plants, of Hannibal, Washington, and a Clark City district for bridges, and of Buchanan County for a lake development. Joplin has temporarily withdrawn two applications.

A petition was filed last week for a $3,550,000 loan to the Kansas City Market, a private corporation, to help pay for a $5,160,916 market building, which would be 16 stories high, with a tower rising seven stories higher.

NRA RULING ON TRADE GROUPS' SELF-GOVERNMENT

Johnson Says They Must First Be Organized to Take Care of Selves.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Recovery Administrator Johnson yesterday issued a statement informing trade associations that code authorities and other industrial agencies will be given self-government only as they are organized to administer it and that they will not be given charge of labor disputes until worker representation is provided for on all agencies handling employe complaints.

The statement said:

"The function of code administration lies primarily with the code authority provided for in each code. Nevertheless, it is the responsibility of the National Recovery Administration that the code be administered. Whenever, as in the bituminous coal code, an industry is organized for self-discipline that function will be accorded it. But in many instances industries are not so organized that they have machinery appropriate to the adjustment of complaints of violations of the trade practice and other provisions of their code.

"The organization of very few industries is at this time appropriate for the adjustment of complaints of violations of the labor provisions of codes. While, in every case, where the authority is organized, adjustment of fair trade practices will be left to the code authorities, as a general rule the code provides no plan for the adjustment of their labor provisions. The code authority will be permitted to function on labor disputes when provision is made for adequate representation of labor on all committees, boards or other agencies set up to entertain and adjust complaints by employes against their employers for violations of labor provisions."

Clean Heat

makes a cleaner home!

Those who live in the County's gas-heated homes can tell you. So can your decorator!

WHY is that big household disturbance, called "Spring cleaning", so necessary? Why do you wait until Spring to redecorate or have the wall-paper cleaned? Why are the rugs and drapes hustled off to the cleaner at that time? Why does everything get so dirty in Winter?

DIRTY HEAT just naturally leaves its mark on everything . . . and you have to clean up its dirt no matter what it costs, don't you? And if you have a certain kind of heat, no doubt your decorator has frankly and honestly told you that its smudge can't even be cleaned off the walls successfully.

You know how easy it is to cook with gas. It is still easier to heat with it. As long as you already have gas in your home, why not make further use of it?

Imagine the difference and the joy of having heat that is as clean as sunshine.

Well, that's just how clean Gas Heat is.

Cleanliness is only one of its advantages. Besides being truly clean, it is uniform. You know what that means to health. Even the air you breathe is cleaner and purer. And you never have to touch the furnace, or even think about it. That means something, too.

MORE THAN 1400 FAMILIES in the County already heat their homes with gas. More are changing to it every day . . . changing from coal, coke and oil . . . trading in oil burners and the fuel they have on hand.

These people have gone into the cost question thoroughly, and they appreciate the economy of heating with gas.

Let us tell you what it will cost to heat your home in this modern, clean, carefree way. We will have our engineer survey your home, entirely without cost or obligation. It will be done scientifically and so accurately that, should you decide to put in gas heat, we will give you a written agreement to remove the gas burner we install in your furnace and refund every cent you have paid for it, if the cost of gas exceeds a specified amount. All you have to do is phone us.

Wouldn't You Like to Trade in Your Heating Troubles on Gas Heat?

Matt Berlingen, night shipping clerk at the Schorr-Kolkschneider Brewery Co., 2537 Natural Bridge avenue, and two visitors were locked in a beer cooler early yesterday by two robbers who took $132 of company money and $5 of Berlingen's own money from him. SLAYER PLEADS GUILTY AFTER WINNING NEW TRIAL

Man Who Shot Brother Gets Two Years; Jury Had Fixed Penalty at 12.

After Circuit Judge Hoffmeister had granted George Biehl a new trial following his conviction of second-degree murder, Biehl pleaded guilty of manslaughter today in the same case and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary. The punishment set by the jury in his trial last May was 12 years.

Biehl, 27 years old, shot and killed his brother, William, last Feb. 4 at their home at 4208 Clayton avenue in a quarrel over the affections of George Biehl's wife. In arguing the motion for a new trial, Ben Weinberger, Biehl's lawyer, presented authorities to show that the Court had erred in allowing the Circuit Attorney to attempt to impeach witnesses' testimony by confronting them with their testimony before the grand jury.

After reviewing the cases cited by Weinberger, Judge Hoffmeister agreed that his contention was correct. Biehl, in court when Judge Hoffmeister announced his decision, then changed his plea to "guilty."

MAYOR CALLS CONFERENCE ON LIQUOR TAX QUESTION

Wants to Determine City's Policy in Event of Repeal of Prohibition.

A meeting to consider the city's policy on liquor taxation is being called by Mayor Dickmann in his office Wednesday, at the request of St. Louis members of the Legislature, in anticipation of the repeal of prohibition.

Among those invited to attend are members of the Mayor's cabinet, Aldermen, Comptroller Nolte, President Neun of the Board of Aldermen and representatives of the brewing industry. The theory is that the city should be entitled to liquor revenue. The present State law legalizing 3.2 beer prohibits municipalities from taxing its sale, but the Legislature is considering a new liquor control law.

One question, the Mayor said, is whether places selling only 3.2 beer, not handling hard liquor, should be exempt from taxation. A suggestion, in event the return of the saloon is permitted, has been to limit their number to 1500 in the city and charge each a $1500 annual license. The saloon license before prohibition was $900.

REECE STANDS PAT AGAINST U. S. OVER INSULL

emier Tsaldaris Regrets American Government Attaches So Much Importance to Decision of Court in Athens.

OTE DENOUNCING TREATY DELIVERED

ct Having Proved Useless, Washington Serves Notice to Terminate It—Declares Greek Position Untenable.

he Associated Press.

THENS, Nov. 6.—The United tes' protest denouncing the extradition treaty with Greece as thless, in view of the verdict in case of Samuel Insull, was nded by Lincoln MacVeagh, the erican Minister, to the director Foreign Ministry today. The reign Minister himself was abt at Salonica.

Premier Tsaldaris in an interw declared he had requested the istry of Justice to go through file in the Insull case and demine whether anything important escaped the court. He expressed personal opinion that Greek ice stood as the highest and expressed regret that the ited States was so persistent and ached so much importance to the rt's verdict.

Referring to the United States' ire to denounce the treaty, he d this was their privilege, but ed that before it could become ective a certain time must se since it is impossible to dence the treaty on a day's notice.

t of American Note Denouncing Treaty as Useless.

y Associated Press.

ASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—Follows is the text of the United States e to Greece formally denouncing extradition treaty with Greece ause Greece refused to honor United States' request for the render of Samuel Insull, fugitive ities magnate, for trial in Chio in connection with the colse of his various companies:

I am instructed to inform ur excellency that the United es Government has learned to astonishment that the Greek thorities have again declined honor the request of the Unit States for the extradition of muel Insull, a fugitive from erican justice.

My Government finds it difficult to reconcile this unusual deion with the admission of the mpetent authorities that the itive committed the acts with ich he was charged and that se acts are illegal and fraudent both in the United States d Greece.

Without going into the deils of the decision, is is evident at the authorities attempted tually to try the case instead confining themselves to ascerining whether the evidence mitted by the United States vernment was sufficient to jusy the fugitive's apprehension d commitment for trial. There n be no doubt that the quesn of criminal intent referred by the Hellenic Government uld be fairly and judiciously ssed upon by the courts in the ited States. I am to add that y Government considers the cision utterly untenable and a ear violation of the American-ellenic treaty of extradition ned at Athens on May 6, 1931. asmuch as the Greek Govment have now seen fit on o occasions to deny the just quest of the United States ade under the provisions of the ove-mentioned treaty, it is apent that this treaty, although milar in terms to treaties which e United States has found effective in extraditing fugitives m other countries, cannot be ied upon to effect the extradin of fugitives who have fled to reece, my Government therefore nsiders that from the American int of view the treaty is enely useless. Accordingly I am structed to give formal notice rewith of my Government's deunciation of the treaty with a ew to its termination at the rliest date possible under its rmanent provisions.

The note was cabled to United es Minister Lincoln MacVeagh at Athens for delivery to Foreign Minister of Greece. constitutes the formal year's ice provided for termination he treaty by either party.

Borah Demands Enforcement Of Anti-Trust Laws to Put End to 'Brazen Program of Exploitation'

Declares 'Buy Now' Campaign Is Receding and Prices Are Beyond Reason—Urges Currency Inflation.

By the Associated Press.

PARMA, Idaho, Nov. 6.—Declaring the administration's "buy now" campaign "is not progressing at all," Senator William E. Borah of Idaho last night demanded restoration and enforcement of the anti-trust laws to stop "a brazen program of exploitation" through high prices.

Speaking before an assembly of residents of this rural community on the Boise River, the Senator declared the "buy now" campaign was "in fact, receding."

"The sales volume as shown by experts," he continued, "is significantly unfavorable. There is perhaps more than one reason for this, but the controlling reason is the prices which confront the buyer.

Charges Price Fixing.

"Many of these prices are high beyond all reason and conscience. If they were 'blue eagle' prices, it would make this bird a bird of prey instead of a bird of protection. They are in many instances, in my judgment, the prices fixed by combines and monopolies, sheltered by the broad wings of the double headed eagle. Hiding behind the increase of labor and the processing tax, making these an excuse, prices have been pushed up beyond all reason. Therefore, when people are urged to buy they are really urged to buy, in many instances, at monopolistic prices.

"We are gathering the fruits, in a large measure, of the mistaken act in suspending the anti-trust laws last winter. It should not have been done. The people are paying for that mistake now. It was assumed that the public would be protected through these codes, but that assumption was based upon wrong premises and was made without a sufficient desire to restrain monopolies."

"Surrender to Monoply."

Describing it as a "long continued story," he said, "For 20 years both the leading political parties have fiercely assailed monopolies during the campaign, to become not only silent but subservient after the campaign was over. The old parties have surrendered to monopolies in these recent years as completely as the Democratic and Whig parties surrendered to slavery before the war."

Declaring prices of things "essential to the comfort and health of the farmer and laborer" have risen from 62 to 120 per cent, he said, "this means denial, the denial which brings suffering for millions of men and women who are entering the fourth winter of the depression."

Asserting "the world has been astounded that the United States should have from 10 to 12 million men and women out of employment," he went on to say that "perhaps an explanation of that may be found in the fact that even in the years of 1926, 1927 and 1928, the golden years which we are striving to recover, there were 75,000,000 people in the United States that had an annual income of less than $800 a year.

"It was a sad mistake to suspend all anti-trust laws and leave nothing in their stead but a meaningless generality and a noble purpose."

Discusses Inflation.

Taking up another subject, that of currency expansion, the Senator said:

"Those who argue against inflation, which I prefer to call reflation, refuse, as it seems to me, to face the facts, to meet the issue as it is presented. They go back to Germany and tell us about what happened in Germany. They talk about the French revolution and what happened then. But let us come home, and face the facts as they are and meet the issue, the burning issue, as it is presented

"We have been trying credit inflation for three years. The former administration lent money by millions, but prices continued to fall and unemployment continued to increase. Credit inflation did not and could not reach those who most needed help. It did not and could not increase the volume of the circulating medium.

"The crash came, and the greatest and richest nation on earth, as we are fond of saying, on the fourth day of last March was sterilized from center to circumference. Twelve million men and women were without work, on the verge of hunger, while food rotted on the farm. There is no circulating medium with which to effectuate the transfer.

"What is the situation at present? Credit currency is unavailable to those who most need currency. You may pile up credit, but the producer cannot get it. He has no security which those who are in a position to extend credit will accept. The farmer is worse off today when measured by the price that is paid, with the price he receives, than he was a year ago. That is the situation which confronts us. That is the issue. What are we going to do about it? What is the remedy?

Prices and Money Volume.

"Let those who tell us that a greater volume of money is not the remedy tell us what is the remedy. We believe that prices are controlled by the volume of money in circulation, but if we are on the wrong track, do not be content with denouncing our contention. Tell us how we are to escape from this brutal, devastating, continuing deflation. What is the remedy? You may plow up cotton. You may reduce wheat acreage. You may kill pigs until their carcasses choke the Mississippi on its way to the sea. You may do all this while millions are hungry for what you are destroying.

"But all this will be but a drop in the bucket. Whatever may be said of this program of reducing acreage and so forth, as an emergency measure, it alone will not solve the farm problem."

Borah urged the use of both gold and silver, making a broader metallic base for the monetary system, and said that "upon that broad base sufficient currency could be provided with which to meet the situation." He concluded by saying:

"We talk about gold and the virtues of the gold standard. Well, where is the gold standard? Thirty three nations are on a paper basis. The rest of them are likely to be. It is evident that under present circumstances there is not sufficient gold with which to do the business of the world. Gold needs help.

"It seems to be the theory of some that, although we may lose the Constitution, although we may change our system of government, and although millions may lose their homes and farms, yet if we can save the gold standard, all will be well. Have we not something in this situation besides a standard which has become largely a fiction?"

A. F. L. LABOR SURVEY NOTES JOB INCREASE

But Individual Worker's Buying Power Drops 2.3 Pct. — 1,000,000 Employed on Public Works.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6. — The American Federation of Labor's October survey of business, while reporting several fundamental egonomic improvements, said the individual worker's buying power still was declining.

It credited employment of more than 1,000,000 persons to the $3,300,000,000 public works fund, including Federal staffs.

Total re-employment of 4,000,000 was claimed for NRA code control and the Blue Eagle agreement.

The business decline was given as only 1.4 per cent in October compared with 8.5 per cent in September.

Federal Reserve Bank credit, the Federation said, "is at last beginning to trickle on to business."

Total buying power through reemployment was recorded as having increased 20.5 per cent. Trade union unemployment declined from 22.5 in September to 21.9.

Though higher prices caused a decline in retail buying in September, the Federation said "retail buying by wage earners has increased."

Individual Buying Power.

The drop in individual buying power totaled 2.3 per cent in September from the March level, though the average amount of money received was 6 per cent higher. Only May and June put the worker's "real income" ahead of March and then by 2 per cent. The loss was greatest in September, the Federation said, because of rising prices and because hourly wage rates did not rise enough to maintain weekly and monthly income when hours were shortened.

The Federation forecast that the heavy industries would soon be greatly stimulated by contract letting under public works, and for new railroad equipment.

Greater buying was predicted "when workers are sure of their jobs and when their debts are cleared."

"These developments," said the Federation, "mean far more for sound business progress than the spectacular rise we had last spring, but do not make nearly such good publicity. For these fundamentals will not appear in our business indicators until they have actually caused greater business activity.

"Expansion will come when large numbers of business men see results in increased orders and have confidence to go ahead."

Affects of the NRA.

On the drop in purchasing power, the Federation said:

"NRA wages have not brought higher living standards to the average worker. A 6 per cent increase in wages has been eaten up in an 8.5 per cent increase in living costs and he finds his real monthly income in September actually below March by 2.3 per cent. Some codes have reduced minimum wage rates below those actually in force in the industry, as in silk; in other cases, employers have reduced their higher paid workers to raise the low-paid group.

"Thus better-paid workers where there were no unions have lost under codes, while the minimum group have made progress.

"Other benefits are more general. Hours are shorter, men are going back to work. The worker knows that wage and hour scales are not permanent, for wages must be adjusted upward as prices rise, hours downward as machinery shortens working time."

MUSSOLINI PUTS GEN. BALBO ON SHELF IN LIBYA

Air Marshal, Who Led 24-Plane Formation Flight to Chicago, to Govern African Province.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 6.—Air Marshal Italo Balbo, who, since his record-breaking mass formation flight of 24 seaplanes from Rome to the Chicago World's Fair and back, has been second only to Premier Mussolini in popular acclaim as a national hero, has been sent to Libya as Governor, succeeding Marshal Badoglio.

Air officers described Balbo as dejected. They said he would take a vacation of several months before going to his new post. Aviation plays a large part in keeping tribesmen under control in the desert interior of Libya.

(Libya is an Italian possession in North Central Africa, on the Mediterranean, between Egypt on the east and Tunisia and Algeria on the west.)

Minister of Navy Also Out.

It was officially announced today that Balbo and Admiral Giuseppe Sirianni had resigned and that King Victor Emmanuel had given their portfolios as Minister for Air and Minister of the Navy to Mussolini. At the same time, the King named Gen. Valle Under-Secretary for Air and Admiral Cavagnari Under-Secretary of the Navy. The King also accepted the resignation of Under-Secretary Riccardi for Air and Under-Secretary Russo of the Navy.

The wording of the decree indicated that the Ministries for Air, of the Navy and of War would not be combined at once, as had been predicted, but it was thought probable this step would be taken later with Mussolini becoming Minister of National Defense.

Mussolini sent both Air Marshal Balbo and Admiral Sirianni long letters thanking them for their long and loyal co-operation.

Admiral Sirianni becomes president of the Cogne company, large iron ore miners in Upper Italy.

Mussolini now holds six ministries—Foreign Affairs, Interior, War, Navy, Air and Corporations. There are seven he does not hold, namely: Colonies, Justice, Finance, Education, Agriculture, Communications and Public Works.

De Pinedo's Exile Recalled.

It was recalled that Mussolini, probably at Balbo's instigation, virtually exiled Francesco de Pinedo, idol of the Italian Air Force and holder of several records, at the height of his popularity. De Pinedo was abruptly removed from the limelight by orders sending him to Buenos Aires as aviation attache. He was killed in New York Sept. 2 in taking off on an attempt to fly across the Atlantic to Bagdad.

Woman's Party Reaffirms Stand on Proposal.

By the Associated Press.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 6. — Resolutions reaffirming indorsement of the equal rights amendment to the Constitution and protesting alleged discrimination against woman employes in Government service were adopted yesterday at the close of the annual convention of the National Woman's party. Mrs. Sarah Colbin of St. Paul, Minn., was elected chairman to succeed Mrs. Florence Bayard Hilles of Wilmington.

The resolution said that a definite movement against women's right to work for pay has arisen. It declared the public "is being deceived by misleading statements issued recently by the woman's bureau of the Department of Labor.

GOERING FLIES TO ROME

On Unexplained Mission to See Mussolini.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Nov. 6.—Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German Minister without portfolio, arrived here by airplane this afternoon to confer with Premier Mussolini. Goering was accompanied by the Prince of Hesse, son-in-law of King Victor Emmanuel. The exact purpose of the visit was not explained, but well-informed circles reported Mussolini had asked him to come to Rome to discuss the situation which will exist after the German elections, particularly in reference to disarmament.

It is considered a strong possibility that Mussolini will call a meeting of the four powers in his European peace pact to discuss disarmament here as individual nations and not as signatories of the four-power pact.

FOR INCREASING SOVIET ARMY, NOW WORLD'S LARGEST

War Council Issues Manifesto on Eve of Sixteenth Anniversary of Russian Republic.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Nov. 6.—The Revolutionary War Council and the Communist Internationale today joined in voicing anew Soviet Russia's hopes for a world revolution in separate manifestos issued on the eve of the sixteenth anniversary of the Soviet Republic.

The War Council issued an order signed by Jan Gamarnik, vice-commissar for war and the navy, calling on the Red army chiefs "to train each Red soldier to be devoted in heart and soul to the world proletarian revolution."

This instruction is given at the close of the order, which says a more powerful army is needed for defense despite the fact that "the Red army now is stronger and more invincible than ever before."

(Russia already has the largest and one of the best equipped armies in the world. Latest available figures show the Russian army to comprise 848,000 on the active list, 18,000,000 in the trained reserve. These figures compare with 607,000 and 6,328,000 for France; 457,000 and 6,617,000 for Italy, and 403,000 and 711,000 for the British Empire.)

"Sure of its own power," the order says, the Red army stands on the Soviet border for the defense of the peaceful labor workers and peasants and the peaceful policy of the Soviet Union.

"The imperialists are preparing new wars and attacks against the U. S. S. R. Anti-soviet provocations are being organized in the Far East.

"Woe to the adventurers and incendiaries of war who attempt to attack the Soviet Union.

"In its fight for the Soviet country, for socialism and Lenin's cause, the Red army will manifest such an invincible strength and heroism and such a perfect management of its arms it will be without precedent in the world and which cannot even be dreamed of by any other country."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Tribute to the Gold Dollar.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOU state with finality that our present gold dollar has failed. A broad statement, it seems to me, with nothing to back it up. On the face of it, the gold dollar, as evolved in 1837, did the greatest work of its long and illustrious career during the years of the depression.

It stated that all the world was broke, except the United States and France. True enough, they were broke. What else could a dollar tell? Suppose these other nations had any other kind of dollar, the commodity dollar, for instance. What difference would it have made? They didn't have a darn thing we wanted except what gold they had. We did not want their goods, or their vegetables or their children. Then why, in heaven's name, did the gold dollar fail, when it told us they were broke? They were broke in any other language you can name.

You speak of the experience of France in devaluation of the franc and explain her temporary prosperity that way. But you do not state that her prosperity was due to tremendous payments from Germany and the immense sums spent in Africa, all of which were spent in France and in French factories. This and this alone accounted for the temporary prosperity in France. The gold dollar told France she was broke, in so far as the world was concerned, and she was broke in that respect. She could not pay us the $20,000,000 she owed us last year. Again, what other kind of dollar would have told the truth in plainer fashion?

All this talk about the failure of the gold dollar would sound a lot better if the markets of the United States had not turned and registered splendid gains, from July of 1932 to September of 1932, firmly establishing our gold dollar in world markets. Unfortunately, we were left without governmental leadership from Nov. 8 to March 4. This sad state of affairs permitted a crisis to arise because confidence had been undermined. But even then, hoarding proved the public's confidence in the gold dollar.

The practical man wants no rubber dollar jammed down his neck, willy-nilly, by men who have had no practical experience in business. A rubber dollar is just as counterfeit as a wooden nickel.

There is one and only one way to get out of a depression. Wait until complete liquidation has taken place, give business an honest gold dollar, and the real "go-getters" will do their stuff, just as they have always done. Oh yes, and let the professors go back to their classrooms.

G. A. GANTZ.

An Argument for "Buy Now."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

FROM now on, every dollar that is held in idleness, whether in banks or buried tomato cans, is certain to shrink in value in exactly the same proportion as commodity prices rise. The holder will be the loser. Everyone with an idle dollar is going to pay for the things he needs whether he buys them or not. And that is true because he must sacrifice the shrinkage in his unspent dollar, represented by the difference between what that dollar will buy today and what it will buy after the prices of the things he needs have advanced 10, 20, 50 or 100 per cent or more. And advance they must. PETER FRANCIS WALL.

Chicago.

Section 7 and the Laundries.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUR editorial, "The Laundry Dispute," and the letter from General Manager Rauschkolb of the St. Louis Laundry Board of Trade on the same page, are contradictory.

You put the laundry owners "on the spot," as the saying goes, declaring them guilty of refusal to recognize their employes' organization, which right of organization is guaranteed the employes under Section 7 of the NIRA. This is the bone of contention. It is the coup de grace to the die-hard anti-unionists, and they can't take or realize it.

Mr. Rauschkolb reverts to the stereotyped formula for this occasion, as all organization business men usually do for each particular occasion, and states that the laundries have no idea of attempting to forbid their employes to join the union. What the laundries actually say is this: They insist upon their right to hire and advance employes on a basis of their merit and not on a basis of their affiliations. The laundries are not willing to agree to employ only persons who are members of a union. All this simply means, "We don't want any unions."

Section 7, Mr. Rauschkolb avers, does not compel any industry to make an agreement to hire only union members. True, but it does compel an industry to recognize the employes' union organization and representatives. This the owners do not want to do. This is the point of issue. The owners have not requested to have the matter brought before the Mediation Board of NRA. Instead, they have disregarded the health and convenience of the people of this city who have sustained them in business, closed up shop and ignored their responsibility to the community, consulting only their own personal interests, in a stubborn lockout policy. If they win, they lose. The small laundries will become big. But merit talk is only subterfuge. The merit question is decided each pay day, if not before, union or no union. ST. LOUISAN.

INVESTMENT BANKING'S OPPORTUNITY.

If it seemed for a time as though the stock and bond dealers had let up in their campaign for a weakening of the Securities Act, that illusion is now wholly dissolved. The fight is on, and with renewed vigor. John T. Flynn, who knows the ins and outs of Wall Street and all the little Wall Streets, says there has been no comparable blast of such publicity since that for the "now infamous Mellon tax laws."

One must not make the mistake of thinking that the opponents of the Securities Act are lodging their attack against one of the major instruments of the New Deal as such. Quite to the contrary, they take the position that the new law prevents them from doing their part in furthering the recovery program. They want the teeth taken out of the law, they say in substance, not to benefit themselves, but to save the country from a national epidemic of defaults, whose total would be reckoned in hundreds of millions of dollars.

Frank M. Gordon of Chicago, president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, presented this argument in his address at the annual convention of his organization in Hot Springs. "It is time for plain speaking," he said. "All over the United States corporations are ready to undertake necessary financing. But no corporation director in his senses is going to risk existing resources by putting his name on financing under a law that makes him personally liable for the next 10 years and adopts the unprecedented principle that he is to be judged guilty unless he can be proved innocent."

Following Mr. Gordon's address, which went on to defend the investment banker from a "storm of abuse and slander" and "irresponsible recrimination," he and his brethren took formal action to that end. A resolution, introduced by Henry T. Ferriss, lawyer, executive vice-president of the First National Co. of St. Louis, declares it "essential to redefine the indefinite liabilities imposed by the Securities Act, so as to make it possible for responsible enterprises to meet their requirements for new capital and to co-operate with the recovery program."

Now we have no doubt as to how these patriotic professions of the investment gentry sound to holders of so-called securities in various Insull enterprises, or in no end of deflated utility, industrial, bridge and real estate undertakings. We have no doubt as to how they are being received by persons who purchased American-promoted bonds on foreign countries, such as the republics of Cuba, Chile, Peru and Bolivia, in the belief that the sellers had told the whole truth about the financial and economic condition of the borrowers and the circumstances of the loans.

If we are correct, and we think we are, these hundreds of thousands of disillusioned Americans are saying that Federal regulation was long past due. If we judge them aright, they have small patience for a group which so recently loaded all responsibility for its acts on the backs of unsuspecting investors, and which now complains, in the name of the country's welfare, because it has been asked to assume its share of responsibility. To the owner of Kreuger & Toll certificates, it looks as if the sellers of stocks and bonds could only expect the time to come when honesty and fair dealing in securities would be required by law.

In its essence, the Securities Act is a Federal order requiring investment promoters and dealers to be willing to stand good for what they sell the people. That it will restrict financing goes without saying. If it did not prevent the distribution of unjustified issues, it would fail utterly. We have the judgment of Congress, most of which was elected only a year ago, and which passed the bill without a dissenting vote, that such a reform was needed. We have the assurance of members of the Federal Trade Commission, who are charged with the enforcement of the act, that no legitimate enterprise need be afraid to offer securities to the public.

In the face of this, the attitude of the investment dealers appears to be something beside what they profess. From reliable sources comes the information that lawyers, professional descendants, so to speak, of members of the bar who in years past opposed railroad regulation, workmen's compensation, labor legislation and numerous other social reforms, are advising their clients not to do any financing under the new law. They hope, by the time Congress meets in January, to have created a public opinion to the effect that either the Securities Act must be modified or the recovery program will go on the rocks.

It should be a source of deep satisfaction to the American people to know that the Roosevelt administration has shown no inclination to yield on this important social gain. Senator Fletcher and Representative Rayburn, sponsors of the measure in Congress, say that it will be preserved. What the President thinks about it can well be judged from the fact that he has just appointed to the Federal Trade Commission Dr. James M. Landis, professor in the Law School of Harvard University, who was in part responsible for the framing of the law.

This lockout, for that is what the security dealers have instituted against the Securities Act, is an unmistakable sign that the necessary readjustment is under way. It is, so to speak, one of the growing pains attending the reordering of the investment business in the light of legislative requirements brought on by its own excesses and irresponsibilities. For, in the last analysis, it was the promoters and sellers of stocks and bonds who wrote the law against which they now protest.

If the security dealers continue their present campaign, they will soon find that they have joined the issue, with the people as their opponents. It is a prospect they cannot afford to risk. If, on the other hand, they understand what is going on in this country today, they will welcome the Securities Act as their opportunity to join in the remaking of the United States.

A MERITED AWARD.

Civic acclaim has been added to that of learned societies in the bestowal of the St. Louis Award for 1932-33 upon Dr. Max A. Goldstein, for his notable work among those handicapped by deafness. Dr. Goldstein's wide learning in his professional field and his remarkable accomplishments therein make it fitting that his city join in the recognition he has won in scientific circles at home and abroad. It is characteristic of the man that he has presented his $1000 prize check to the Central Institute for the Deaf, which he founded 19 years ago, developed to its present high efficiency and continues to direct.

The award committee heightens the prestige of the annual honor in its choice of Dr. Goldstein. Such tributes in many cities are limited to persons active in public affairs, while the scientific man, whose light, as it were, is hidden in his laboratory, is easily overlooked. The committee has rightly considered it a high civic achievement, as well as a humanitarian act, to bring new hope and usefulness into the lives of unfortunates, as Dr. Goldstein has done. His accomplishments in science and in a particularly difficult field of education bring great honor to St. Louis, which rejoices to hail his works.

TOMORROW'S ELECTIONS.

As a rule, the voting which occurs in the November following the inauguration of a President is of little interest, even locally. The new administration has been in power only eight months, and Congress has yet to meet. Ordinarily, there is nothing to contest, people have turned from politics and apathy abounds.

That is not the case this November. What will happen tomorrow holds the interest of every hamlet in the United States, whether or not its polls will be open. There are two issues of national importance, and neither of them is the recovery program of the Roosevelt administration.

Tomorrow will, in all probability, seal the doom of national prohibition. Thirty-three of the required 36 states have already voted to ratify repeal. Tomorrow Kentucky, Ohio, Utah, Pennsylvania and North and South Carolina will send their voters to the polls for the final judgment. Proclamation of formal repeal will wait on action by the thirty-sixth state convention, which will be held the first week in December. So far as the will of the people is concerned, the job will be completed tomorrow, just a year after the election of an administration pledged to do it. And it will be done, judging by every sign, with three states to spare.

The other issue is Tammany. New York City will elect a Mayor, with its best chance in years of overthrowing the ruthless machine whose corrupt influence has been felt throughout the United States. Votes for the fiery Fusion candidate, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, will be votes against Tammany and not to further the ambitions which Ogden L. Mills holds for 1936. Conversely, the defeat of Joseph V. McKee will be no reflection on the Roosevelt administration. If Postmaster-General Farley has said he will vote for Mr. McKee, so are numerous workers in the New Deal to cast their ballots for Maj. LaGuardia. Division is to be expected where there is free political choice.

Politicians who are seeking straws in the wind will look particularly to the outcome of the special congressional election in the Ninth Pennsylvania District, whose late Representative was a Republican. Other signs will be sought in Virginia, where Senator Byrd is a candidate; in New Jersey, where most of the Legislature will be chosen, and in Cleveland, where a mayoralty fight will be decided on party lines.

What counts, however, is prohibition and Tammany. If Nov. 7, 1933, stops the rule of both, and it bids fair to, it will be a great day.

MR. LOREE'S $20 BILL.

L. F. Loree, the big railroad man, was the life of the party at that gold-standard dinner in New York. He compared Uncle Sam's departure from gold to Germany's march through Belgium and, holding up a $20 bill in plain view of the audience (a brave act anywhere, but foolhardy in New York) he contemptuously dubbed it, in Von Bethmann-Hollweg's shopworn metaphor, "a mere scrap of paper." Did he complete his act with the sincerity of the true artist by flipping the worthless rag into the air with a regal gesture? It was not so reported. Neither is it related that he carefully placed the twenty back in his pocketbook, but that, one may be sure, is what he did.

For, with all respect for Mr. Loree and the gold bugs, a $20 bill is still a $20 bill. It is a dozen pairs of silk hose, it is three quarts, almost, of bottled-in-bond whisky, it is a fairly bright dinner for two, with burgundy and flowers, and there are millions of people in the United States to whom that $20 bill were as manna from heaven, a bugle blast of salvation, a new lease on life.

There was once a lovely lady who, in an hour of her nation's anguish, said a cruelly stupid thing which has never been forgotten. May we present you, Mr. Loree, to Marie Antoinette? You know about her cake, of course, and her finish.

DOMESTIC CRITICISM FOR HITLER.

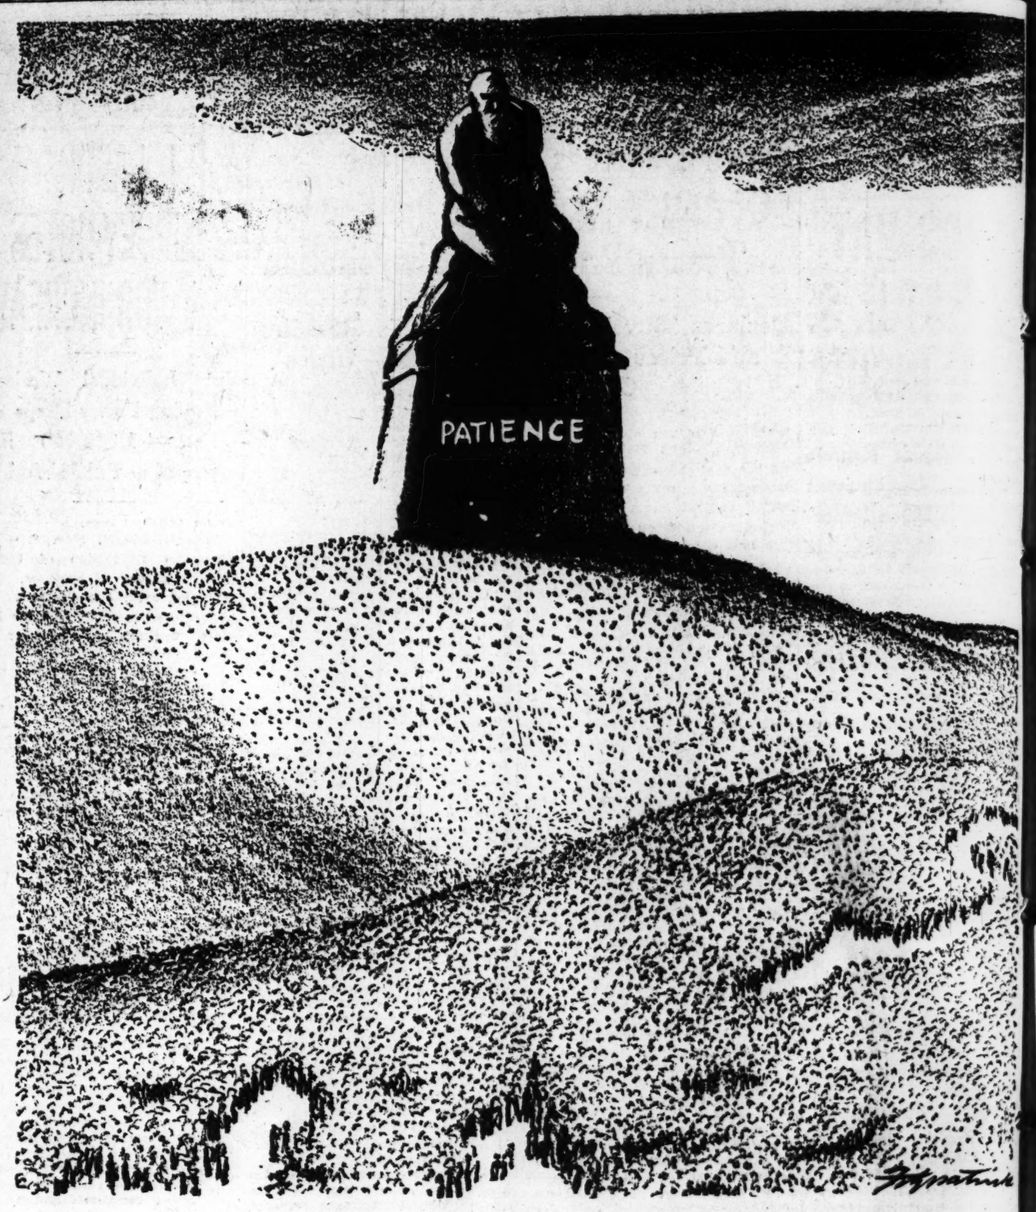

Many denunciations of Nazi religious and racial intolerance have been voiced, invariably from the sanctuary of foreign soil. It required a high degree of moral and physical courage for spokesmen of the Reich Confederation of Christian-Jewish Citizens and Non-Aryans, speaking in Berlin, to criticise the Nazi policy in this respect. Probably their action will be found to be some species of treason, and the next heard of the Catholic priest, Protestant minister and two attorneys who went on record there may be news of their internment in a concentration camp.

These protestants addressed themselves particularly to the plight of Christian Germans who are ostracised because of a Jewish or other non-Aryan ancestor somewhere in the family tree. "We are Germans and we want to remain German," one speaker said. The same would apply to German Jews, many of whose families have lived in Germany for centuries, and who have been as intensely nationalistic as their Gentile compatriots. In the World War, at least 96,000 Jews, or 17.3 per cent of the Jewish population, served in the German army, almost four-fifths of them in the front lines. This compares favorably with war service by 18.3 per cent of German Christians. The plight of the "Christian Jews," to whom Hitler has extended his ostracism, is in many respects even worse than that of those persons who practice the Jewish religion.

The Nazis avow their desire for a united Germany. However, they spurn the allegiance of Jews and part-Jews, who would be just as loyal in their citizenship, if given an opportunity, as the most devoted Aryan. This policy, indefensible as a philosophy, is a tactical error, which weakens German unity at home and alienates sympathy abroad. It is well that these spokesmen have raised the issue on German soil.

WHERE HAS AL BEEN?

The country's greatest city has been engaged in a fine battle to rid itself of a corrupt tyranny and put its affairs in honest hands. Through it all, the voice of that city's greatest citizen, in political repute, has not been heard—save for an eleventh-hour whisper. The brown derby has not been seen in these pivotal weeks, on "The Sidewalks of New York."

SOMETHING FOR THE AMERICAN PEOPLE TO CONTEMPLATE.

Supreme Court and New Deal

Recovery Act is certain to come before Supreme Court, and fate of the New Deal rests on its verdict; no clear-cut cleavage of liberal vs. conservative Justices is likely, Chicago lawyer writes, for no one knows in what direction power of NRA will be used; says decision may have great effect on court's future place in Government.

Mitchell Dawson in Harper's Magazine; Reprinted by Permission.

THERE has arisen in the city of Washington a splendid structure, severely classic in design, austere in somber dignity. In its great stone hallways and chambers there is to be no concession to the frivolous or the gaudy. Such austerity would seem to be entirely fitting, for this great monument is intended to shelter the Supreme Court of the United States, the nine elderly men who hold the power to determine the destiny of the nation.

During the days of this past summer and autumn, as these nine men have gone about the country's business, they have seen the national capital boiling over with an unprecedented activity. This storm of executive activity has been brought about by the greatest of depressions, which at last has forced the hand of government to reach out and attempt to wrest the control of the country's economic life from the individuals who possessed it before.

Withdrawn from all the noise and tumult sit the nine old men; they are waiting, waiting for the time when the question of this Government control must be brought before them, when they, too, must come to grips with the stupendous experiment born in the National Recovery Administration.

The Justices will presumably first be concerned, like the rest of us, with the magnitude of the power conferred upon the executive by the various emergency acts, and above all, by the act establishing the NRA.

The Justices can hardly fail to speculate upon the danger that this power may be abused by any dominant group for selfish interests. Officials may come and go. Gen. Johnson has talked of resigning in January. The President is mortal. Shifts of control are possible. And it is well known that powers granted in an emergency, which are used at first in the national interest under the wary eyes of a skeptical public, may easily be abused.

Yet here we discover a possible factor of new uncertainty in the attitude of the Justices—a factor which makes it dangerous to assume that the liberal Justices will vote to sustain the NIRA and the conservatives vote to invalidate it. A great deal may depend upon the direction in which the new authority appears to be drifting.

If the administration appears to be consolidating its power and authority, that fact must exercise its influence upon the great decision. If, on the other hand, in the face of the quiet but terrific opposition it has aroused, its power should dwindle, that fact, too, must have its weight. But this is far from being all. A most powerful influence must be the direction in which this power may grow and for whose benefit it may be exercised.

The New Deal has no fixed philosophy, no certain goal toward which it is making its way. If it were otherwise, if the NIRA represented a clear-cut step toward Government control, it might appear quite likely that the conservative members of the court, perhaps in majority, would strike down the NIRA, even perhaps in the face of the national emergency and the plain trend of the times. The court before this has attempted to oppose the inevitable, notably in the Dred Scott decision, which was to dispose of the slavery problem once and for all. But four years later, the guns of Charleston opened fire on Sumter and the Dred Scott decision was swept away like a cobweb.

But the case is not clear-cut, even for liberal or reactionary, and the problem confronting the court is so thorny that the Justices must of necessity approach it with uncertainty and concern. If Donald Richberg, general counsel of the NRA, and Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, represent that element which demands a strictness of Government control and the elimination of favoritism, of political and financial influence, they are far from being representative of the whole. There are other elements. The purely political activities and the patronage tactics of Postmaster-General Farley and others like him are well known.

Furthermore, the NRA must draw a large portion of its influential personnel from the ranks of business and finance; and business has not yet ceased to be interested in profit before everything else. Whitewashing the leopard will not erase his spots. Profit and national interest do not always coincide, no matter how often we have been told that they do; more often than not, they are violently opposed. When, therefore, all of these elements are combined in the NRA, the decision of the court becomes more and more difficult.

What if the liberal Justices, taking the New Deal at its rosiest, should be able to write a majority opinion upholding the powers of the NRA? And what if subsequently the machinery of the NRA should fall completely into the hands of business and finance? Imagination boggles at the thought of what a Harding administration might do with these gigantic powers. The Roosevelt administration is very far from being free from the same pressures.

But might not the possibility of the open and avowed control of the NRA by vested property be not unpleasing to the conservative Justices? That is possible, and inherited instincts and acquired convictions must operate here. But they must operate in a fog of uncertainty and doubt.

There will be embarrassing technical questions. The Recovery Act to a limited extent suspends the anti-trust laws and has been thought to authorize price-fixing. The regulation of rates has been judicially approved as to "industries affected with a public interest," but can this be extended to include all industries?

Can the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce be extended to purely local trades not in competition with interstate companies? It has never been so held. Can it be extended to the activities of interstate companies not connected with the movement of goods? It is doubtful. Will the attempt to establish minimum wages under codes—a power denied to Congress by the court—prove a stumbling block? These and other questions will arise to plague the administration and the court.

Gen. Johnson's cohorts are no doubt prepared to meet all technical points and to "crack them down" with the doctrine that the great national emergency justifies every angle of the New Deal. And this is no feeble argument. We have never before been involved in a period of such world-wide panic and uncertainty, with revolutionary changes accomplished and impending whichever way we turn.

But this emergency doctrine must itself come in for the severest scrutiny. It has never been held to turn constitutional black into white, nor has it ever been applied by the Supreme Court to a purely economic emergency. The court has said that even war does not alter the limitations imposed by the Constitution.

The Justices are working, in the words of Justice Hughes, "under the watchful eye of a critical people," critical certainly of any judgment which would seem to thwart recovery. Yet the court does not operate in a vacuum, and its members are human beings. Pressures are exerted upon it from every side, and the influences bearing upon its decisions are numberless. In their present situation, their own power and influence are seriously involved.

Indeed, the controlling factor in their decisions may be their realization that not only is the New Deal on trial, but also the supremacy of the court itself. Is it not possible that a decision sustaining the NIRA would be in itself an act of abdication on the part of the court, an acknowledgment that the far-reaching powers of judicial review by which the court has forced the nation to follow paths marked out by the court are now and forever past?

The court, after all, has usurped a power which was not expressly granted in the Constitution. Gradually, through long years, it has built up that power until, to most of us, its mightiness is an accepted commonplace. How painful, then, will be the dilemma that must presently confront it. Shall it seek to change the stars in their courses by defying change, or shall it bow to change and step down from the seats of the mighty?

It would be interesting to know the inner thoughts of the Justices as they daily pass the walls of the temple that is to shelter them. Is there something ominous in its magnificence? Is it possible that in years to come the structure may not be the scene of that supreme power to which even Presidents and Congresses must bow, but may become, through the New Deal and what comes after, a mausoleum, a huge memorial raised up as a testimony that once upon a time nine elderly men held in their hands the life and liberty and happiness of 120,000,000 people?

Teachers Are Citizens

From an Address by Supt. William E. Grim of Oakland, Cal., Before the National Education Association.

FROM the beginning of our country, the public school teacher has not had the privilege of exercising the full rights of an American citizen. In spite of the teacher's many qualifications as a citizen, he has been criticised, browbeaten, threatened, ordered, sued, vilified and otherwise mistreated when in any way he has turned his education or devoted any of his time to political endeavors.

Teachers must become politically conscious and become aware of the tremendous responsibilities which fall upon them in any definite working out of our social program. Many will decry any political activity on the part of teachers, but where is the agency to come from to combat the evil forces which are all but engulfing us?

Small organized minorities have ruled and gained power simply because the majority forces have been disorganized and inarticulate. With the public school as a nucleus and the co-ordinating agency for all right-thinking groups, graft and corruption can be dethroned, both in business and in politics.

The DAILY MERRY

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.

SOONER than anyone expected the New Deal has come to the parting of the ways. Last week Roosevelt faced alternatives of sort of industrial fascism dictated by Big Business, a socialized economy dominated by Labor and the Farmer, or a midway course.

Events moved, avalanche-like, to bring the conflict to a head. Chief events were the policy of purchasing gold, plus Gerard Swope's plan for a Big Business dictatorship of industry.

The avalanche began with a midnight conference of Roosevelt monetary experts held just two weeks ago. It did not break up until 2 a. m. on Sunday, October 29, the day Roosevelt delivered his radio report to the American people.

At this conference a majority opposed inflation. A report was drawn up to this effect. One man, however, stood out for modified inflation through purchasing abroad. He was Professor George F. Warren, poultry expert of Cornell University.

The President was faced with a desperate farm situation. The entire west was ready for revolt. Farm prices had soared during mid-summer, then fallen with a crash. Wall street speculation was the cause. Drastic measures—more than a shot in the arm—were needed to increase farm prices.

Roosevelt was torn between conservative Wall street, which demanded stabilization of the dollar, and the radical farm group, which howled for inflation. Knowing that inflation would be voted by Congress, Roosevelt took the middle step. He adopted Warren's plan of depressing the dollar by buying gold.

Treasury experts wore long faces. They even challenged the legality of the RFC buying gold. The Justice Department finally wrote an 11-page opinion on the subject.

But the President went ahead.

Wall Street.

UNFORTUNATELY, he put directly into Wall street hands. The Warren plan did show the immediate results hoped for. The professor had not counted importantly enough on three factors.

One was the inherent strength of the dollar. Depressed momentum, plus gold purchases, it bounced back.

Another was the tremendous surplus of commodities in the U. S. With such a surplus commodity prices will not rise easily.

The third factor was the difficulty of buying gold abroad. Warren had to be done through the Bank of England or in France.

Actually the gold-purchasing policy has not harmed anything. The currency is just as sound as ever. The plan frankly was experimental and was announced by Roosevelt as such.

But Big Business had been waiting for something like this. The wolves of Wall street had been praying for one false move.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.

SOONER than anyone expected the New Deal has come to the parting of the ways. Last week Roosevelt faced alternatives of a sort of industrial fascism dictated by Big Business, a socialized state dominated by Labor and the Farmer, or a midway course.

Events moved, avalanche-like, to bring the conflict to a head. Chief events were the policy of purchasing gold, plus Gerard Swope's plan for a Big Business dictatorship of industry.

The avalanche began with a midnight conference of Roosevelt's monetary experts held just two weeks ago. It did not break up until 2 a. m. on Sunday, Oct. 22, the day Roosevelt delivered his radio report to the American people.

At this conference a majority opposed inflation. A report was drawn up to this effect. One man, however, stood out for modified inflation through purchasing gold abroad. He was Professor George F. Warren, poultry expert of Cornell University.

The President was faced with a desperate farm situation. The Midwest was ready for revolt. Farm prices had soared during midsummer, then fallen with a crash. Wall street speculation was the cause. Drastic measures—more than a shot in the arm—were needed to increase farm prices.

Roosevelt was torn between conservative Wall street, which demanded stabilization of the dollar, and the radical farm group, which howled for inflation. Knowing that inflation would be voted by Congress, Roosevelt took the midway step. He adopted Warren's plan of depressing the dollar by buying gold.

Treasury experts wore long faces. They even challenged the legality of the RFC buying gold. The Justice Department finally wrote an 11-page opinion on the subject.

But the President went ahead.

Wall Street.

UNFORTUNATELY, he played directly into Wall street's hands. The Warren plan did not show the immediate results hoped for. The professor had not counted importantly enough on three factors.

One was the inherent strength of the dollar. Depressed momentarily by gold purchases, it bounced right back.

Another was the tremendous surplus of commodities in the U. S. A. With such a surplus commodity prices will not rise easily.

The third factor was the difficulty of buying gold abroad. Buying had to be done through the Bank of England or in France.

Actually the gold-purchasing policy has not harmed anything. The currency is just as sound as ever. The plan frankly was experimental and was announced by Roosevelt as such.

But Big Business had been waiting for something like this. The wolves of Wall street had been praying for one false move. So far Roosevelt had been invulnerable. They could pin nothing on him.

Now, however, they gleefully pinned "rubber money" on his coat tails. They read of the system that Prof. Warren once devised for making hens lay more eggs by using an electric bulb, and pounced on the point that while the system produced eggs, it eventually killed the hen.

All of this played into the hands of Big Industry.

Change of Heart.

Industry for weeks had been chafing at the NRA. Originally it was 100 per cent for the Blue Eagle. This was when production was speeded up to take advantage of the price rise. It was also when industry wanted to take advantage of waivers of the anti-trust laws.

This ardor cooled when Industry found that the NRA was a two-way proposition. It was a partnership between Labor and Capital, with the Government sitting in the driver's seat.

So last week Industry took advantage of the psychological moment. Farmers were attacking the NRA. Business men were grumbling against it. Wall street was ridiculing the "Roosevelt rubber dollar."

At this particular moment Big Business sprang its master stroke.

It put forward the Swope plan. It proposed that the NRA, having grown unppoular, should be run by Business. It proposed no labor representation, no real Government supervision. It proposed a form of industrial fascism.

The New Deal had come to the parting of the ways.

Piece de Resistance: Lying conspicuously on top of pile, a large brown envelope addressed: "Mrs. Herbert Hoover, White House, Washington." The last three words were crossed out and "Palo Alto, Cal.," written in with pencil.

Monetary Merry-Go-Round.

ONE difficulty in buying gold abroad is the fact that the bullion market of the world is controlled by five men—British, French and Dutch gold traders. . . . They meet every day in Rothschild's, London, and decide how much they will pay for South African and Indian gold. . . . Most of the sales take place only on Tuesday. . . . Since these bullion merchants trade only in sterling, it is necessary for the United States to buy British pounds in order to buy gold. This strengthens the pound. . . . Business interests chiefly wrote the various codes for their own industry. If the NRA had written the codes without business dictation, results might have been different.

EVANGELINE BOOTH SPEAKS IN ST. LOUIS

Tells of Growth of Salvation Army, "Spread by Humble Men and Women."

The growth of the Salvation Army from the day in 1865 when William Booth stood in the rain and fog on a London street corner to preach to passersby was described yesterday afternoon at the Odeon by his daughter, Evangeline Booth, 67-year-old commander of the Army in the United States.

"From a ring around a street lamp in London's slums," she said, "the Army has grown to a ring that circles the globe, proclaiming the undying love of God."

Commander Booth spoke from a platform on which civic and religious leaders were seated. City Counselor Hay, in behalf of Mayor Dickmann, welcomed her and Forrest C. Donnell, president of the local advisory board of the Army, presided. The invocation was by the Rev. Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, pastor of Third Baptist Church; the benediction by the Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor, pastor of Second Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, president of the Church Federation, spoke briefly.

The brass bands and street meetings of the Salvation Army, Commander Booth said, have spread its influence throughout the world. Its bands, she said, were "the poor man's organ." Early in their history, she said, she and 25 bandsmen were arrested in England for peace disturbance and won acquittal when she pointed to the bandsmen as former outcasts who had won moral regeneration through the Army.

"In these street meetings," she added, "we maintain an enthusiastic attack on all that is against the best interests of the nation and on all that is evil. We maintain an enthusiastic advocacy of all that is good. We teach righteousness, and righteousness exalteth a nation. We are ever seeking to teach the immigrant and the ignorant those things that stand for good citizenship.

"The secret that has made our organization a refuge for all men everywhere is faith. We preach God is and we believe God is. We believe. That is our rock and our strength."

Humble men and women have spread the Army, Commander Booth said, to many lands. A milkman and a bricklayer took it to Canada, she said, and its first foothold in the United States was gained when a 16-year-old girl and her mother held a meeting in a Philadelphia stable.

Holding aloft a copy of the "War Cry," the Army's publication, Commander Booth said it began with a small weekly circulated among 750 subscribers.

"Today," she said, "128 publications in 73 languages go forth every week to 2,000,000 people. This paper goes forth, confronting four-fifths of the human race in their own tongues with the story of Jesus Christ. You will find it on a desk in the White House, in miners' bunks, in almshouses, in fashionable libraries, in prison cells."

'HEAVEN,' ARCHBISHOP'S TOPIC

Prelate Delivers Monthly Sermon at St. Louis Cathedral.

"Heaven" was the theme of Archbishop Glennon's monthly sermon at St. Louis Cathedral yesterday.

"We may not describe heaven as it is," the Archbishop said. "Our minds are human, and all our human attitudes, ways and thoughts must be sublimated and changed when we try to discuss or describe heaven. The light and the darkness that we know are not applicable to heaven, and we cannot fully comprehend or know what is the light of the divine presence. We know it is a place of rest, yet not perhaps a rest to consist of doing nothing, for God, as the philosophers say, is the Supreme Act."

world, the Communist Internationale Executive Committee urges them "to join the ranks with the proletariat U. S. S. R. to forge a uniform revolutionary front against Fascism and war, against Japan and against world imperialism. For the second Socialist five-year plan, for the Chinese Soviets and for a Soviet Germany."

"Long live the October revolution," says the committee announcement. "Hail our coming world October."

The official Soviet Tass News Agency circulated a declaration Saturday night that "the exchange of messages recently between President Roosevelt and Kalinin, followed by the journey to Washington of Foreign Commissar Litvinoff, indicate that the biggest capitalistic Power—the United States — was compelled to renounce the stubborn policy of non-recognition it had carried on for 15 years."

The pronouncement denounced England, Japan and Germany for alleged anti-Soviet activities and reiterated the Soviet policy of peace.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

MISS LINDA CRIST and Miss Frances Josephine Odell, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Odell, 4906 Argyle place, were presented to society today at a luncheon given by their mother in the Empire room of the Park Plaza. The luncheon table in the shape of a cartwheel had as a centerpiece a cluster of large yellow chrysanthemums. Starting at the edge of the centerpiece yellow pompons and foliage were twisted into question marks that extended to the four ends of the cartwheel. Here silver candelabra filled with yellow tapers were placed. The table was set with blue china and crystal glassware. Above each place a napkin folded in the shape of a slipper held corsages of a yellow rose and deep purple violets.

Miss Linda Odell wore an ensemble of green crepe with a black hat and Miss Josephine wore a brown angora frock with a brown hat. Their flowers were gardenias worn in a shoulder corsage. Mrs. Odell wore black crepe trimmed with white corded silk.

SCORE BY QUARTERS.

Club.	1	2	3	4
Gunners	13	0	0	7	—20

SCORING — Gunners: Touchdowns, Johnston (3). Points after touchdowns (place kick), Frahm (2).

FIRST DOWNS—Gunners, 9; Blackhawks, 12.

SUBSTITUTIONS — Gunners: Spudich, Senn, Kyle, Workman in back field; Muellerleile, Deimege in line; Blackhawks: Neupert, Krening, Fiedler in back field; F. Smith, Cailin in line.

OFFICIALS—Referee, Klein (Missouri); umpire, Potthoff (Washington); linesman, Morrison (Iowa).

By James M. Gould.

His first name is "Chester," his last name is "Johnston" and his nickname is "Swede" and yesterday, at Public Schools Stadium, he took the notion to score three touchdowns which enabled the Gunners to defeat the Wisconsin Blackhawks, 20 to 0. It was a raw day, but between chills, some 2000 hardy fans saw some good football. Indicating how little the making of first downs has to do with the final score, the Blackhawks made 12 to 9 for the Gunners, but all were made between the 20-yard lines where they did the least good.

After the Gunners had kicked off, t Blackhaws quick-kicked and it took the Gunners just five plays to go over for a touchdown. Moses and Johnston did the ball-carrying and the "Swede" negotiated the last seven yards on a run around the Hawks' left end. Frahm's place-kick try for the extra point was low.

Toward the end of the opening period, Messrs. Moses and Johnston again collaborated with some nice runs. With these runs went a nice pass, Moses to Malone and the Gunners had the ball on a first down, goal to go. Naturally, they handed the ball to Johnston and, as is the "Swede's" custom, he plunged over for the second touchdown. This time, Frahm's place-kick was good.

Hawks Do Most of Gaining.

In the next two periods, firing was desultory with the Blackhawks doing most of the ground gaining. In fact, they made eight first downs in the second and third quarters, while the Gunners were able to compile only two. But, as has been stated, these first downs just let the Hawks keep possession of the ball. They never really threatened to score. Their passing-attack, especially with Schwager throwing and Bach receiving, was somewhat bothersome to the Gunners' defense but, whenever the Gunner goal line got dangerously close, the Hawks' attack was broken up without undue fuss or trouble.

Coach Gwinn Henry was using reserves freely. In fact, he went so far as to send Cecil Muellerleile in at center, the former St. Louis U. captain making his first appearance of the season as a substitute for Kawal. These reserves didn't add to the Gunner point total so the first string backfield of Moses Breidenstein, Frahm and Johnston started the fourth quarter. This combination clicked almost immediately. The Hawks, compelled to kick, sent the ball to Frahm, who returned to his own 28-yard line.

Then, the ubitquitous Johnston, careful of his time, merged several running plays into one and dashed the rest of the distance for a third touchdown.

It was his and his team's third touchdown. Also, it was the last of the game. Frahm again made good with a place-kick for the twentieth point. The last part of this period saw the Hawks passing frequently and wildly in an attempt to score. The attempt was futile and the gun barked the end of the game.

Two Games for Gunners.

The Gunners face a double date this week. On Wednesday they oppose the Chicago Shamrocks at Chicago and, next Sunday, here, they battle the Cleveland "Skeletons," so nicknamed because on their black uniforms there is the outline of a skeleton.

This young man Malone, who plays left end for the Gunners, is about the smoothest piece of end-playing machinery the greatest lover of football would want to see. He is as good on offense as on defense, and he is a defensive master.

Chuck Delmege, former Drake star, doesn't care where they send him. He played both end and guard at different times yesterday and made a good job of both assignments.

Last year the Blackhawks held the Gunners to a 3-0 score. The visitors from Wisconsin were as strong as they were a year ago, but the Gunners of 1933 are much more powerful than the 1932 edition. The Boston Redskins of the National League this year defeated these Blackhawks, 20 to 2.

To Remodel Reds' Park.

The home park of the Cincinnati Reds will be remodeled during the off season, the outfield fences being considerably shortened.

The Pass That Failed: And the Failure Beat Fordham

Ed Danowski of Fordham all set to receive this forward pass over the goal line for a touchdown. Behind him is Fred Canrinus of St. Mary's, who bobbed up in time to spoil the play. The final score was 13 to 6, St. Mary's.

Prep League Elevens Meet in Feature Game This Week; City High Teams in Double Bill Friday

Two Preparatory League teams, McBride and St. Louis University High, will furnish the feature attraction in high school football circles this week, when they meet Saturday afternoon at the Walsh Stadium.

McBride, after being tied by Western Military Academy, 13 to 13, surprised everybody, including a number of its followers, by defeating the strong Christian Brothers College eleven, 14 to 6, and now Coach Carl O. "Toddy" Kamp's boys find themselves in position to win the title provided they beat the junior Billikens.

Defeating St. Louis U. High is a task which no local school has been able to accomplish. Coach Tom Stanton's young Billikens have won four and lost no games this season. In its four games, St. Louis U. High has accumulated 64 points to 26 for the opponents, including a 7-to-6 league decision over Western. If St. Louis wins from McBride, it can do no worse than tie for the title.

Cleveland Plays McKinley.

While the battle between McBride and St. Louis U. High will engage the attention of many of the high school fans, the City High School League will occupy the spotlight Friday afternoon when the usual doubleheader is played with Central opposing Roosevelt in the first game and McKinley meeting Cleveland in the second at Public Schools Stadium.

The other members of the city circuit, Beaumont and Soldan, have out-of-town engagements. Soldan plays at Cape Girardeau and Beaumont at Centralia, Ill., Saturday afternoon.

U. City Meets St. Charles.

University City will try to increase its hold on first place in the St. Louis County League when the Indians invade St. Charles in one of two league games Saturday afternoon. The other is between Webster Groves and Maplewood at Webster. Friday, Kirkwood plays at Wellston and Normandy at Ritenour in league affairs, while Saturday, Clayton is the guest of John Burroughs in a non-conference contest.

One game Friday, Belleville at Collinsville, and two Saturday are on the program in the Southwestern Illinois Conference. The Saturday games are Wood River at Granite City and Edwardsville at Collinsville. East St. Louis is host to Central Catholic High on the same afternoon in a non-league game.

May Save $75,000.

If the American League shortens its season a week and manages to shave a week's salary from every man it would save $75,000.

Seaback Gains Fourth Victory In Billiard Meet

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 6.—Charles Seaback, Astoria (N. Y.), maintained first place in the national pocket billiard championship tournament today with four victories and no defeats to his credit.

He scored his fourth win yesterday, getting the second high run of the tourney, a 73, in beating Walter Franklin, Kansas City, 125 to 61 in 15 innings.

William Mosconi, young Philadelphia player, with the highest run, an unfinished 85, made Saturday; George Kelly, Philadelphia, and Eddie Sauers, Oakland, Cal., are tied for second, each with three wins and one defeat.

Sauers and Kelly meet Charles Summerell, Little Rock, Ark., and Franklin, respectively, today. Arthur Church, New York, plays Harry Wood, Duluth, Minn., in the first game today, and Marcel Camp, Detroit, and Arthur Schliekman, Minneapolis, are paired in a night engagement.

SPECTATORS ASSERT MEXICO U. ELEVEN USED NON- STUDENT

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO, D. F., Nov. 6.—Reports were current in sporting circles here last night that a number of spectators at Saturday's Louisiana State College-University of Mexico football game had asserted Coach Allan Converse Jr. of the local institution used an ineligible man.

The player, they said, was William Bell, formerly a Los Angeles high school star. Some fans insisted he had not been enrolled in the university this year. Neither Converse nor Bell could be reached for a statement.

Converse formerly played guard at Yale.

BILLIKENS START PREPARING FOR ROLLA CONTEST

Feeling considerably encouraged by the good showing which gave them a 7-0 victory over a strong Wichita University eleven, Saturday, the Billikens of St. Louis U. were ready to start preparation for their next engagement. This is with the Missouri School of Mines—Rolla, to you—team at Walsh Stadium, Friday night.

With no additions to the casualty list as a result of the hard tussle last Saturday, the Billikens have only four days in which to complete work for the battle with the Miners. The fact that Coach Walsh used only six substitutes would indicate that he was satisfied with the make-up of his squad and that the 17 players who saw action, will bear the brunt of the work against the three remaining Billiken opponents—Rolla, Marquette and Washington.

Walsh used Bassett and Thompson at quarter and Captain Arenz and Manuel Rapp at full-back with Montgomery and Costa at left guard, Nisbet and Krause at center, Beck and Kersens at right guard and Conlon and Meinhardt at left end. Hurley and Kane at the halves, Spehr at right end and Axtell and Bockrath at the tackles played all through the Wichita contest.

The Miners' schedule this year cannot compare in difficulty with that of the Billikens but Rolla always seems to be at its best against St. Louis and Friday's frolic should be good football game. Billiken coaches don't care so much to have their team regarded as pre-game favorite but, in this coming contest, it undoubtedly will be.

St. Louis has won four of its six games and is anxious to go through the rest of the season without another defeat. This is no easy task for Marquette showed power in tying West Virginia, 13-13, Saturday, and Washington, always at its peak for the Thanksgiving day game, will also prove difficult.

But, there's little doubt that the Wichita victory considerably helped the Billiken morale which, after the defeat by Loyola, because of the Southerners' uncanny ability to block kicks, was pretty low. Now, the players figure they are going smoothly again and Walsh's team, really clicking, is a formidable combination of speed, experience and football ability.

Today and tomorrow probably will see easy workouts with a hard scrimmage on Wednesday and restful work the day before the game with the Miners.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Jinx Rides With Hunk.

HUNK ANDERSON'S Notre Dame football team must have a jinx for a jockey. How else could an eleven which, in some respects is a real powerhouse, play five games and fail to score in four of them? How otherwise could the Irish make 18 first downs to opponents' four, put on four or five long marches and gain 306 yards by rushing and passing against 46 for the Navy and not only fail to score, but suffer defeat?

ANDERSON.

Football men explain it easily enough. They cite the Navy game, which shows that while the Notre Dame machine was a whirlwind between the 20-yard marks, its attack failed time after time when within striking distance of the goal line. They conclude that Anderson's attack lacks a scoring punch and also workable plays within the 20-yard area.

That doesn't explain why the team's passes, which worked in midfield, failed when close to goal; it doesn't explain why fumbles, interceptions, penalties and other breaks should all happen just when the Irish were near to a score.

We can only conclude that Hunk Anderson has a whale of a team, with a Jonah aboard.

Wanted: A New System.

THERE is another possible explanation. Rivals know too much about the Notre Dame system. Rockne's success drew the spotlight. For years his methods were subjected to microscopic scrutiny and analysis. Coaches throughout the country probably understood more about Rockne methods than about those of any other standout coach except possibly Pop Warner.

Perhaps Anderson has found it all the more difficult to carry on, since his every move is anticipated.

Then there's another thing—perhaps the rush of embryo football wonders to Notre Dame has slowed down. The one-time semi-monopoly of unusual talent may have been weakened.

Notre Dame, during Rockne's day, was looked upon by ambitious football players as an outlet to coaching ambitions as well as to football fame. The stamp of "Rockne" on a Notre Dame graduate was good for a job almost on application.

With the Rockne seal no longer available, "Notre Dame" no longer is an open sesame to professional coaching. Ambitious youngsters may be looking elsewhere. That, if it were so, would deprive Notre Dame of many future greats.

That's just a guess—but it seems a reasonable probability. If such a falling away has not already occurred, the showing of this school this year will tend to bring it to pass soon.

The spell of Notre Dame seems to have been broken permanently, with the passing of Rockne.

By Way of Contrast.

UNDOUBTEDLY the biggest surprise of last Saturday was Illinois' showing against Michigan, the "perfect team." The 7-6 defeat of the Illini was another "moral victory" and probably won a lot of money for well-upholstered Illinois alumni who were betting on the score, two touchdowns being the usual handicap. The prevailing advance idea of the probable score was 20 to 0, in favor of the Wolverines.

That was a weird game. Each team took advantage of one good chance to score. The better Michigan line blocked Illinois' try for goal and that represented the perfect team's supremacy.

For the rest, Illinois gained on passes and rushes 142 yards to Michigan's 106.

Michigan Outplayed?

HERE was no case of a team with an excess of power plowing down the field and losing out by bad breaks. Seemingly, Illinois had a stop for everything the Michigan powerhouse started—with the one exception of the winning touchdown.

At rushing Michigan gained only 33 more yards than Illinois during the entire game.

The Wolverines were outdone in passing overwhelmingly, they were outkicked slightly, they had no advantage in runbacks of punts and they suffered by comparison with Illinois in penalties. In the light of cold type, Michigan seems to have been outplayed.

But Michigan won. At the season's end, if Kipke's eleven goes through unbeaten as expected, despite games to come with Iowa, Northwestern and Minnesota, it will be hailed as the year's wonder team and ranked with the historic elevens of other years.

But the Illinois team deserves almost equal recognition, on Saturday's showing.

Incidentally, the defeat of Illinois is a real triumph for Zuppke., who was not expected to register strongly after the defeat of his team by Army.

Just a Brain Storm.

WHAT Coach Zuppke is saying to his quarterback today we can't prove, but there is no law against suspecting. We suspect that his remarks would have to be printed on asbestos paper.

An observer of the game calls attention to the fact that the signal caller of the Illini missed his chance late in the fourth quarter.

Beynon had passed to Lindberg on Michigan's 14-yard line. In three plays the ball was advanced seven yards and the goal line was only seven yards distant and the goal posts only 16.

A field goal would have surely won the game, whereas a line buck as tried could only have made first down. It failed to do that and Michigan kicked.

Illinois then desperately tried a place kick from 31 yards and failed by inches. The quarterback could have clinched the game by a place kick from the seven-yard line—if he had thought of it!

But—well, that's why Zuppke is broadcasting.

Watch This Army Team!

AND, while on the subject, events are shaping up so that the Army eleven will have to be fitted into the national championship picture, thanks to the fine work of the Illini against Michigan. At this writing the Army has only to clean up its schedule to command the attention of the entire country with a claim for the national title.

That must make Harvey Jablonsky, the St. Louis boy who captains the Cadets, feel very happy and proud.

Another Fallen Idol.

JACK DEMPSEY is not only refereeing wrestling matches, but he seems to be falling for the same publicity gags that have put the mat sport in the vaudeville class.

Dispatches last week told how Dempsey, while acting as a wresting referee, smashed Marshall Blackstock and "knocked him out," in order to "make the boys behave."

Dempsey has enjoyed national respect for a long time. For years he refused to lend himself to any cheap publicity stunts. When Dempsey said something or did anything, it was 100 per cent what he meant or intended. This helped build up the public's absolute belief in Dempsey and made him a popular idol.

Dempsey has been exploited in various ways and for big money. But up to recent months he has not resorted to anything but excusable publicity stunts.

A reversal of this policy can't fail to mar his standing with fans everywhere.

100 COACHES TO ATTEND MEETING OF STATE HIGH SCHOOLS FRIDAY

First Victory in 19 Seasons for Coast High School

By the Associated Press.

SAN RAFAEL, Cal., Nov. 6. HUNGRY for victory after 19 years of defeats, supporters of Tamalpais Union High School's football team ran wild in the heat of battle here with the following results:

Start of fourth period: Tamalpais 0, San Rafael High School 0.

Tamalpais scores: Set of goal posts vanishes.

Tamalpais scores again: Ball disappears.

Time out for recovering goal posts and ball, 25 minutes.

Final score: Tamalpais 12, San Rafael 0.

More than 100 high school coaches from various points in the State will be in St. Louis this weekend for the annual meeting of the Missouri State Athletic Association, which is to be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock at Hotel Statler.

Meeting for the purpose of voting on pre-submitted proposals to amend the association's constitution and by-laws, the coaches will be faced with an unusually large number of suggestions. There are eight proposals to amend the constitution and one to amend the by-laws. Several are of importance to local high schools.

One of them was advanced by the St. Louis District Association, which at present is an internal organization of the Southeast district of the State association. The main change in this lengthy proposition is to remove St. Louis and county from the Southeast district and make them a separate district.

Also concerned in this proposal is the State's Board of Control. Heretofore, this board has consisted of six members, one elected at large and five representing the five districts of the State (southeast, northeast, southwest, northwest and central.) This will be altered so as to dissolve the position of member-at-large, and so that each member of the Board of Control will be elected each October district meeting (including the St. Louis one) instead of at the November State meeting.

Would Transfer St. Charles High.

Another proposal reads: "That the St. Charles High School be transferred from the Northeast District of the Missouri State High School Athletic Association to the Southeast District." If the redistricting proposal is passed, this will probably be changed to admit St. Charles to the St. Louis area. For several years St. Charles has been a member of the local County League.

Country Day School recommended that the eight semester rule be abolished. Should this pass, a student would be eligible for participation in sports no matter how many semesters he attended school, providing, of course, he were under the State association's age limit of 21 years, or if in the St. Louis district, providing he were under the local limit of 20 years.

Charles A. Roberts, Webster High's athletic director, initiated another proposal in regard to the same eight-semester rule. He wants to permit a boy of 18 years or less to play in the ninth semester. This would be unnecessary, however, should Country Day's proposal be carried. Neither is intended to affect the rule by which a student is allowed only four seasons of competition in a single sport.

Would Admit School for Deaf.

Other proposals concern the admittance of the Missouri School for the Deaf of Fulton to the association, the duty of the Board of Control in relation to the State basketball tournament and track meet, and the exchange of eligibility lists, which by the new amendment would have to be made five days before a contest.

According to Carl Burris, State secretary, who lives in Clayton, the association will continue its practice of rating officials, as inaugurated last year. At the end of a season, each coach is sent a sheet on which to list the officials he hired and their rating based on the season's work.

Among St. Louis football officials last year, R. C. Lewis of Beaumont was rated highest at 1.33, three coaches sending in their rating of him. Roy Newsom, judged by eight coaches, rated 1.87. Both marks are between excellent and good.

Will Answer Questions.

During the remainder of her stay in St. Louis, Mrs. McCutcheon will continue to answer questions on bowling through the columns of the Post-Dispatch. A number of bowling enthusiasts—including men and women—are taking advantage of the opportunity to ask questions, in order to iron out rough spots in their game. If YOU have a bowling question you desire to ask Mrs. McCutcheon, write to her in care of the Post-Dispatch. The questions and answers will be printed promptly.

The booklet on bowling for women, written especially for Post-Dispatch readers by Mrs. McCutcheon, is still available. In order to obtain a copy, merely drop a card to the Bowling Editor of the Post-Dispatch. The booklet will be forwarded promptly without charge.

Following are some of the latest questions received by Mrs. McCutcheon, with her answers:

Q. How far should I put my thumb into the thumb hole of the ball? I have been putting it only to the first joint, but I find that I drop the balls at times. MRS. R. C. T.

A. You should put your thumb in about half way between the first and second joint. If you try to "bury your thumb" in the ball, the ball will slip as it swings down and you will lose control of it. I might say a word further in connection with the proper hold. Always place your fingers in the holes first, seeing that they are firmly held against the inside wall of the finger holes. Then place your thumb in the thumb hole in the manner previously described.

Q. How far back should I swing the ball? MRS. H. T. J.

A. Never swing your ball back. Always allow your ball to swing your arm back. If you swing your ball back, you vary the amount of swing you give it, but if you allow your ball to swing your arm, the weight of the ball and the length of your arm will govern the amount of your swing, and tend to make it uniform.

You Can Use Light Ball.

Q. Is it best to use a light ball when learning to bowl? E. R. A.

A. Yes, it is probably best to start with a light ball, if you mean by that merely while learning to coordinate the swing of your ball with your steps in approaching the foul line. But after you have done that, try using a little heavier ball. If you carry the weight of your ball forward, in the left hand, only grasping it lightly with the right hand, and let the weight of the ball swing your relaxed arm down and back, you will not notice the extra weight in the slightly heavier ball. If you attempt, however, to bring down even the light ball with a bent or tense arm, the lightest of bowling balls will seem very heavy.

Hubbell Gives Pitching Hints to Oklahoma Youths

By the Associated Press.

NORMAN, Ok., Nov. 6.

CARL HUBBELL, a guest of honor at the Oklahoma home-coming football game with Kansas Saturday, thrilled the Sooner baseball team with "inside dope" on pitching and promised to train with the Sooner nine next spring.

The New York Giant pitching star told them:

"A college baseball player should never leave school to go with a big-league ball club.

"On a 3-2 count, give the batter anything but a fast ball. The same thing goes on a 3-1 count, too.

"With two strikes and no balls, I'd never throw the third one in.

"Most pitchers use a slow curve for change of pace.

"A high fast ball is hardest to bunt.

"I rarely try to strike out anybody unless the bases are full and I get two strikes on the batter."

Chicago Bears Lose First Game In 'Pro' League

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—With the scalps of the Chicago Bears dangling from their belts, the Boston Red Skins sent a war whoop of confidence over the National professional football league today. The Braves, themselves all but out of the championship race with three defeats and one tie, surprised the league yesterday by throwing up an air tight pass defense that worked perfectly within the 20-yard zone and pushing over a touchdown and a field goal to hand the Bears their first defeat of the season, 10 to 0, before 22,820 fans at Boston. Jim "Sweet" Musick, former University of Southern California star, scored the touchdown after a 50-yard drive with Cliff Battles in the first period and Battles added the field goal in the third session.

Chicago still led the championship parade, however, with a record of six victories and one defeat, Portsmouth losing a chance to gain a first place tie as the New York Giants came from behind with an irresistible rush in the final period to beat the Spartans, 13 to 10.

Green Bay's Packers won an argument with officials and an otherwise listless game from the Chicago Cardinals, 14 to 6, at Chicago. Bob Monnett scored two touchdowns for the Packers. The game was enlivened in the third period by a near riot among the players, precipitated when officials ruled that Grove of the Packers had touched a punt that was recovered on Green Bay's three-yard line where it was recovered by the Cardinals. Captain Cal Hubbard of the Packers protested and swung at the referee. His swing hit a Cardinal player and a general free-for-all was started. As the players calmed down, Green Bay was given the ball although the Cardinals later cashed in with a touchdown.

In other games yesterday, Philadelphia defeated Cincinnati, 6 to 0, and Pittsburgh and Brooklyn tied at 3-all.

DIEGEL SCORES 282 TO WIN IN COAST TOURNEY

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 6.—Coming from behind with a sub-par 69, Leo Diegel of Philadelphia, former P. G. A. champion, captured the Southern California open golf championship at the Fox Hills Country Club yesterday with a medal score of 282, six under par, for 72 holes.

Diegel won by snaring four birdies on the last nine holes to finish the final 18 three under part and lead the field by five strokes, Willie Hunter, former British amateur champion and professional, now at Fox Hills, was in second place at 287.

Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles professional, who held the lead at the end of 54 holes by shooting a 68 in the morning round, folded up on the last 18 in an attack of Nervousness on the greens and finished third with 291.

Fred Morrison, the big Pasadena professional, and Olin Dutra, P. G. A. champion last year, dropped back badly on the last 18, each carding 77's. Morrison finished with a 72-hole medal of 294 and Dutra slipped to 301. Fay Coleman, Los Angeles pro, was fourth with 292.

Diegel held the title once before, in 1930.

Although a decision was not arrived at, it is probable money prizes will be awarded on the basis of a $1000 purse, with 30 per cent to Diegel, 20 per cent to Hunter and the remainder split up among the field.

TEAR OUT AS A REMINDER

STIX CLUB WINS, 3-1, FOR FOURTH SOCCER VICTORY

By Herman Wecke.

Exhibiting a far better brand of team-play than has been in evidence this season, the Stix, Baer & Fuller eleven gained its fourth victory in five starts in the St. Louis Soccer League at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon, defeating the Ben Millers, 3 goals to 1. Phil Kavanaugh's Minit Rubs trimmed the Andersons, 2 to 1, to take over second place. Fewer than 600 turned out for the double bill.

Tate Brady sent what was probably his strongest team on the field for the Stix. Eddie Flavin was back at center forward, flanked by Scotty Nilsen and Billy Gonsalves, while Alex McNab and Frank Pastor were on the wings. Pastor played instead of Willie McLean, who is ill. Though out of position, Pastor was in the game up to his neck and had much to do with the triumph.

The first goal for the Stix came when McNab crossed to Pastor, who passed to Gonsalves and the big inside forward hit the net with a shot. On the next goal, Flavin dropped the ball on Nilsen's foot and Scotty sent it past Johnny Hamm. This in the first period. Shortly after the restart, following a throw-in by McPherson, Nilsen passed to Pastor, who tallied. Brengle tallied for the Millers on a pass from Nash.

In losing to the Kavanaughs, the Andersons did not show the same fire they exhibited the previous week in gaining a draw with the Stix. The Andersons were first to tally, Dinty Moore converting a cross from McAuliffe. Pat Reidy took a pass from A. Garcia to equalize for the Kavanaughs. In the closing period, A. Garcia was in the right spot for Reidy's fine cross and tapped the sphere into the net. Previously the same player had missed a wide open shot, sending the sphere past the upright when Rodriguez was far out of position.

Four athletes were sent to the penalty box for two-minute durations. In the first game, Pastor and Benisch started swinging fists and were banished by Ribby Murphy, while Oscar Mossman sent M. Selby and Walsh on their way to "cool off" for arguing too strenuously on decisions.

Next Sunday's matches will pit the Stix against the Kavanaughs, with the Andersons playing the Millers.

JACKSON JOHNSON JR. POST PLANS ITS NEXT FIGHT CARD ON NOV. 20

Matchmaker Eddie Byrne of the Jackson Johnson Jr. Post of the American Legion announced over the week-end that the post will offer its next boxing show on Monday night, Nov. 20, at the Coliseum.

Byrne is planning to use either a pair of lightweights or two prominent heavyweights in the feature of a proposed four-bout card, he said.

The post matchmaker has opened negotiations with Cecil Payne, Louisville lightweight contender who defeated Davey Abad at the Coliseum on Oct. 26 and Al Stillman, local heavyweight.

If Payne is signed for the headliner his opponent will be picked from Tracey Cox, Indianapolis, slugger; Eddie (Kid) Speaks, also of Indianapolis; Frankie Wallace of Cleveland or Joe Ghnouly, popular St. Louisan who has been campaigning in Canada and the East.

If Stillman draws the main event assignment the services of either Tuffy Griffiths of Chicago or Charley Belanger, light-heavyweight champion of Canada, will be sought.

Bowling Officers Elected.

At a meeting of the Officers' Club of the Greater St. Louis Bowling Association yesterday afternoon, John M. Koelsch was elected president to succeed George R. Fishwick, who has been in office for five years. Other officers are: F. Sunkel, vice-president; Walter Bruening, second vice-president; Ollie Krage, third vice-president; J. H. Wemhoener, treasurer, and Charles F. Bieger, secretary. The annual tournament will be held Dec. 16 and 17 at Fairgrounds Hotel.

WRENCHED KNEE TO KEEP BROWN OUT OF BUTLER GAME, SATURDAY

With a record of two victories in the six games so far this season, Washington University's football players will start working today in preparation for their next Missouri Valley Conference game with the Butler Bulldogs, Saturday afternoon.

The squad arrived home yesterday from Omaha, Neb., where they took an 18-0 defeat at the hands of Creighton University's team. Most of the players survived the contest without injury. Harry Brown hurt his knee, and is the only player whose injury is expected to keep him out of the Butler game.

Glynn Clark had a recurrence of his knee trouble. He was taken out during the first half of the Creighton game, but went back in the second half. He is expected to be in good condition this week. Ed Fredrickson hurt his shoulder slightly.

In the last two Valley games with Drake and Creighton, Washington has made 21 first downs to its opponents' 19. This indicates that its offense is sound enough, the main trouble being that the Bears lack a scoring punch when within striking distance.

Jimmy Conzelman, head coach of the Bears, said that the difficulty shown in these two games is the same as it has been in all the games this season. The backfield men still haven't developed enough speed in the open.

Anna Pro Eleven Wins.

Too hard to bend easily

ENDERS BLADES ARE TOO HARD TO DULL EASILY

You never need to whip an Enders Blade out of shape—or out of temper—putting it into the razor. It doesn't have to be a thin, flimsy, soft kind of blade to fit the razor.

That's why the Enders Blade can be—and is—made of the finest strips of Swedish cutlery steel. Thick enough, as any good cutlery should be. Heavy enough, rigid enough, strong and hard enough to take and hold the keenest edge.

Tested repeatedly—in Enders laboratories by a staff of metallurgical engineers—for sharpness and for hardness.

When a blade can pass the Enders system of inspection, it's ready to whisk away the toughest beard a man ever grew—and still be fresh and keen for the next morning's crop.

CARONDELET AND PERFECTION WIN DEMOLAY GAMES

By Harold Tuthill

Earl Hahn, former Cleveland High School star, returned to the De Molay football wars for the first time this season to provide the touchdown that enabled Carondelet to defeat St. Louis Chapter, 6 to 0, yesterday afternoon in the second game of the doubleheader at Sisler Park. Fred Glazier scored twice as the Perfection Chapter won from Harmony, 12 to 0, in the first game. The attendance was about 1000.

Hahn's return was of great relief to Oliver Ammon, the Carondelet coach, as the squad had been riddled by injuries last week, due to the hard-packed earth. Nobody was hurt badly yesterday as the ground was soft from Saturday's heavy rain. The going was just as tough for Hahn as 't was for the rest of the backfield men, but Earl took advantage of :is freshness to score shortly after the game opened on a 39-yard run. Bob Scanland's plunge for the extra point was short.

Hahn had been in attendance at Iowa University, but he quit and returned home about a week ago. He said after the contest that "he had had one practice with the squad and that he didn't know where he was going against St. Louis any more than his mates did." But the one opening he found was enough to give Carondelet the decision, because the defending champions were stopped cold by the Carondelet line and the two first downs registered by St. Louis were made on penalties. Carondelet made only three first downs.

Title Game Next Sunday.

When Perfection won the first game it established the setting for the contest next week that may decide the 1933 championship as Perfection and Carondelet, which are now tied for first with two victories and a tie, will meet for the second time this season. It will also bring together two individual stars—Hahn and Lilbrun Ochs, former University City satellite.

Ochs gave a good account of himself in sending Harmony down to its third straight defeat. In the second period, Perfection recovered a punt on Harmony's 10-yard line and Glazier scored from the four-yard mark. Early in the third quarter the some thing happened, only this time the ball was recovered on the 15-yard line, from where Glazier went over right tackle for the score. Both tries for the extra points were missed by Ochs.

The punting, passing and running of Ochs kept Harmony on the defensive most of the game, but neither team threatened seriously in the final period.

The standings:

Perfection	2	0	1	1.000

Tiger Regulars To Be Ready to Face Oklahoma

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 6.—Despite a bad mauling received in a 20-to-0 defeat by Nebraska Saturday, the Missouri Tiger squad will be at full strength again in time for the homecoming game with Oklahoma next Saturday, Coach Frank Carideo announced last night after completing examination of three first string men who were injured.

Herb Grenda of Laporte, Ind., sophomore right end, who was knocked unconscious on the last play of the first half attempting to grab a pass, was the most seriously hurt. At the university hospital he was found to be suffering from badly cut lip and slight brain concussion.

Ted Bland of Kansas City, veteran guard, suffered a recurrence of an old knee injury that had kept him on the bench for two weeks. Carideo said, however, that the injury was less serious than it was at first feared and that Bland, one of the most dependable tacklers in the Tiger line, would be able to play against Oklahoma.

GOV. HORNER TAKES APPEAL FOR RELIEF BONDS TO PEOPLE

Says Legislative Opponents of Plan Are Trying to Prevent Reduction in Taxes.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 6.—Gov. Henry Horner yesterday carried the case for the $30,000,000 unemployment relief bond program, which has caused a legislative deadlock of five weeks, to the taxpayers.

In a prepared statement, the Governor defended the bond program, declared counter-proposals inadequate, and inferentially charged political considerations were responsible for a part of th: opposition.

"Opponents of the bond issue," the Governor declared, "are determined to prevent the administration from reducing taxes."

"That motive," said the Governor, "is behind the counter proposals that have been made by opponents of the bond issue plan. There is no other reasonable explanation for their insistent demand to divert part or all of the proceeds of the retailers' occupational (sales) tax for unemployment relief purposes after Jan. 1, 1934."

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Exce[pt for] generally moderate gains in [silver] shares, particularly the silv[er is]sues, stocks made slight ch[anges] today. Activity was almost [at a] standstill in the pre-holiday se[ssion] and transfers approximated [about] 650,000 shares.

The close was somewhat ir[regu]lar, gains of more than frac[tions to an] extent being limited largely t[o the] mining group. Wall street pa[id lit]tle attention to the day's gold p[rice] or to the fluctuations of foreig[n ex]change which were featured [by a] strong advance in sterling to [the] highest levels in nearly 20 y[ears]. The pound later lost much [of its] rise and the gold currencies [...]. Wheat was heavy.

With bar silver making a [new] high since 1930, traders paid [...] attention to shares of compani[es in]terested in that metal. Inte[rnati]onal Silver and United States S[melt]ing rose more than three p[oints]. Cerro de Pasco and Ame[rican] Smelting also improved.

There was a mild flurr[y to]ward the close in some of [the] stocks representing comp[anies] which would be expected to [benefit] by expanded commercial rel[ations] with the Soviets. General El[ectric], Allis Chalmers and Westing[house] gained moderately, but indu[strials] generally were sluggish, G[eneral] Motors, U. S. Steel, Case and [Amer]ican Can losing fractions to a point, American Telephon[e ...] 1½. Rails were mostly lower[...] ruled steady, and alcohols [...].

Leading commodities to[ok a] downward trend. Wheat l[ost ...] to 1⅞ cents a bushel and co[tton ...] off fractions to a full cent. [...] apparently affected by bearis[h] estimates, sagged 90c to $1.10 [...] net.

Sterling at its high crossed [...] up more than 6 cents, b[ut] th[en lost] about two-thirds of its ad[vance]. French francs eased a cou[ple] points to around 6.04 cents. Dutch guilders. Swiss franc[s and] the Belga were down more [exten]sively. Scandinavians fo[llowed] sterling.

News of the Day.
President Roosevelt's refu[sal to] accept the farm State Gove[rnors'] price fixing program as imp[...] able encouraged inflationis[ts in] Wall street, since they felt th[e agi]tation for more drastic mo[netary] measures would result. Ne[verthe]less, despite the constantly [rising] gold price, Wall street ge[nerally] was in a fog as to inflation[, and] markets failed to reflect ex[pecta]tion of it.

Gold Prices Advanced.
Sterling exchange surge[d] strongly against both dollars [and] the French franc. The [pound] opened here at $4.92⅛, the h[ighest] in about 20 years, compared [with] the old gold parity of $4.86⅝, [an] advance over Saturday's close [of] 6⅝ cents.

First transactions in the fr[anc in] New York were at 6.08 cen[ts, up] .01½ cent. Other foreign [curren]cies were erratic, Dutch g[uilders] losing ground. Scandinavia[ns fol]lowed sterling.

Unrest in parts of the far[m belt] again directed attention to [agri]cultural problems as the [market] opened.

Day's 10 Most Active St[ocks].
Closing price and net ch[ange of] the 10 most active stocks: [Am.] Smelt. & Ref., 45⅞, up 1¼; [Nat.] ley Distill., 36¼, down 1½; [...] Distill., 92¾, down 1¾; [...] Airc., 31, down ½; Gen. [...] 28⅜, down ¼; Gen. Elec., [...] ⅜; Coml. Solvents, 33⅛, d[own ...] U. S. Steel, 40, down ⅝; [In]tyre Porc., 42⅜, up ½; Ce[rro de] Pasco, 37⅝, up 1⅞.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Except for generally moderate gains in metal shares, particularly the silver issues, stocks made slight changes today. Activity was almost at a standstill in the pre-holiday session and transfers approximated only 650,000 shares.

The close was somewhat irregular, gains of more than fractional extent being limited largely to the mining group. Wall street paid little attention to the day's gold prices or to the fluctuations of foreign exchange which were featured by a strong advance in sterling to the highest levels in nearly 20 years. The pound later lost much of its rise and the gold currencies eased. Wheat was heavy.

With bar silver making a new high since 1930, traders paid some attention to shares of companies interested in that metal. International Silver and United States Smelting rose more than three points, Cerro de Pasco and American Smelting also improved.

There was a mild flurry toward the close in some of the stocks representing companies which would be expected to profit by expanded commercial relations with the Soviets. General Electric, Allis Chalmers and Westinghouse gained moderately, but industrials generally were sluggish, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Case and American Can losing fractions to around a point. American Telephone lost 1½. Rails were mostly lower. Oils ruled steady, and alcohols eased.

Leading commodities took a downward trend. Wheat lost 1¼ to 1⅞ cents a bushel and corn was off fractions to a full cent. Cotton, apparently affected by bearish crop estimates, sagged 90c to $1.10 a bale net.

Sterling at its high crossed $4.92, up more than 6 cents, but then lost about two-thirds of its advance. French francs eased a couple of points to around 6.04 cents, while Dutch guilders. Swiss francs and the Belga were down more extensively. Scandinavians followed sterling.

News of the Day.

President Roosevelt's refusal to accept the farm State Governors' price fixing program as impracticable encouraged inflationists in Wall street, since they felt that agitation for more drastic monetary measures would result. Nevertheless, despite the constantly rising gold price, Wall street generally was in a fog as to inflation, and markets failed to reflect expectation of it.

Gold Prices Advanced.

Sterling exchange surged up strongly against both dollars and the French franc. The pound opened here at $4.92⅛, the highest in about 20 years, compared with the old gold parity of $4.86⅝, the advance over Saturday's close being 6⅛ cents.

First transactions in the franc at New York were at 6.08 cents, up .01½ cent. Other foreign currencies were erratic, Dutch guilders losing ground. Scandinavians followed sterling.

Unrest in parts of the farm belt again directed attention to agricultural problems as the week opened.

"STEEL'S" WEEKLY SUMMARY OF CONDITIONS IN INDUSTRY

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 6.—"With the general demand for steel still shrinking, hope for a reversal of the downward trend in steelworks operations rests upon the promptness with which the program of railroad buying and the requirements for public works projects can be converted into rolling mill schedules," says the magazine "Steel."

"Agreement on a price of $36,375 for standard rails and the allotment by Public Works act of $135,000,000 to the railroads for the purchase of rails, trackwork, rolling stock, power and equipment would seem to clear the way for the placing of orders at an early date. However, the expenditures may be spread over a period of many months. For instance, the $51,000,000 nominally set aside for the purchase of 1,000,000 tons of rails and 400,000 tons of fastenings, is likely to extend over the entire year of 1934.

"At the moment, the allocation of $84,000,000 to the Pennsylvania's electrification program seems to hold more promise of early, diversified business than the track material deal. The announcement from Washington, stating that the Public Works act allotment provides for roadbed improvement, and the building of 132 electric locomotives and 7000 cars, is interpreted to mean that early releases can be approved of certain orders placed more than a year ago. About 40,000 tons of shapes on old contracts are expected to be released as a result of the plan to resume the Pennsylvanias electrification project.

"The pig iron market remains quiet, with shipments declining slightly. Current speculation points to a price advance for first quarter business, but the difficulty of introducing higher prices unless consumption improves considerably is appreciated. The scrap market is listless, with prices sagging slightly.

"Steel works operations for the week ending Nov 4 averaged 25 per cent, a drop of 5 points from the previous week. The rate in the Pittsburgh district was 25 per cent, a drop from 29; in Chicago, 31 per cent, a decline from 36; in Eastern Pennsylvania, 19 per cent, as compared with 20½, and in Youngstown, 32 per cent, from 38. COTTON MARKET CLOSES 18 TO 22 POINTS LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Cotton was quiet and easier today under further scattering liquidation in preparation for the holiday tomorrow and the Government crop report scheduled for publication on Wednesday. December eased to 9.41 and May to 9.75, the general market showing net losses of 16 to 17 points around 2 o'clock. According to a canvass made this morning, New York Cotton Exchange members on the average are looking for a crop of about 13,254,000 bales.

Futures closed barely steady, 18@22c lower. Dec., $9.35@36; Jan., $9.41; March, $9.57; May, $9.70; July, $9.85; Oct., $10.16 nominal. Spot, quiet; middling, $9.55. (n) Nominal.

Trading was moderately active. Early selling was more or less concentrated in near month liquidation while pressure from the South was not particularly heavy. Although houses with Liverpool connections were on both sides of the market there appeared to be some continental buying here on differences. Weakness of the dollar against sterling attracted some attention but had little influence at the moment. There was some disposition to even up accounts for over tomorrow's local holiday as well as in advance of the Government crop estimate on Wednesday. Price changes were narrow before session had gone far, December selling off from $9.50 to $9.47 and the general market ruling about 10 or 12 points net lower. Liverpool cables reported a small market owing to uncertainties in the currency situation with prices lower under local, continental and Bombay selling on fears of further dollar depreciation. Manchester reported a fair inquiry for cloths.

Three more of the private and end-October crop reports were issued during the morning with figures on the indicated yield ranging all the way from 11,975,000 up to 13,620,000 sales. These figures were without apparent effect on the market which remained quiet with prices sagging off under further scattered selling or liquidation for over tomorrow's adjournment and the Government crop report of Wednesday There was very little selling by the South and according to early reports offerings from the interior are very light owing to the cold rains in the West and the holding movement.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Sharp rise in sterling against the dollar and continental gold currencies was the outstanding feature of the foreign exchange market today. At the top level of $4.92¼, the pound was up 6¾ cents from Saturday and a its highest since 1914. Later the rate eased to $4.88½.

The unusual strength in British funds simultaneously with heaviness in the gold monies was attributed by some exchange dealers to a flight of capital from the continent to London because of uncertainties facing the gold standard nations. French francs declined about .03 of a cent, but later recovered partly to 6.05 cents. The Dutch guilder was down .30 of a cent and the Swiss franc .09 of a cent. The Belgian belga ranged a shade higher. Scandinavian currencies and the Canadian dollar were higher in sympathy with the rise in sterling.

WHEAT MARKET LOWER AND CORN PRICES MIXED

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Prices of all grains averaged lower late today, sales increasing on all rallies.

Nothing was heard regarding further foreign demand for corn, although November delivery of corn in Rotterdam advanced ½ cent, and showed a premium over November delivery of wheat in that market. Some selling of wheat against purchases of corn in Chicago narrowed the spread between the two grains, but failed to sustain corn market advances.

Corn closed irregular, 1 cent lower to ½ cent higher, compared with Saturday's finish, wheat 1¼@1⅞ down, oats ½@⅞ off and provisions unchanged to 15 cents higher.

The bulk of trade in wheat and corn today up to the final hour was of a professional character, with buying of corn against sales of wheat. Commission house trade was mainly in small amounts. On the upturns in wheat, there was scattered selling attributed to the Northwest and Southwest, as Chicago has shown relatively more strength than outside markets. The cash corn basis was steady to ¼ cent lower, despite the fact that a leading industry was in the market as a buyer. November corn in Rotterdam today was quoted at 49¾, or ⅝ of a cent above the price of November wheat.

Wheat prices fluctuated nervously. The start was ½@1 cent lower under scattered commission house selling influenced by a decline in stocks and cotton and Liverpool. Prices rallied to above the previous close on moderate commission-house buying inspired by strength in sterling. Profit-taking sales by longs caused a later reaction.

Liverpool was lower under outside liquidation and because of the strength in sterling. Winnipeg reported exporters buying futures in that market. Broomhall said reports regarding Australian wheat crop are more unfavorable.

Next month will see the commencement of new wheat shipments from Australia and the Argentine. However, this grain will not reach consuming countries until the end of February in any volume.

Navigation will close in the St. Lawrence next month. Final clearances from Montreal last year were made during the week ending Dec. 10. North American wheat receipts total this week 7,123,000. Last week 8,242,000. Last year 9,922,000.

Corn was nervous. December slumped badly on first trades under profit-taking sales by Saturday's buyers but supporting orders and commission-house buying soon caused rallies. Country offerings to arrive were larger.

Corn led grain prices upward today after downturns at the start.

There was no real material selling pressure in evidence, and commission houses were moderate buyers. Opening unchanged to 1¾c lower, corn subsequently rose all around. Wheat started ½@1c down and later recovered.

Later wheat again reacted.

A rise of about a cent a bushel in corn values compared with Saturday's finish took place in short order. Hesitancy at the start was more or less due to assertions from British trade authorities that American corn was still 13 cents a bushel out of line for Europe, except special grades of white corn used in small quantities in England every year. On the other hand, sharp notice was taken in some quarters that British exchange had made a steep jump to above par, and that there had been another upturn in the United States quotation on gold.

Wheat at times went above Saturday's close, but advances were not maintained, and wheat setbacks served as a drag on corn and oats. Downturns of securities in New York were a bearish factor at this stage. Comparative weakness of wheat was in the face of news that the Argentine Government estimated the remaining exportable surplus of wheat in Argentina at 11,214,000 bushels and corn at 83,614,000. These figures were both reported as considerably under recent unofficial estimates.

Provision advanced in line with hog values.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Raw sugar was quiet early today and prices were unchanged at 3.30 with no sales reported.

Futures opened at 1 to 3 points advance on covering and a little buying by trade interests as if influenced by the advance in the gold price and press rumors that the Tariff Commission may seek a reduction in the Cuban tariff from the present 2 cents per pound to 1.50 or 1.45. The demand was soon supplied however, and the failure of the early advance to bring in more buying seemed to discourage holders and reactions followed under a renewal of outside liquidation and selling by commission houses. December contracts after selling at 1.33 declined to 1.29 while March reacted from 1.38 to 1.32 or 2 to 3 points below the previous close with the market at midday ruling at or within a point of the lowest.

Only a moderate inquiry was reported through re-sale offerings. Prices were un- for refined sugar and this was supplied changed with refiners listing at 4.60 and second hands available at 4.55.

Futures closed steady; 2 to 3 lower; sales, 7300 tons; December, 1.29; January, 1.29; March, 1.33; May, 1.38; July, 1.44; September, 1.49.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Packers Buy Very Few Hogs on First Day of Processing Tax

Light Offerings at National Yards Are Taken by Shippers and Butchers at Price Advances.

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Ill., Nov. 6.—Receipts estimated: Cattle, 4200; calves, 1800; hogs, 6000; sheep, 1000; horses and mules, 800.

HOGS—The processing tax of 50c per hundredweight on pork occupied the spotlight today and the day's hog trade was largely governed by this feature. Country-men were rather dubious about the effects of the tax and a large number held back their stock today to await the outcome.

Receipts were thus below normal, here and elsewhere, and a good inquiry, "pepped up" by colder weather, gave substantially higher rates in an active trade. Supplies were estimated at 6000 head, of which 300 head were on through billing. At seven Western markets arrivals were approximately 55,700 head, against an actual count of 100,463 head a week ago and 56,174 head a year ago.

Today's advance was in line with similar courses elsewhere. Profit was mostly 15c to 20c, compared with rates at the close of last week. Majority of good to choice 170 to 230 pound weights commanded $4.20 to the top, $4.30, with $4.25 as the most prominent figure. Droves of 250s to 290s ruled $4.10@4.15, while a load of fancy 424-pound averages cashed on shipping account at $4.

Shipping and butchering outlets absorbed bulk of receipts early today and major killers were held to relatively light purchases.

Initial sales of pigs and light lights were steady to 10c higher, with 100s to 120s $3@3.50; 140s to 150s, $3.75@4.10; 160s, $4.15. Southern and common pigs were quotable down to $2.

Packing sows were 10c to 15c higher. Range was $3.15@3.50, with the bulk $3.25 up.

The late hog market was same as early. Packer purchases were negligible. Pigs and light lights were steady with Friday, with 100-110s at $3@3.25, 120-130s $3.40@3.60, 140-150s $3.85@4, 160s $4.15; clearance good; bulk of day's sales, $4@4.30.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Nov. 6 (U. S. Dept. of Agricutiture).

CATTLE, 4200; calves, 1800; market at standstill on steers and bids unevenly lower with exception of a few deals on most desirable light weights at $4.65@5.75; other classes of cattle generally active and fully steady; with vealers 25c higher; top $6.00; mixed yearlings and heifers, $3.50@5.50; cows, $2.25@2.75; low cutters, $1.25@1.50; top sausage bulls, $2.65; nominal range, slaughter steers, $2.75@6.25; slaughter heifers, $2.25@6.25.

SHEEP, 1000; fat lambs, 25@50c higher; largely to shippers; other classes steady. Better wooled lambs, $6.50@6.75; a few $7.00; medium lambs, $4.50@5.50; common throwouts, $3.50@4.00; shorn lambs, $6.25@6.35; fat ewes, $2.00@2.75.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY STOCKYARDS.

Mississippi Valley Stockyards at St. Louis officially reports Monday's business as follows:

RECEIPTS—Cattle, 400; calves, 275; hogs, 1600; sheep, 250.

HOGS—Demand good and trading active and mostly 15c higher; top, $4.30; bulk of 170 to 260 lb, $4.20@4.25; odd lots of extreme heavies dipped to $4; weights 110 to 150 lbs, $3.25@3.75; 150 to 170's, at $3.75@4.20; packing sows, $3.15@3.40.

CATTLE—Generally about steady with the exception of cows and vealers. Buyers were exerting bearish pressure on cow stuff while vealers scored a 25c advance, tops going up to $6, first cuts $5. Sales of fat steers mainly $5@5.50, occasional deal higher; mixed steer and heifer yearlings of 700 lbs topped at $6, other fat kinds at $4.75@5.75; plain to fair steers and mixed yearlings, $3@4.50; beef cows, $2@2.75; canners and cutters, $1@2; top bulls, $2.60.

SHEEP—Some strength was shown in lambs with packers paying $6.25@6.50 for best offerings; medium lambs bulked $4.50@5.50 and culls $3.50@4; fat sheep, $2.75 down. Trade in lambs was slow due to sharply higher asking prices, some lambs being held at $6.75.

Best Plan Is to Run.

Prohibition's Last Gasp.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

(Copyright, 1933.)

MEN cling to old sayings, safe, familiar. Proverbs save thinking and the certainty that no one can disagree with what is said, helps.

New York's four candidates for Mayor describe the "paramount issue" of the election.

Mr. La Guardia, Fusion candidate: "The paramount issue is restoration of the control of government to the people."

Mr. Solomon, Socialist candidate: "The paramount issue is the reconstruction of the government in the interests of the masses of the people."

Mr. McKee, Independent Democratic candidate, says: "The paramount issue is the restoration of the government of the city to the people."

Mr. O'Brien, Regular Democratic candidate, changes it a little: "The paramount issue is the election of officials who will best manage the affairs of the city."

No government has ever been "restored to the people," for no people anywhere has ever possessed any government, since tribal days. People see new governments come, watch them to see what happens.

It is the same from Timbuctoo to Brooklyn, under King George, Mussolini, Hitler, Stalin, Kemal, or our Government here. The people get the government they deserve, and as they pay less attention to public affairs than to anything else they do not deserve or get much. What you can't do for yourself, others cannot or will not do for you.

The President's rejection of proposed farm products price-fixing avoids much card-punching. Each farmer was to produce so many bushels of wheat and corn, raise so many hogs, as his quota. When he sold wheat or hogs, his card for hogs or wheat would be punched for the amount of the sale. His production and sales quota punched full, he could sell no more, and must eat overproduction or get rid of it somehow.

There was to be "one punch for 100 bushels of wheat," the wheat card, another punch for so many hogs, etc.

Old farmers will recall a song of Mark Twain's day that might be revived appropriately: "Punch, brothers, punch; punch with care, punch in the presence of the passengaire. A green trip slip for a six-cent fare," etc.

Farmers' organizations had suspended their strike, but now order it renewed, in 21 states. They want the Government to guarantee a fair price.

The individual farmer values his personal freedom, likes to be in business "on his own hook, in his own way." To tell him how much wheat, how many hogs, he may raise does not suit him, unless he has changed.

Sir Phillip Gibbs, who wrote a good deal about the big war, says the next will not come for some years, because youth, presumably not anxious for interment in "Flanders Fields," will hold it back.

In New York's Columbia University, 200 young men, representing many groups of students, announced that their peaceful convictions would not let them go to war for the Stars and Stripes under any circumstances.

These noble young Americans are willing to profit by fighting done in the past, 1776, 1812, etc., but would not spend their own ruddy drops.

Laws against immigration should be changed to admit fathers and mothers able to produce sons with fewer white feathers.

These Columbia college Americans will appreciate the wisdom of the old Chinese mother, in Pearl Buck's new book.

"My son, to extricate yourself from the difficulty there are 36 ways, but the best of them all is to run away."

Tomorrow, with six states voting on repeal, will doubtless see the official end of prohibition. Women and men responsible for the eighteenth amendment, were sincere, also those that doubted, but withheld criticism until the serious mistake, with its establishment of crime as a vast industry, could no longer be endured.

That at least three of the six states voting tomorrow will decide against trying to make men good by law seems certain.

Only time can change men. Time has abolished cannibalism, slavery, torture of witnesses. It will abolish

LISTEN, WORLD!

by Elsie Robinson

You're Lonely if You're Wise. You're Hated if You're Strong. And Yet—

"HOW I envy you!" she writes. "If I could only have a job like yours! To write such a wonderful column and have everyone admiring you, because you're wise and brave and strong."

Thanks, lady, for those well-meaning words. But you're wrong on all counts. This column isn't wonderful. Nor am I wise and brave and strong. Nor—and you can bet your last nickel on this—would people admire me if I were!

ELSIE ROBINSON

This column, as a matter of fact, is a rather pathetic affair. It's written by a person who has never been able to practice what she preaches — by a blind woman who loves stars but has never seen them—by a cripple who hungers for mountains but has never climbed them.

It isn't even a column! It's just a foolish, bewildered, sad—and frequently very mad—person mumbling to herself as she goes along, wondering what in heck it's all about. And, if there's any value to this space, perhaps that's why. For I suppose that we're all more or less like that. And maybe I'm such a fool that I manage to make the rest of you feel Plenty Smart by contrast!

So now you know the worst. Disappointed? But rest assured, poor stick though I am, you'd like me even less if I were the combination Samson-Solomon-Caesar that you have fondly imagined. For believe me, my dear—

The wise aren't merry—
They are very lonely;
The brave aren't popular—
They are a Public Nuisance;
The strong aren't rewarded—
They are put on the spot.

Nor is the reason for this hard to find. Wisdom, courage, strength and all the other virtues listen lovely in theory but are darned difficult and dangerous in practice. They are so difficult and dangerous that we lazy, cowardly, conceited humans duck practicing them whenever possible.

Accordingly we have made for ourselves a social framework which looks heroic and civilized but which actually requires the minimum of sense, strength and courage. All one needs to do to be respectable and respected in our smug, silly little world is to sit pretty and look wise.

Then along comes someone who isn't bluffing; someone who is really wise, brave and strong. And what happens

Why, of course, we hang wreaths, hand out medals and applaud madly—as long as he doesn't try to meddle in our affairs or show up our racket. But just let him start anything like that, and what happens?

Page Socrates, Joan of Arc, Debs, Mahatma Ghandi, Edith Cavell, Abraham Lincoln—or a young Hebrew carpenter called Jesus of Nazareth—and they'll tell you what happens. They, too, upset the Status Quo and defied the Stand Patters. Immediately they were shot, poisoned, crucified — and dropped from all the bridge clubs.

Which, of course, is the only logical thing for us to do to agitators and reformers if we intend to remain as we are. For by their record they raise heck with ours. Their wisdom humiliates our conceit, their courage challenges our cowardice, their strength shames our weakness. Naturally, we're forced to put such people into the dog-house, or go there ourselves!

And yet, though I know that Wisdom, Courage and Strength bring these certain penalties, personally I'd rather keep reaching for them than have all the safety, comfort, profit and popularity which the Stand Patters enjoy. For life's over so soon, at best, for the comfortable cowards as well as the sad saints.

And then—maybe there isn't any more. No more crusades. No more adventures. Never again a chance to strut your stuff like a god, even though you well know you're only a pigeon-toed faker.

So, things being that way, I'M FOR LIVING HIGH, WIDE AND HANDSOME WHILE THE LIVING'S GOOD!

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.

ANOTHER Hollywood battle. Bob Presnell, who formerly hung his hat at Warner Brothers, is now supervisor at Radio. He brought with him to the Radio studios "Hullabaloo," the story of a society girl who writes an anonymous society column. Radio will produce it, although Warners claim a previous interest in the story.

Joel McCrea

The "Hullabaloo" battle brings to light another bitter argument. Radio, wishing to cash in on the Joel McCrea-Frances Dee wedding, is trying to persuade the bride and groom to be co-starred in this film tale. Both Joel and Frances refused to be teamed. "Rothschild," the historical and romantic story of a man who amassed the world's greatest fortune, comes along at a psychological time.

A grin swept Hollywood following the announcement that E. H. Griffith would direct Ann Harding in "The World Outside." It was Griffith who directed Ann in her first film success, "Holiday," and how she did fight with him. I never thought I'd live to see the day when they could settle their differences sufficently to have Miss Harding relent.

The Hitler newspaper which Baron Ernst von der Decken edits will be without its editor for a few weeks. The Baron is headed for Hollywood to visit his wife, Dorothea Wieck. He left New York today, stops off in Chicago for a day or two, and then comes direct to Californ-i-a.

Dick Powell has fallen hard for Gwen Heller, attractive niece of Mrs. Jack Warner. Gwen and Mrs. Warner reached here Tuesday night and since that time the smitten crooner has bombarded her with flowers, telephone calls and dinner engagements.

Is Al Jolson getting a lineup in "Wunderbar" or isn't he? Just cast the optics over this—Dolores Del Rio, Dick Powell, Kay Francis, Ricardo Cortez, Guy Kibbe, Glenda Farrell, Ruth Donnelly, Hugh Herbert.

Irving Thalberg emphatically denies that Katherine Cornell will have any part in "Good Earth." It's a revived rumor of some months ago.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: The house that Phil Berg built for Leila Hyams officially christened; William Haines, who helped design the furnishings there, to help receive the guests. Gary Cooper and Sondra Shaw denying they will be married this week. Dec. 2 set for the opening of the Mayfair Club. Sidney Blackmer, with head bandaged from his recent operation, on the Mae Clarke set. Dorothy Mackaill, Neil Miller and Mrs. Paul Lukas dancing to Jay Whidden's band at the reopening of the Biltmore Supper Club; Laurel and Ted, interpretative dancers, getting a big hand at the Biltmore from the Clarence Browns and Bill Van Dyke. The Warren Williams off for New York for a holiday. The Clive Brooks at Arrowhead Springs, also the Warner Baxters.

England's panting for our movie stars. Billie Dove is the latest to have a call from overseas. Dorothy Mackaill, too, has been paged by a cable to leave Hollywood and make an English picture. Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon have been called back. They have refused to leave Hollywood for the time being but both Ben and Bebe have agreed to make a picture in London in August.

I keep hearing about "The Ninth Guest," a Columbia picture, probably because Alan Dinehart, who will get his first starring chance, played the same role on the stage for eight months in New York. Owen Davis has authored this play which gave Dinehart such a break on the stage and which should benefit him on the screen.

Mint Apples

Six cooking apples, two cups sugar, one cup water, green vegetable coloring, oil of peppermint. Make a syrup by cooking the sugar and water together. Color green with vegetable coloring, being careful not to use too much. Flavor with a few drops of peppermint. Pare and core apples and simmer in the mint syrup until tender, but not soft. Place in a border around the crown roast of lamb as a most attractive garnish that is delightly to eat.

PARENTS

Confidential Talks With Mothers and Fathers.

By Mrs. Brooke P. Church

The Hostile Phase

BETTY, 3 years old, suddenly has begun to exhibit a contrary and hostile attitude toward her mother.

Until recently the most docile and affectionate of babies, Betty, during the past six months, has been responding to her mother's requests more and more frequently with "I won't."

Every point in the day's routine has become a departure for argument, stalling and flat refusal. The mother is the more baffled and distressed, since she can discover in her own treatment of Betty nothing which would account for so violent a change.

Betty's attitude toward her father has also changed. Somewhat less responsive and affectionate with him than with her mother in the past, she has now become toward him especially demonstrative.

When he is home, she courts his attention in every possible way. The lightest suggestion from him wins immediate compliance. She is as good and obedient to him as she is contrary and naughty with her mother.

Such a development frequently occurs in little girls between the ages of 3 and 5 and is caused by underlying emotional changes.

At this time the little girl normally shifts her greatest attachment from the person of her mother to that of her father. This is likely to be especially marked when a new baby arrives in the family at this time.

The mother needs at this time to be especially patient and affectionate to help the child to find as many real satisfactions as possible in play.

She must beware of meeting the child's hostility with hostility of her own lest a breach occur which will make impossible later a confiding and happy relationship with her daughter.

A Freak They Are Still Talking About

THE following hand looks as if it had been made up in some expert's workshop—but it was actually played in one of the American Whist League championship events at Hanover, N. H., this summer.

	♠xx ♥xxx ♦10xx ♣1098xx
♠AKQxxx ♥None ♦KQ9xxx ♣x	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠J10xxx ♥J109 ♦None ♣KQJxx
	♠None ♥AKQxxxx ♦AJxx ♣Ax

All were vulnerable; South was the dealer.

As you see, East and West can make six spades against any defense, though South holds four primary tricks including three aces. In most cases South bid a heart, West two spades, pass by the North, three spades by East, four hearts by South. At this point, when West made a cue bid of five hearts, East made a second one of five diamonds, and so the small slam was reached with precision. Warned of the two void holdings, South generally avoided doubling. Those who let West play six spades undoubled got a fairly good result, since several Souths could not refrain from doubling—some over one cue bid, others even over two.

Top for North and South.

The best scores were obtained by those who went to seven hearts over six spades, warned by the cue bids and remembering the now obsolete "goulashes." Down three doubled cost less by over 500 points than letting the opponents make six spades. Actual top for North and South was made by one pair against whom East and West bid a grand slam owing to overbidding by East. He first supported spades, then bid his clubs—a mistake, since he lacked the ace and they had found their trump fit from the very start. He subsequently succeeded in bidding his void diamond suit, so West concluded that the hand had no losers and bid seven, which South doubled with joy.

Top for East and West.

South's hand is of the type which impels some players to make a preemptive shutout bid. I have never favored pre-emptive opening bids at contract, and was not sorry to learn that top score for East and West was obtained as a result of a shutout bid by South. He bid three hearts, not being a player of my system. Waldemar von Zedwitz was not slow to take advantage of the information given him. He bid four spades. Howard Schenken, East, read this vulnerable jump overcall for a solid spade suit of at least six spades, some minor suit protection, and a void of hearts. He immediately jumped to six spades, feeling that only one club trick would be lost unless South held a singleton club, West a doubleton or more, and North led the ace and another club, enabling South to get in a ruff if he hid a trump. There seemed to be nine out of ten chances that six spades would be made and nobody figures out their partner's probable holdings in view of the bidding already made more than Howard Schenken, winner in 1932 of the Masters' individual championship, and in 1931 of the masters' pair championship with David Burnstine, South doubled the six spades, not having been warned of the situation by any cue bids. West redoubled, trusting his partner rather than his opponent. Top.

drunkenness, with the help of good cooking and freedom from worry, and put an end to poverty, ignorance, greed, superstition in time. It will take what we call "a long time," but really a short time in history. We are only 12,000 years from the late Stone Age, when every man ate every other man, if he could catch and kill him, and have still hundreds of millions of years to go.

We may be really good, and begin genuine civilization in a million years, or two.

PORTRAIT OF A COLUMNIST TAKING IT EASY.

THERE probably never was an obituary notice like it—but it was actually published first in a mid-west journal and later by one of the more conservative papers in New York—and on the front page. Opie Reid, a great editor, is credited with parenting it. It follows:

OPIE READ.

"Sam Lobdel is dead. Some days ago he was stricken with poisoning from a wound while fighting with his wife when he was drunk. Sam was a unique character. Only once in a generation is a community pestered with such a human viper. He was the unsolved conundrum: 'What is he good for?' His only virtue was the persistence of his wickedness; his only excellence was the stability of his unrepentance. Booze fighter, liar, chicken thief, wife beater, egg stealer, profane and vile of speech.

"He was the trademark of sin, the emblem of vice, with no crime but work beyond his capacity. He was even worse; but he has gone hence, and it is never our inclination to kick a man when he is down. Yet at his death his proverbial luck was with him. He goes below just as the whitening frost and chilling wind are ushering in a cold and tedious season for the good who are left. As was often the case when in life or in jail, he'll keep warm at others' expense. Well, so long, Sam—and so long as it is going to be for long—good luck."

One paragrapher from the provinces still believes that the New York paragraphers are buddies, chums and pals. He sets forth in a long complaint that no matter how foul the material written by the so-called "log-rollers" in Manhattan, they continue to encourage each other. "There is a closed door in New York," continues the writer, "and capable people from the hinterland cannot crash it. New Yorkers have sore hands and big backs and the slapping grows louder."

Of course this is among the legends. There might have been log-rolling five or more years ago—but we have not recognized any of it since then.

The word portraits of Stanley Walker in "Night Club Era," which will be offered on the 9th—held this corner's interest for a full night. But the New Yorky part of his observations, it seemed to us, were his ramblings at the end of the tome, some of which are herewith set forth: Walter Davenport the night in Jimmy Kelly's, when he believed the Apache act was real and chivalrously rose to the defense of the girl...Alice Roosevelt Longworth giving her dinner-table parody of her cousin, Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, speaking over the radio, a great bit of mimicry...The deadly, close-lipped command of Captain Patrick McVeigh of New York Police Headquarters as he turned to his strong-arm squad during a raid on a "clip" and said: "Toss this joint into the street!"...The proud terror of Herbert Asbury the week he thought he had been threatened by gangsters...

GENE BUCK.

Gene Buck, sentimental old song writer, propounding his belief that when love is weighed against duty and all else, "one woman's hair is stronger than the Atlantic cable"...My senseless but continual surprise that there is a lawyer named Hyacinthe Ringrose, a prize-fighter named Popper Stopper, a press agent named Fice Mork, a splendid chap named Damon duBlois Wack, and a woman in Harlem named Floy Perfect.

TODAY'S PATTERN

A Versatile Frock

A JUMPER is very important in the wardrobe of the 6 to 14 schoolgirl—but a jumper quite as versatile as this you've never dreamed of before. It boasts two detachable bretelles that perk out over the shoulders in a fetching way—without them you have a snappy pleated skirt belted at the waistline. The guimpe, too, does things with the length of its sleeves, and with or without its collar. Wool and cotton would combine ideally for warmth and practicality. As for its simplicity—even a Junior could make it!

Pattern 1645 is available in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 10 takes 1¾ yards 54 inch fabric and 1⅛ yards 36 inch contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

GOOD TASTE

By EMILY POST

Precedence

Dear Mrs. Post:

WHEN mother and I are alone and we invite a friend to stay to dinner, how should we be seated and in what order should our waitress serve us? When the friend is a man, it seems a little unnatural to serve our guest first—unless the guest is our clergyman.

EMILY POST

Answer: When a guest at your table is a woman, she is served first. But when the guest is a man—even though he be your clergyman—your mother is served first. Your guest, whether a man or a woman, sits on your mother's right and you at the foot of the table opposite your mother.

Dear Mrs. Post: After each vacation a friend and I go through the same "tears." She expects me to find out when she is expected home and to telephone her and welcome her back within a few minutes after she is due. I feel that this "return of the prodigal" act is superfluous among very intimate friends of lifelong standing. I agree that were she some one whom I know only slightly, strict exactions of courtesy might be important. But in this particular case I contend that when she gets home she ought to telephone me and let me know she is back. I would really like to know if there is any rule, which upholds my friend's one-sided contention.

Answer: Perhaps she is overreacting but according to courtesy she is right in expecting you, as a most intimate friend, to welcome her rather than to wait for her to announce her return. As a matter of fact, this impulse of welcome on your part is one of those things that would NOT be expected were she some one you know slightly. A friend whom you see seldom would call you—unless you happened by chance to hear of her return. These situations are not according to etiquette but according to warmth of heart. Just stop to think about how you would feel were you coming home. I'm sure you would expect those who love you to greet you. And that you could not possibly expect like interest in your being home or away from a stranger.

My Dear Mrs. Post: (1) Which initials are placed first in a wedding ring? (2) On which side of the church do the bride's family and friends sit?

Answer: (1) Groom's. (2) On left as one faces the chancel.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

IS it all right to wear dark blue accessories with a red dress? At present I hardly feel that I could buy all new black accessories. The hat, shoes, gloves, purse are all a dark dull blue.

Could you possibly answer by Wednesday evening? B. A. R.

I have seen this combination look very well. Why not be individual and independent about it? I am sure it may look quite chic.

But you must always give me more time. I can never count on answering so soon, because of the different needs for space in the paper.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE recently developed pimples and blackheads. Most treatments for blackheads that I read about are for oily skin, but my skin is very dry. Can you tell me what to do? Z. I. Z.

Drink more water, six to eight glasses a day. Write me, sending self-addressed, stamped envelope, for suggestions for pimples and blackheads.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WE are a young couple living in a cottage in St. Louis County. It seems that I read in your column that some association boards children out in homes. Could you tell me, is there a place like this? LONESOME.

I have answered this question, by referring the one who inquired, to the Children's Aid Society, 340 North Vandeventer. The Episcopal Orphans' Home, 1711 South Grand, also makes such arrangements; telephone GRand 0610.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I KNOW of a young man who is out of work and has been sick lately and, really, his clothes are not fit to wear anywhere so that he can look for work. I thought perhaps if some reader has a pair of trousers or some shoes they have outgrown (shoes size 7, and trousers 31 to 33 waist) he would appreciate having them. I am giving you my address. MRS. D.

The young man should go to the Clothing Bureau of the Citizen's Relief Organization. Perhaps they could help him out.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

IN regard to "Beauty Lover," I would like to tell her what I did to my hair. I used to put "Bobby pins" in two places, so that I could pull a wave out. I would put the pins all the way around my head and let the hair get good and dry before taking them out. Then I would remove the pins carefully and not comb the hair—until I am ready to dress.

If the waves do not stay in long at first (you cannot expect them to the first few times), keep repeating this method until they do. Now my hair is real curly and wavy. CURLY.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WILL you please tell me if it is customary for a girl to wear mourning for her beloved sweetheart? And how long should it be worn. ANXIOUS.

This is out of the usual, but it is done, and without a question of good taste. It is a matter of personal feeling and sometimes a protection from thoughtless remarks. From three to six months is customary.

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

THREE years ago, I graduated from high school and was the youngest in my class and ranked fourth, and also won the popularity prize of my class. I also won a scholarship for two years at any college I might choose. I chose, after my scholarship was completed, to take medicine.

However, my father who was then well-established, became penniless. So I had to find work and support the family, my father being too old to start over. I got a good job and helped send my younger brother and sister to high school until they graduated. They secured good jobs through friends of mine. Two months ago, I lost my job.

Now my brother and sister chide me because I am unemployed, and even my parents say I'm lazy. Don't you think this is monstrous ingratitude? I have thought of leaving, but can't find it in my heart to do so.

Please, Mrs. Carr, advise me what to do. I have about $200 saved up which I intended to save for college next January; but I simply cannot get a job and don't know what to do. B. W.

Since you have been so industrious and unselfish and have been provident enough to save, I think it possible that you might get some help from the Rosalie Tilles Fund, Inc., 705 Olive, GArfield 3920. The Red Cross has a department, for helping handicapped young men to get an education.

While I know that family feeling is strong, and sometimes families are, outwardly, a little careless and inconsiderate, probably your people would be hurt to know how seriously you have taken them. A word about leaving might give them a different way of thinking. It might not be amiss to live somewhere else for a time.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM a boy 15 years old. The Sunday school of my boy friend is giving a dance. He asked three of us boys to ask girls. The one I have asked lives 10 blocks away. Would it be proper for my dad to drive us to my boy friend's house? If not, how would you suggest that I call for the girl? M. M.

Your dad willing, I think it would be perfectly proper and nice for him to go with you and drive you in his car to the friend's house. Of course, you could call a taxi, which, for that distance would cost very little. But there is certainly no objection to the other way.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WILL you please print the address of the Franciscan Archeological Expedition that is now working in Jerusalem? JULIUS W.

Just address Jerusalem—the place is not so large that a communication addressed in this way would be likely to go astray.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

CAN you please tell me if there is a place in St. Louis where one who has never had any stage experience may go for a try-out to see if they have any ability, or can be trained for stage dancing? PATSY.

You surely know of the Little Theater, 812 North Union.

My Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM worried crazy. What on earth can I do to overcome jealousy? I know it is despicable. Two years ago I left, fully determined to stay away. He begged me to return and made promises which he has faithfully carried out.

My husband works where there are some very pretty, nice girls. He dances, laughs, talks and seems to enjoy some of them more than he does me. Within the past few months he seems unhappy, brooding and if I accuse him, he storms. It's all up to me, I really believe. We have been married four years and have no children. Do you advise us to stop going to these parties? Wouldn't that say that I put my jealousy above our mutual pleasure? WORRIED AND BLUE.

Certainly you will gain nothing by making accusations. Try, with all your might, to do your husband the honor of believing him true. Love without confidence and loyalty is not the best brand. At least try to turn your back upon the signs. He will see this and respect you for it. If the matter becomes flagrant, then tell him in few words (without becoming hysterical and emotional) that you will not allow him to put you in such a position and will leave if it is necessary.

Possibly you could make a change in some of your friendships and cultivate a new crowd. But, remember, the chances for these things are ever-present. In self-defense, you have got to trust as long as you can.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Now's the Time to Think About That Turkey-Day Dinner

NOW is the time for all good hostesses to begin to think about what they will serve the family and guests for the greatest feast of the year, Thanksgiving day dinner. It's a wise cook who makes her selections early. The result always speaks for itself, there being no comparison between the well-planned, carefully thought-out dinner and the meal that is hastily thrown together at the last minute.

The following menu is suggested as a practical model, with just enough fancy touches to make it a little different from ordinary dinners:

Potato chips spread with Roquefort cheese
Roast turkey or chicken with dressing
Giblet gravy Mashed potatoes
String beans
Glazed onions Cranberry jelly
Celery and olives
Pineapple and grapefruit salad
Pumpkin pie
Salted nuts Mints
Coffee

And now for the recipes, in the order in which they appear on the menu, the first being:

CREAM OF MUSHROOM SOUP.

Take one pound of mushrooms, peel and chop fine. Saute in two tablespoons of butter for about 20 minutes. Add one heaping tablespoon of flour and cook for two minutes longer. Scald two quarts of milk with one stalk of celery, one slice of onion, one bay leaf and a sprig of parsley. Cook for half an hour, then remove from fire and strain. Add to mushrooms and season with salt and pepper to taste. Add one-half pint of cream and re-heat thoroughly. Serve with a tablespoon of whipped cream to each dish and two of the cheese-spread potato chips on the dish.

ROAST TURKEY.

Dress, stuff and truss the turkey, place in a roasting pan, breast down. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, brush with melted butter. Put in a moderate oven, 350 degree Fahrenheit. Turn bird over when brown and add one-half cup of water to the pan, basting frequently until the breast meat is tender. Remove to hot platter, garnish with whole bouquets of parsley under each wing and white paper frills on the drumsticks. There are many ways of dressing the platter. The turkey in the upper illustration has whole broiled mushrooms around it, the chicken below is surrounded by candied apples.

THE VEGETABLES.

Shiver the beans into three lengthwise sections, blend them with small morsels of bacon and cook until done. The onions crisp and brown, when they are glazed in sugar and butter.

THE SALAD.

Peel and remove section of grapefruit. Place on either canned or slices of ripe pineapple. If fresh pineapple is used sprinkle a little sugar on it and let stand for two hours before using. Arrange fruit on hearts of lettuce and cover with French dressing.

PUMPKIN PIE.

Mix one cup of pumpkin, one cup of sugar, two eggs, one cup of half milk and half cream, one-half teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of nutmeg, cinnamon, allspice, one teaspoon of vanilla. Pour into an unbaked pie crust and bake slowly for one hour.

To Stuff The Bird

Two dressings that are always favorites at Thanksgiving time are:

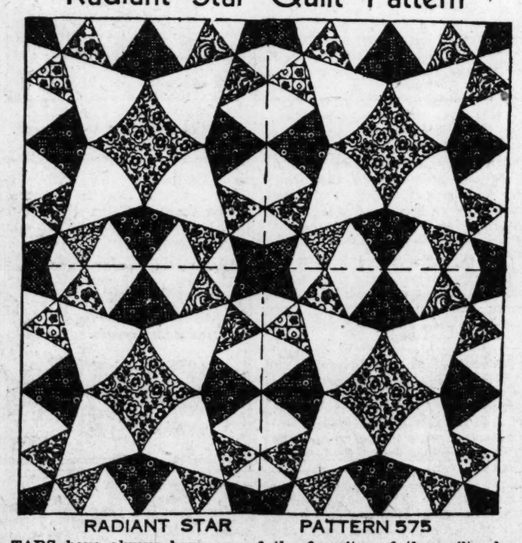

CHESTNUT.

Mix four cups of bread crumbs, no crusts, with two teaspoons of salt, one-fourth teaspoon of pepper, one and one-half teaspoons of poultry seasoning and four tablespoons of finely chopped parsley. Moisten with three-fourths cup of hot milk or broth to which six tablespoons of melted butter have been added. Add two and one-half cups of finely chopped boiled chestnuts. Mix well. Dry birds inside. Stuff.

OYSTER.

One quart of oysters, two teaspoons of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, four cups of dry bread crumbs, one-half cup of melted butter. Combine ingredients and use as a stuffing.

Radiant Star Quilt Pattern

RADIANT STAR PATTERN 575

STARS have always been one of the favorites of the quiltmaker. This four-pointed star, so simple to do and so lovely, has aptly been named Radiant Star. The scraps of material which, to a great part, form the design, give it this radiance. Some of each material is used in every block, so that the scraps can be joined on in a hit or miss way and still lose none of their effectiveness. The blocks, so simple to make, form a striking pattern when joined.

Pattern 575 comes to you with complete, simple, instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to St. Louis Post-Dispatch Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York City.

SEEN in THE STORES

By SYLVIA

STYLES in buttons and other dress trimmings are so varied this autumn that a woman can transform a frock into the most severely tailored or the most elaborate merely by the choice of decorations. Oriental buttons and buckles are perhaps the most ornamental in the entire button collection. These are of dull gold surrounded by different colored imitation stones. Jade, turquoise, emerald, onyx and topaz are among the stones presented in synthetic versions.

Chinese buttons don't come from China but from France, the name being due to their inspiration rather than their place of manufacture. These have metal foundations finished with silver or gold, and bright colored enamel motifs to give them greater festivity. Large metal buckles with Chinese designs in colors may be obtained to match the buttons. With tunic frocks and mandarin types of blouses very popular, these buttons and buckles promise to have a good season.

Not all of the log buttons in the St. Louis stores are made of wood. Some of them are of wood and enamel combinations, and some of them are of crystal and rhinestones. Bright colors predominate when wood is used with enamel and sizes are likely to rival the shades when it comes to notoriety. Buckles that carry out the same log theme may be obtained either in the tailored or dressy versions.

Buttons that are as round as balls are selling almost as readily as the long, log types. These can be obtained in sizes ranging from the tiny to the large ones that rival a golf ball in circumference. And most of them are very brilliant since crystal that is studded with rhinestones is a featured type.

The vogue of using a strip of dress fabric instead of thread with which to sew a button into place has created a demand for the drape type of buttons. These usually are large but very flat and emphasized in plain colors so that the fabric of the dress gets full opportunity to be seen. Glass buttons in bright colors are used to advantage as are the wooden ones in simple, unadorned styles.

The importance of metal accents on frocks this season has created a demand for metallic ribbons. This means that the ribbon counters are brilliant with silver and gold as well as with either of the two in combination with bright colors. Very narrow ribbons with a glistening touch are available for the trimming of collar and cuff edges while ribbons of exaggerated width are the most wanted for sashes on formal afternoon and evening dresses.

To create an impression of greater elegance to an evening costume, don't overlook the advantages of a fan. One that promises to do the most toward adding drama to a costume is of shaded ostrich feathers. Starting with a deep purple at the base the tones vary through rose to a very delicate pink. This is one of those long, narrow fans that isn't much good to hide behind but very effective at the art of coquetry.

Cut steel decorations are sufficiently old-fashioned to be popular in a season such as this. Net banding with tiny steel beads as its decoration is one of the interesting items available at the trimming counters. Little collars with similar effects can be obtained there and the button department has an entire section devoted to novelty buttons showing applied designs of cut steel on top.

BEAUTY CLINIC

Poise does not come in pretty bottles.

DON'T try too hard for poise, but be fastidious about your personal appearance. Poise does not come in pretty bottles to be purchased like perfumes or soft creams—one has to cultivate it. Forget yourself entirely—then poise will step in and take full possession of you. This is far more important than the color of your powder or at what angle the eyebrows should be arched most effectively.

Lamb Souffle

Two cups cold minced lamb, two egg yolks, two egg whites, one tablespoon flour, one and one-fourth cups milk, one tablespoon butter, salt, pepper. Beat egg yolks, add milk, flour, salt and pepper, then the lamb. Cook together until slightly thickened, cool and add the stiffly whipped egg whites. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake for 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Meringue on Top

When cutting a pie or pudding having a meringue over the top, dip the knife first into cold water. Then cut sharply through the meringue. The water tends to prevent pulling off the meringue in one piece.

The Winding Trail

JELLY BEAR and Honey Bear were hiding in the woods from Grandpa Grouchy Galump who was following them with his gun.

"Oh, he just missed us," growled Jelly Bear in a very low tone of voice.

"What a narrow escape!" said Honey Bear in a whisper. "I was afraid he would see us. It is lucky that his sense of smell is not so keen as ours.'

"We'll have to be careful,' Jelly Bear said. "We may think he has gone on ahead and then he may suddenly change his mind and rush back in this direction and catch up with us."

"Let's get a start anyway and hurry along the opposite way," Honey Bear suggested.

So the Bears arose from their hiding place and moved through the woods. They went as quietly as they could and they went through the thickest parts rather than run the risk of being seen. It made it harder going this way but it was safer for them.

They walked on and on and on. Neither of them minded a long and winding trail, as they were the best of walkers and knew if it was a question of distance they could go much farther than Grandpa Grouchy Galump.

At last Jelly Bear exclaimed:

"Oh, look, Honey Bear! Do you see those wonderful chestnut trees right through the woods there?"

"But they're out in the open!" growled Honey Bear.

"We've gone far enough to be safe now," said Jelly Bear. But were they?

DANGEROUS WATERS

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE.

SHELBY began to feel herself arguing against space. Then Grandfather's formal explanation came to her ear.

"Of course you'll pay it back, honey. . I realized that. But affairs are right complicated here, too. The extension of our business and the partnership hasn't been very satisfactory. . . . Could you wait till November?"

"No." Almost agonizingly. "W've got to have it now, or it won't do a speck of good."

"I'm mighty sorry, child. But my obligations to the bank are so great already that I'd hesitate before asking for any more credit."

"Of course you shouldn't," she said bravely, and after a few affectionate questions she hung up.

Shelby found herself in a chair in the little sitting-room, hands folded, eyes staring. Queerly enough, the only thought in her head was of the telephone toll she had wasted. That would be on the bill, too. Then slowly a shadow crossed her mind, a shadow and a memory of a voice, talking to dance music. Presently the vagueness formed itself into an idea, then a decision that sent her upstairs to change into her riding clothes. She was more careful than usual with her dressing.

Along the bridle path where Wyattville society rode in style, she urged Briary to a canter which caused the conservatives, smugly trotting, to turn and stare at the wild Kentucky girl, her horse too fine for one of her means, herself too dashingly beautiful for the dull standards of a Wyattville wife. She smiled at those she knew, but galloped on, her eyes straining through the woods for a glimpse of a black horse. This was daring, this was rebellion thrice confounded. She who had promised to see as little as possible of Gene Fairchild, to ride no more with him along the Wyattville bridle path. . . .

AND there he was ahead of her, trotting along, very dressy in his greenish coat and Homburg hat. Like the figure of a millionaire in the Bois de Boulogne. Artfully she slowed Briary to a pace which was unhurried, but would overtake him. At a breast of the hill she caught up with the black horse, seemed unconscious of the rider until Gene turned, and said: "Very brisk this morning, Mrs. Wyatt."

"It's hard to keep him down, he feels so good," said she amiably.

"He ought to go hunting," declared Gene. "You'd work some of that steam out of him."

"He and I aren't hunting this season," she said, then quickly turned the subject she had come there to broach. "Everybody's talkin' about your dance, Gene. You did rub the fur out of their eyes."

"They even saw me," he chortled, appreciating her compliment. "Do you know what the Yacht Club Committee did bright and early this morning? Came round and accepted my fifty thousand for that anchorage."

"Generous of them," smiled Shelby.

"Yeah. They aren't so stingy about taking favors as some people I know."

"No?" Shelby's round black eyes were on him, pretending not to understand.

"Last night," he said suddenly, "you made Wyattville look like a rummage sale. And this morning, with that mount and your looks — say, it's a crime, the way you're behaving. You're no amateur. I mean that as a compliment. What are you doing around here, fooling away your time, when you could have all the owners in the country bidding for you?"

"Do you think I could make money—now?" Faintly.

"Could you? If it should get out that Mrs. Wyatt of Wyattville had gone back to riding a string—good Lord, you'd make real money if you'd ride for me."

"How much?" She was bolder now, bidding.

"How much do you want? He might have been teasing her, but his face was serious.

"You mean ridin' here in Wyattville?"

"I'd like it. I'll have a string here by October that'll knock their eyes out."

"I need $9000," said Shelby coolly "but I've got to have it right away."

"In cash?" Instinctively reaching toward his pocket, as though he carried millions.

"I'd prefer it in cash." Then, because he hesitated, "I wouldn't be worth anything like that for this season. But I'll ride for you, all over the country, till I've earned that much."

He reached out and took her hand. "Is that a bargain?" he asked very earnestly.

"I said I would, didn't I? If you want me to put it down on paper——"

He gestured the thought aside but his opal eyes were full on her as he asked, "Does you—Johnnie know you're going back into the game?"

"No." Hesitantly. "But I'll tell him—in October. If you want me to ride for you, please don't talk about it right now."

"Is that part of the bargain?"

"Yes." Sudden shame all but overcame her, but she strengthened herself to the finish.

"What do you want the money for, all of a sudden?" he asked "Last night——"

SYNOPSIS

Young and pretty Shelby Barret, professional horsewoman and member of an aristocratic Southern family, marries Johnnie Wyatt, impoverished scion of the prominent North Shore Wyatts. Johnnie's snobbish relatives disapprove of Shelby, in part, because of her professional standing. The young couple have a hard struggle on Johnnie's meager allowance and live in a dilapidated house which he had inherited together with a run-down race-track. But fortune is beginning to smile on them for Johnnie is planning to build a Tudor village, called "Shakespeare Addition," on the track. Eugene Fairchild, a wealthy social climber, is in love with Shelby and follows her from the coast where Shelby met him when she was employed by the wealthy widow, Mrs. Nicholas. The latter, called "Nicko," discharged Shelby because of jealousy over Johnnie. "Nicko" has also settled in Wyattville and slanders Shelby. Fairchild's wealth is an "Open Sesame" to smug Wyattville society. He gives a party and bets Shelby a nickel that all the elite will be present. Johnnie resents Fairchild and Shelby hesitates mentioning the party to him. That night, however, he returns home in a jubilant mood for he has succeeded in interesting two prominent bankers in his real estate project. Fairchild offers to put Shelby in the way of some real money, but realizing she is treading on dangerous grounds, Shelby refuses. The following morning Johnnie receives a jolt when his bankers inform him that the $10,000 mortgage must be lifted before they take over the property. He needs $9000 which Shelby optimistically promises to get from her grandfather.

"It's different now," she broke in. "We need it for some investments.'

"TELL you what I'll do," said Gene, slowing his horse, "I guess you'd rather have cash than a check, huh? I'll have it for you in an hour, and send it over by my chauffeur. Is that all right?"

"You're awfully kind," she murmured, and sat her horse stiffly And he was kind, she reflected. He wasn't even delivering the money in person. She found herself respecting his talent for conspiracy; and she feared it, too.

"Kind!" He was chuckling. "Shelby, I'm tickled pink to know that you've come to your senses." Then with a jaunty wave of his hand he galloped away, leaving her to turn back toward home.

As a child recalls the moral in a fable, she remembered what her grandfather had once said about an old Negro who had once been a slave. He had told how it felt to be sold into bondage. Maybe you're better off than you were, in some ways, the Negro had said, but it's the terrible feeling of being owned

Finally Shelby got back to the house, unsaddled Briary, put him out to pasture. Although there were a hundred little chores to do around Prudence Cottage, she went idly over to the porch and sat there, waiting, her eyes straining down the road for a sight of Gene's car. Painfully she wished that, by some trick of magic, she might have conjured the nine golden bills out of Gene's hands, immediately, while she had the courage to accept it. Had she taken it then, hurried to the bank, deposited it, she would have had no time to consider the consequences of her impulsive act.

But here she sat on the porch, trying to keep Johnnie out of her thoughts. He was already there, possessing her, as he did every hour of the day. Of course I'll have to tell him...thoughts like these...I'll have to tell him how I got the money...If I wait till October, that won't make it any better...Johnnie doesn't want me to ride for money. Ridin' for Fairchild is a heap worse than ridin' for anybody else...We've got a couple of days to raise the money, and something might happen to help us...But this is a right dishonorable thing I'm doin' to Johnnie. Even Shakespeare Addition isn't worth it...

By every trick of the mind she was trying to fight down these fears. She tried counting the pickets on the fence, doing mental arithmetic, subtracting the broken pickets from the whole ones. She thought of counting the dandelions on the lawn, but there were so many millions of them. The sight of them aroused her to action; she got out the lawn-mower, began cutting grass frenziedly in silly, irregular swathes.

But when she stopped for breath the resolution stood waiting for her, informing her that she had done the most foolish of all foolish things. Whatever happened, she couldn't rent herself out to Gene Fairchild.

JUST then Gene's second-or third-best car swung its nose slowly through the gate. Shaking her curly bob, as though to give force to her independence, she started across the lawn, when Mrs. Agnew's shriek drew her toward the door. "Mrs. Wy'att! Mrs. Wy'att! Mr. Wy'att's on the wire."

Confusedly Shelby saw the car stop on the drive and a man with a brown envelope getting out. But she ran to the telephone.

"Hello, chuck." Johnnie's adored voice was anxious.

"Hello, honey," she quavered.

"I'm on my way to the station, and I thought I'd take a chance." A very worried voice it was that asked, "Did you get in touch with your grandpa?"

"Yes, I got him."

"What did he say?" The question came like a sigh. It moved her so that she could have cried out; her hesitation was just the blink of an eye, but it counted for years.

"Johnnie——"

"Speak a little louder, honey. I can't hear."

"Johnnie, darlin'"—through a screen door she saw the chauffeur with his brown envelope—"don't you worry about the money, darling. Go up to Albany and tell 'em it's all right. The money's here, precious."

"What?"

"It's here. It'll be in the bank for you, right away."

"Shelby!" Now he was the one who should speak a little louder. "What a grand old guy your grandpa is! Everything's settled for us now. Everything! Isn't it wonderful? You darling — and who was it that thought of Grandpa Barret?"

"I'm not goin' to let you fail, Johnnie," she murmured, and hung up.

She couldn't trust herself with more words. The room was going round and round. The man at the door looked all asiant, like a sailor at sea; the brown envelope seemed big as a piano.

Sylvia Stiles Views the Fashion Parade in St. Louis

ST. LOUIS women who gambled on the weather and bought good looking suits for autumn wear have found that they were exceedingly lucky. Recent weather couldn't have been better to display suits to advantage. Light weight wool dresses likewise have had a grand opportunity to show their style importance.

Brown, green and gray have been the three most popular colors for suits and wool frocks. Mrs. W. E. Pauley went shopping a few days ago in a bright green wool suit that demonstrated how well this shade harmonizes with black. The suit was a two-piece type of ribbed wool with black kid caracul applied at the top of the sleeves to suggest a yoke.

An Ascot scarf of the material enhanced the neckline. The skirt was cut straight of line. With this suit Mrs. Pauley wore a black satin blouse, a small black felt hat with a feather ornament and black suede oxfords.

Another interesting color alliance is green and tile. Mrs. William S. Romer lunched at the Coronado recently in a green tweed mixture suit of the swagger type that was flecked with tile tone. A tile colored sweater blouse emphasized the attractiveness of the two shades. With this suit, which had leather buttons and raglan shoulders, she chose a brown brimmed felt hat with an orange feather fancy, and brown oxfords.

Among other luncheon guests at this same hotel who wore good-looking suits was Mrs. S. Herbert Boeger. Her preference in color was brown and the material a crepey wool. This was one of the popular dress and jacket ensembles, the dress made entirely of the wool and cut quite straight of line. The fitted knee-length jacket was trimmed with mink, which formed a yoke. As the day was sufficiently cool to justify a muff, Mrs. Boeger carried one of mink to match the trimming on her suit. Its flat, fan shape was interesting as an important style note of the season. A tiny tricone hat of brown felt with little metal wings at either side and a flaring veil were other smart accessories.

Unless a suit consists of a dress and jacket, the choice of a blouse is of much importance. Evidently there is no dearth of stunning blouses this season, ranging from the sweater type to the one sufficiently formal in appearance to serve for dining and dancing.

VELVET is the ideal fabric for an elegant-looking blouse, as several stunning costumes have proved. Mrs. E. S. Powers appeared at the Sunday afternoon tea dance at the Chase in a black suit with a handsome blouse of green velvet. the blouse looked very lovely at the table — something that every blouse of the formal type is expected to do. Its draped front was caught at the waistline with a big loop and sash ends. The sleeves with their deep armholes were full to the elbow, where they were gathered into a straight lower section. The skirt was straight except for a kick pleat in front and the jacket had a cape collar. A little black hat of wool crepe with a fur pompon at the side completed this effective costume.

Among the smart wool dresses seen about town the last few days, the one worn by Miss Elizabeth Jamison while shopping stands out because of its careful attention to details. The fabric was of a smooth-finished brown wool that resembled a very fine covert cloth. Deep armholes emphasized a dropped shoulder line and the slenderness of the straight skirt. Brown satin trimmed this well tailored frock, the most notable decorative note being the sash, which tied at the center back. A small brown antelope hat suggesting the Peter Pan type had small feather ornaments to emphasize the peaks of its crown.

MRS. LOUIS G. OLIAN attended a bridge luncheon at the Park Plaza, wearing a becoming frock of gray wool trimmed with krimmer. This was a tunic type of dress, buttoning down the front with silver-colored metal buttons. A high round collar of the fur gave the neckline a tailored touch, while the sleeves were attractive because of the narrow bands of the krimmer extending from the top of the shoulders to the wrists. Mrs. Olian's small black felt hat had a touch of the same metal that adorned her dress. Her footwear and bag were of black suede.

When she goes walking in the park Mrs. George A. Bayle makes a striking figure in a frock of bright green tweed with a green tweed hat to match. This is a one-piece type of dress that is cut with the simplicity to set off its striking fabric to best advantage. On cool days Mrs. Bayle adds a mole jacket. With this stunning outfit she wears brown oxfords and brown gloves.

AMONG the soft wool fabrics that are being used for attractive frocks this season is a feathery wool with a matelasse design running through this. Mrs. John Quinn has a frock of this material in an unusual shade that is best described as brick dust. She was wearing it at the tea hour recently. A deep square yoke appears both at front and back of the blouse and is tucked vertically to give it greater decoration. The sleeves have the same tucked treatment at the shoulders and taper as they near the wrists. A narrow band of mink forms a high collar and similar bands form tiny cuffs.

With this fur-trimmed frock Mrs. Quinn wears a small brown felt hat with tucked detail and a frilly lace veil that comes down over one eye. Suede shoes cut high and laced at the sides are smart additions to her costume.

At the barn dance, the prize for the best representation of Kentucky rural life was awarded to the group that had a scene showing Abraham Lincoln stretched on the floor in front of an open fire, reading by the firelight. That was all right except that it represented rural life in Illinois. At the period in his life represented in the scene, Lincoln had been away from Kentucky for years.

HEALTH

Brief articles prepared by experts. Edited by Dr. Iago Galdston, for the New York Academy of Medicine.

The Function of Tears

FICTION has it that the crocodile sheds compassionate tears for his victims. Science, however, maintains that man is the only animal that can weep.

An enterprising gentleman recently experimented cruelly on crocodiles by squeezing into their eyes the juice of an onion mixed with salt, but he brought forth no tears.

Infants do not shed tears until they are several weeks, or, in some cases, months old.

Weeping apparently is not an unlearned pattern of behavior, but rather one which must be acquired through experience.

Parenthetically, the cynic might say that certain mortals learn this lesson all too well and employ it for their own ends from infancy on to far advanced old age.

On the other hand, weeping and more particularly the imperceptible secretion of tears by the tear or lachrymal glands serve a useful and important purpose.

To begin with, the fluid secreted keeps the surface of the eye lubricated and free from minute particles of dust.

Under the stimulus of irritants, such as gases or foreign solutions, the tear glands secrete copiously and hence dilute the irritant and thus protect the eye.

Then again tears have been shown to be effective destroyers of germs. There is in tears a substance known as lysozyme, which acts as a very efficient bactericide.

This lysozyme is present in the secretions of the tear glands, both those that are imperceptibly secreted and those that flow forth copiously in weeping.

A recent writer in the British Journal of Ophthalmology goes so far as to suggest that the prevention of affections of the eyes of the new-born by silver drops is not brought about by the silver, but by the tears which are provoked.

Sore Throat

ORDINARILY we think of a sore throat as a tonsilitis which has extended to involve the surrounding tissues.

[illegible] examination, the throat in [illegible] suggestion presents a pair of [illegible] compliance, the surrounding [illegible] obedient to [illegible] and ranch'

[illegible] his line of thought, we [illegible] inclined to blame the tonsils for all sore throats and to prescribe their removal as a remedy.

Undoubtedly, in a good number of instances, the fault does reside in the tonsils, which, having become chronically infected, are the source of throat disease.

In other instances, however, the inflammation of the tonsils is secondary to infection existing elsewhere, and the red, swollen, painful state of the tonsils merely bears witness to the fact that they are trying to do their job in blocking the spread of infection.

Sore throat may arise from infections elsewhere in the head spaces. Infections of the nose and nasal sinuses, nasal obstructions and decayed and diseased teeth may be contributing causes.

With the appearance of acute infectious processes involving the nose and throat, there are a number of practical measures that the individual can take to help overcome the disease.

Salt water made by the addition of a teaspoonful of salt to a glass of warm water is recommended as a gargle and for a gentle nose wash.

Under provocation of bacterial and other irritants the mucous lining of the throat may give off so much mucous that the head spaces become clogged with their own secretions. These can be washed away and the respiratory tract cleared.

Gargles and nose lavages should be copious but gentle. Such treatment will also obviate the necessity for hard blowing and thus avoid the danger of involving the internal ear.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.

SAM JAFFE, the Broadway actor—and no relation to the Hollywood producer of the same name—arrived just in time to be plunged into the day-before-shooting preparations for his first film.

Sitting in the office of Josef von Sternberg, who will direct it, and surrounded by such varied evidence of forthcoming activity as humming telephones, wardrobe masters carrying immense fur coats, and an intricate production chart studded with colored pins—like the map of a military campaign—Mr. Jaffe, quiet and mild-mannered, confessed himself rather "bewildered."

Hollywood has been after him since he created "Kringelein" in the Broadway production of "Grand Hotel," but he came finally because he found the offered role of the Grand Duke Peter in "Scarlet Pageant," the Marlene Dietrich film, "very thrilling."

JAFFE, at 35, has been on the stage for 20 years. He intends to go back after this picture. He says he likes the intimate theater "where costs are small enough to allow experimenting."

"Here," he glances around the office, but refers to Hollywood, "it is too amazing. On the stage we would merely suggest Russia. Here you build it!"

In her dressing room Miss Dietrich, wearing one of her white flannel sports outfits—with trousers and red sweater—is in conference with Von Sternberg. This brooding mentor, upon whose shoulders rests the gigantic task of making a new movie, exits somberly and forbiddingly as we approach.

"Don't stay too long," he invites glumly without looking up. "I have many things to do."

That seems a bit irrelevant, but Marlene is in gay spirits, not bowed down by the prospect of wearing the heavy robes of the Russian Catherine.

"The only time I am excited is when I see the picture finished and it is 'good,'" she says.

ALL seems well. The anti-kidnaping bars are up in the Dietrich home, and the bodyguard of eight strong men and true is functioning. She laughs at "fads" she is credited with inaugurating.

Those two long fingernails with the others short, for instance. "I had them all long," she says, "and all broke but two. Now I have trimmed them. But I read that I have started a fad!

"Wearing my rings over evening gloves, too. That is not a fad—it is done everywhere. When the stone in a ring is large you cannot put on gloves over it, so you wear it outside. It is all so silly. . . ."

Head...chest...back...legs...teeth developing beautifully She gets Bottled Sunshine every day

"Is it really true that my baby needs special help to develop a well-shaped head, a fine, full chest, a strong back, straight legs, and sound, even teeth?" mothers ask.

Physicians explain that only if the essential factor—Vitamin D—is plentifully supplied, can babies develop their bones and teeth soundly.

Two common sources usually supply them with essential Vitamin D. Outdoor sunshine is one.

But bad weather, clouds, smoke, fog, even ordinary window glass prevent babies from receiving enough Vitamin D from sunshine alone. So mothers are urged to give Bottled Sunshine—good cod-liver oil—regularly every day to their babies!

Physicians often advise the use of a particular kind—Squibb's!

Squibb's, they know, is rich in two vitamins. In addition to Vitamin D, it provides Vitamin A for growth and good resistance. And the vitamins are protected. It is less expensive to use regularly. Be sure to get Squibb's. At any reliable drug store.

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

AUTHOR'S NOTE: These answers are given from the scientific point of view. Science puts the rights of organized society above the rights of individuals.

—They can do a great deal in that direction. I knew a bookkeeper who "hated his work," and was "sure it would kill him." A psychologist induced him to study the importance of bookkeeping, read up on how this work affects the lives of thousands and constantly to assure himself that he was doing a fine work in the world. This gave the bookkeeper a wholly new view of the importance, not only of his work, but of himself. If you constantly tell yourself your work is not as important as that of Jones or Brown, of course you will hate it. Follow this fellow's example and you will be surprised at the effect.

2. —The cause of the insanity should be ascertained by competent medical authorities. Some types of insanity are inherited and some not. If of the inheritable type, even if his own children should be normal, they would very likely "carry" it and hand it on down to some future children. If he and his wife do not contemplate children, then the problem is not so important.

3. —On this point, Dr. Carl E. Seashore, Dean of the Graduate School of Iowa University, says in his book, "Psychology in Daily Life:" "The objective-minded person is positive; the subjective minded person is negative. The negative man has to spend his life in misery, trying to ward off evil, trying to get out of trouble, trying to obey the law, ever on the defensive. The best that can be said of him is that he has done no harm. The positive, objective-minded man does not worry about how to be good, or true, or intellectual or artistic, or religious, but he does something. He forgets self and becomes engrossed in present opportunities." In other words, the surest road to happiness is to interest yourself in people and things outside yourself.

He assailed the y lobbyists who are opposing ll.

The Governor brushed asid e numerous revenue produ easures introduced, many of ffered merely as a screen for pposition to the sales tax, and ounced his opinion that the x "is the only means" of pr g the money necessary.

He tossed back to the Senat mand that he reduce salaries xpenses of the State Governi y at least 25 per cent by quo ages of statistics to show tha uctions had been made to the nal limit.

The Governor's statistics sho hat drastic cuts had been mad xpenditures and that the ave monthly saving in salaries and enses this year over last year een $63,060.37, his estimate of otal saving for the year b 756,724.44.

The Governor gave special r on to the public utility lo hich is opposing his recomm ation for bills to permit sma ities to build electric, gas, w in sewer plants to be paid f ond issues which would be a nly on the earnings of the pla he Governor placed his rec endation on the ground that ould aid in providing employm

"To me it is inconceivable en the paid lobbyists of p rvice corporations will seri ontend that the voters of ities should be denied rights njoyed by these companies.

"It is unthinkable that a ompany, power and light com r waterworks corporation sh e given rights and those ights denied the citizens."

He complimented the Legisla n the passage of a resolution ral days ago pledging that f al provision would be mad re it adjourned for those in ess.

"It is my opinion," he said, e only means of raising the 0,000 necessary for the co ar in time is by the adoption neral sales tax.

For Cut in Auto License Ta

He recommended a reductio tomobile license fees on the priced cars, saying that ange could be made without ially interfering with the ogram or impairing the vali tstanding road bonds.

He said that the gasoline ta tions for the first 10 month e year exceeded those of the r period of last year by $10 that there had been a dec $800,000 in the license fee ted, expressing the opinion duction in the fees would increase both the gasolin lections and the number ses issued.
